ARMPPA Presents Case To Amish Farmers

EVERETT NEWSWANGER
Managing Editor

CHRISTIANA (Lancaster Co.) — More than 500 Amish farmers with a handfull of "Englishmen" mixed in, packed church-bench style into Peter Sheims' cow mattress manufacturing building Wednesday evening. By nightfall, the normally deserted rural road that winds west of town over small hills and vales, was lit up like Grand Central Station with horses and buggies, Amish transport vans, farm trucks, and cars of every discription. They came to hear officials of the new American Raw Milk Producers Pricing Association (ARMPPA) bring a case for a national grass-roots effort for farmers to take back pricing of their milk into their own hands.

ARMPPA is structured as a non-profit, non-stock cooperative which supporters say has its base in the Capper-Volstead Act of 1922. This gives farmers the right to organize as a cooperative and puts the rules in place to govern the pricing and moving of milk. In a telephone conversation with the organization's vice president, John Kinsman, LaValle, Wisconsin, Lancaster Farming learned that the roots of the movement are in the former efforts to mobilize farmers in what was known here in the East as RCMA. Kinsman said a lot was learned from this effort six years ago and said the present effort started two years ago is a pricing-only cooperative aimed at doing esentially on a national basis what RCMA tried to do regionally. Because of the national scope, Kinsman believes this effort will succeed where the regional effort did not.

"Our goals are to keep farmers on the land and help the industry, not work against it," Kinsman said. "We plan to work with Marketing Agencies In Common (MAIC's) and other supportive handlers and cooperatives to negotiate prices that the market will bear. We do not want to come across as being against present cooperatives, but we want to act as an umbrella cooperative to help them and to help independent handlers get more of the consumer's dollar back to the dairy farmers."

The cooperative has designated 12 regions for the nation. Each region has a director on the board, and each region will be researched for

An estimated 600 Amish dairy farmers crowded into a Christiana manufacturing facility Wednesday night to hear officials of the American Raw Milk Producers Pricing Association (ARMPPA) discuss the merits of this new milk pricing cooperative. Many of the farmers were already members, here to show solidarity. Many others became members at the close of the meeting. One Amish dairy farmer who attended the meeting estimated that 85 percent of those attending the meeting are now members. Photo by Everett Newswanger, managing editor.

Calif. Dominates Southeast, Mid-Atlantic Peach Market

ANDY ANDREWS
Lancaster Farming Staff

HERSHEY (Dauphin Co.) — At the annual meeting of the state vegetable and fruit growers here at the Hershey Lodge and Convention Center, the managing director of the National Peach Council told growers that California is gaining, and everybody else is losing.

What's being lost? It's the battle for peach crop market share.

According to Charles Walker, managing director of the National Peach Council, Columbia, S.C., California will ship about 750-770 million pounds of peaches this season, nearly double the amount of a decade ago. Peaches will be hauled to store shelves in the Southeast and Mid-Atlantic, where traditionally seasonal crops in the heart of summer from local growers dominate store displays.

Walker spoke to more than 100 peach producers and agri-industry representatives Wednesday at the 139th Annual Meeting and Trade Show of the State Horticultural

NY Phil. Frozen Eggs

ATLANTA, GA
JANUARY 23, 1998
EASTERN REGION FROZEN EGGS,

JANUARY 23, 1998. FEDERAL-STATE

Prices were generally higher. The market tone was fully steady to firm. Demand covered the full range and was mostly moderate. Supplies were adequate. Liquid and frozen eggs (ingredients included) processed under federal inspection for the week ending January 17, 1998 in the Eastern region were 4% more than the previous week, and 7% more than the same week last year. Raw material supplies were mixed from barely adequate to adequate, and prices were generally higher.

Delmarva Broiler

ATLANTA, GA

DELMARVA BROILER/FRYER MARKET. FEDERAL-STATE

Movement of ready-to-cook whole birds was fair to good and sufficient to keep offerings in balance to well cleared. Live supplies were moderate, instances heavy; weights were mixed and irregular, but mostly desirable to light. Processing schedules were moderate to moderately heavy and starting times were being disrupted this morning due to adverse weather. Less than trucklot asking prices were unchanged at 50 to 64 cents. Trade sentiment was generally fully steady. In the parts complex, breast items were in balance to short of immediate needs. Wings were available and slow to clear. Leg quarters were at least adequate

NORTHEAST BROILER/FRYER PARTS - PART I FEDERAL-STATE

Trucklot buying activity was mixed as dealers cautiously planned ahead for the first-of-the month. Offerings were irregularly available and often held in firm hands as traders closely watched for further market developments. Demand through both retail and distributive channels was usually discouraging. The market tone was mostly steady although underlying trade sentiment became increasingly cautious.

PRICES PAID PER POUND, ICE PACKED AND CO2 PACKED BROILER/FRYER PARTS, DELIVERED TO FIRST RECEIVERS IN POOL TRUCKLOT AND TRUCKLOT QUANTITIES.

NATIONAL EGG MARKET - AT A GLANCE:
Prices were unchanged. The market tone was steady but cautious. Demand was in a full range of light to good, best where features created additional interest. Supplies were at least adequate and usually available upon request. Breaking stock supplies were barely adequate to adequate and most demand was satisfied by regular commitments. Offerings of spent hens were generally sufficient for processing schedules.

USDA-MO Dept Ag Market News
DAILY NATIONAL GRAIN SUMMARY
Wheat bids lower again as export sales remain very slow this week and reports winter wheat conditions are good. Corn and soybean bids were slightly higher due to good domestic demand and light farmer sell- ing. Continued lack of foreign orders limited gains in corn and bean bids. Soybean bids were also supported by solid crusher demand. Wheat steady to 2 cents lower. Corn 1 to 2 cents higher. Sorghum 1 to 2 cents higher. Soybeans 1 to 2 cents higher.

The OLD FARMER'S ALMANAC THIS WEEK WITH

GROUNDHOG DAY, FEB. 2.

"LITTLE HALF-PINT"

February 7 marks the birthday of Laura Ingalls Wilder, born in 1867, and known affectionately by her "Pa," Charles Ingalls, as "little half-pint." Her series of "Little House" children's books have been favorites for generations and give a vivid picture of the early settlement days in America. Little House on the Prairie was once challenged as being discriminatory to Native Americans, and an attempt was made to ban it from some library and school bookshelves, but the effort proved ill-considered and unsuccessful. In fact, the books are quite open-minded about the effects of early settlement and development

Did little girls have to be as good as that?

– Laura Ingalls Wilder

TIP OF THE WEEK

☞ Check that the "weep holes" remain clear at the bottom of aluminum combination storm windows, to let moisture drain properly.

CORNMEAL COOKIES

1 cup (2 sticks) butter, softened
1 cup sugar
2 egg yolks
2 teaspoons grated lemon zest
1-1/2 cups sifted flour
1 cup yellow cornmeal

about the same diameter as the size of the cookies you want, and chill for an hour Cut into slices and bake in a preheated 350° F oven for 8 to 10 minutes. Cool on a rack

Makes 1 to 2 dozen.

Cream butter and sugar, then add remaining ingredients and mix well. Shape into a log,

The OLD FARMER'S WEATHER PROVERBS

The shepherd would rather see the wolf enter his flock than see the Sun on Candlemas Day.

If snails come out in February, they will stay home in March.

Just as far as the sun shines in on Candelmas Day, just so far will the snow blow in before May.

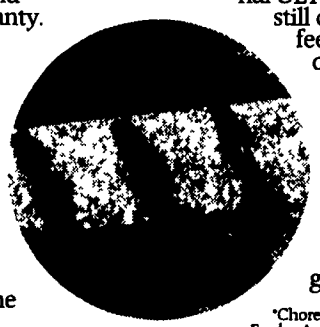
How Do You Improve On The Best?

In the case of Chore-Time's ULTRAFLO* Cage Feeder, you do it by beefing up the auger wire and extending the product warranty.

Chore-Time's new and improved ULTRAFLO* Cage Feeder uses our exclusive round-wire auger. It is nearly 10% heavier than our original ULTRAFLO*. And that means strength and years more running time for you! We're so confident of it that we've warranted the auger for twice* as long as the old model.



What's more, you still get all the features you valued in the original ULTRAFLO* Feeder. You can still count on unparalleled feed savings, economical operation, and ULTRA-FLO's remixing action which eliminates feed separation.

Chore-Time's ULTRAFLO* Cage Feeder—contact us today for more information on how the best just got better!

*Chore-Time's New ULTRAFLO® Cage Feeder Auger has a 10-year prorated warranty

Jimmy and Michael Hill, Tull Hill Farms, Kinston, North Carolina

The Hill family was ready to pay cash for a new 80,000 square foot storage facility for Tull Hill Farms. They changed their mind when Telmark explained how much they could save by leasing the facility instead. Their sharp management decision saved profits by adding to the bottom line with a Telmark operating lease. They also have a buyout option at the end of the lease term.

The Hill family found the tax breaks, end-of-term buyout option, and flexible payment plan so attractive, they leased the complete facility. Most lenders aren't ready to offer this kind of alternative financing.

Telmark understands building and equipment financing needs for all types of commercial and agricultural operations. For a financing source that's been listening to farmers for over 30 years, call your Telmark representative or 800-451-3322.

OPINION

A Reasonable Response

Farmers need to become public relations servents of agriculture in their everyday contact with people who have no background in our favorite enterprise of producing food for the peoples of the world. Often the normal practices of farming look offensive and even barbaric to those who have no emotional ties to farming.

For example, Brent Palmer, a dairy farmer from Salt Lake City, Utah, posted on Dairy L on the internet that his family had problems with visitors to the farm about how calves were handled in their dairy operation.

"The biggest hang-up that people have about our operation is 'Why do you take the babies away from their mothers?'" Palmer writes. "Some people even ask this on the verge of tears. No matter how we explain the reasons why, it never satisfies them. Practices such as culling or something as simple as ear tagging go beyond their grasp. 'Man' They tell us, 'this sure is a cut-throat business.'"

In response to this dilemma, Howard Cornwell from Norwich, Ont. wrote that the answer to this question that gets the most accpetance is the real answer. "We seperate the calves shortly after birth so that the calf bonds with the farmer or herdsman. Sometimes we forget the real reason, and just do things the way our fathers did. Dairy cows are very dependent on humans for all their needs and it is important that they respond to the farmer and not be so independent that they (suffer or) cause problems."

This is a very logical and reasonable response that gives a glimpse of the real relationship between farmers and their animals, we think.

To Understand Bt Corn Resistance

Now that corn growers finally have an economical and effective way to control European Corn Borers through corn varieties which contain Bt (Bacillus thuringiensis), careful management to prevent the borers from becoming Bt resistance is essential, according to Robert Anderson, Lancaster County Extension Agronomy Agent. Before an effective control was available, most corn growers were somewhat oblivious to the amount of damage the European Corn Borer was causing in corn fields.

Now that corn growers have experienced their first real effective control of European Corn Borer with Bt, they have become aware of the loses caused by this insect. Now that the value of this control is recognized, farmers must also recognize the importance of an effective Bt resistance management plan. Otherwise, European Corn Borer may develop resistance to Bt corn and we will lose this effective control method.

To Manage Resistance to Bt Corn

As more corn growers begin to use Bt corn, resistance management becomes more important. The EPA will make management plans essential beginning in 2000. However, farmers should begin now to prevent resistance according to many entomologists.

There are several approaches to prevent resistance. Growers can plant Bt and non Bt corn in the same field by mixing seeds. Or they may plant adjacent fields with Bt and non Bt corn. Or they may plant a field border of non Bt corn around all Bt corn fields. In all cases, it is vital to plant non Bt corn that has similar agronomic characteristics, like maturity and is planted at the same time.

If farmers take resistance management seriously, Bt corn may be a valuable tool to increase corn yields for many years to come. However, Robert Anderson, Lancaster County Extension Agronomy Agent, reminds us if farmers plant only Bt corn, resistance may develop in a short period of time.

To Prevent Stall Vices

During the winter months many stable vices of horses become more evident, according to Lori Little, Lancaster County 4-H Animal Sciences Extension Agent. This is due to the lack of exercise and pasture time during the winter months. Horses may become bored within their stalls and as a last resort pick up bad habits to occupy their time. Some common stable vices are weaving, pawing, wood chewing and wind sucking.

Providing access to hay and a salt block may help eliminate these problems. Toys placed in a stall may also help. Stall toys may be purchased at any tack store. Be sure to read the instructions and the cautions when using. Remember prevention is the key to controlling stable vices.

The following are some preventative tips: allow as much pasture time as possible, make hay available constantly, avoid keeping a horse stalled alone and keep windows open so the horse may see out.

THE BIBLE SPEAKS

BY LAWRENCE W. ALTHOUSE

PLEASE CONFIRM!

February 1, 1998

Background Scripture:
2 Peter

Devotional Reading:
2 Peter 1 16-21

We had been to China and planned to stopover a few days in England on the way back to Dallas. Before leaving Dallas, I had called to book a country hotel about 25 miles from London's Gatwick Airport. When we got there, exhausted after a long flight and wandering the countryside trying to find the hotel, we were shocked to hear the receptionist tell us, "I'm sorry, Mr. Althouse, your reservation is for tomorrow night, not tonight. Unfortunately, we are fully booked tonight!"

This experience confirmed for me the wisdom of confirming in writing arrangements made orally. It is one of the best ways to avoid misunderstanding, disagreement and disappointment. Often, after an important conversation, I will write a letter or memo that says, "If I understood correctly from our conversation, you expect me to do the following..." Sometimes the reply tells me that we did not really understand each other.

"Confirm" has various meanings which are quite related: to establish the truth or accuracy of something, to acknowledge with definite assurance, to ratify, to make firm or more firm, and to corroborate. I believe the writer of 2 Peter had all of these meanings in mind. "Therefore, brethren, be the more zealous to confirm your call and election, for if you do this you will never fall..." (1.10-italics mine).

OFFER & ACCEPTANCE

Although the person and work of God can never be reduced to a formula, the Bible seems consistent in representing the call of God as a process in which God does the calling, but we must confirm our acceptance of that call. I remember from my college classes in business law that to every contract there must be "offer" and "acceptance." If an offer is made but not accepted in some way—a word, an action—there is no contract.

So it is in our relationships with God. God makes the offer, you and I must respond with the acceptance. Without our confirmation that we have accepted the grace of God, the call of God, the salvation of God, to put it in simplistic terms, there's no deal!

I'm sure that this is nothing you don't already know. I know it, too, but I sometimes forget it. So 2 Peter is saying to his readers: "Therefore I intend always to remind you of these things, though you know them and are established in the truth that you have. I think it right, as long as I am in this body, to arouse you by way of reminder." (1.12,13)

ARE YOU CONSISTENT?

I am currently reading a book about the Apostle Paul. The author questions the authenticity of Peter's experience (Acts 10) with Simon the Tanner at Joppa because later, Paul was critical of Peter for avoiding eating with gentile Christians. The author says that if Peter had had this revelation about gentiles from God in Acts 10, he would not have acted as reported in Galatians 2. Admittedly Peter in Galatians 2 is not consistent with Peter in Acts 10. But where does it say that people always (even usually) have to act consistently?

I do not and I rather imagine that you do not either. I know better and try to live by what I believe, but there are times when I lapse back into behavior which is not consistent with the best I know. Does that not happen to you, too? Would you agree that our problem is not in knowing what to do, but in consistently doing what we know to be true? So, like those to whom 2 Peter is addressed, we need to be reminded of what we already know.

I believe it was Emmet Fox who wrote about a man who was offering courses in spirituality—a beginner's course and an advanced course. Everyone signed up for the advanced course. What the man eventually told his students was that there was really no difference between the two courses. The beginner's course was based upon the principles of a spintual life and the advanced course was about putting into practice the principles of the beginner's course.

We do not need the revelation of any more "secrets" or "advanced courses" in following Jesus Christ. We know all the basics. What we need to do is simply confirm God's call by putting those basics into practice.

Growers Seeking Alternatives To Methyl Bromide Fumigation

COLUMBUS,Ohio — The loss of methyl bromide as a soil fumigant has many high-value fruit and vegetable growers worried, but the solution could be a simple switch, said Ohio State University processing vegetable specialist Mac Riedel.

There are several soil fumigants available or being developed that serve purpose as methyl bromide, and genetic resistance, crop rotation, organic amendments, nonfumigant fungicides, steam, solar heating, plant breeding and other cultural practices are possible replacements, Riedel said.

Riedel will discuss fumigation and alternatives at 10:45 a.m. Thursday, Feb. 5, as part of the Strawberry Short Course at the 1998 Fruit and Vegetable Growers Congress in Toledo.

Methyl bromide is a pesticide used to control fungi, weeds, nematodes, insects, pathogens and rodents in agriculture, stored and transported commodities, quarantined commodities imported to a country, and fumigated buildings. In the United States, about 27,000 tons of methyl bromide are used annually, with 87 percent of that amount used in agriculture, primarily as a soil fumigant. U.S. crops that use the most methyl bromide are tomatoes (24 percent of total use) and strawberries (16 percent of total use).

As a soil fumigant, the chemical is injected 12 inches to 24 inches deep to sterilize the soil before a crop is planted. This practice eliminates nematode, fungi and soil disease threats and allows for higher yields and more uniform crops, Riedel said. However, 50 percent to 95 percent of the methyl bromide injected into the soil eventually enters the atmosphere and is believed to be responsible for 5 percent to 10 percent of the current worldwide ozone depletion.

As a result, in 1994 as part of the Clean Air Act, the U.S. Environmental Protection Agency prohibited the production and importation of methyl bromide in the United States beginning Jan. 1, 2001.

High-value vegetable and fruit crops – tomatoes, peppers, strawberries, raspberries, and vineyard or orchard replants of grapes, apples and pears – are the most affected by the phase out of methyl bromide. Methyl bromide fumigation is expensive, often costing at least $2,00 per acre, so fumigation hasn't been an economical option for lower-valued crops such as corn, soybeans, potatoes, wheat or others, Riedel said.

"But depending on the type of organism a grower is trying to control, finding an alternative to methyl bromide could be easy," he said. "The practicality of alternatives all depends on the operation."

A good crop rotation scheme can control fungi and nematodes. For example, radishes are toxic to the root knot nematode, which would benefit a crop following it in rotation. Different crops included in the rotation will control different problems, Riedel said.

"I'd recommend using cultural practices to replace methyl bromide use, but if they don't work there are chemical alternatives," he said.

Chloropicrin, also used as tear gas, is a fumigant that will remain available after methyl bromide is phased out. Soil fumigation with Chloropicrin also costs about $2,000 per acre.

Scientists are experimenting with non-ozone threatening methyl bromide replacements that, if approved, could be fairly simple alternatives. Methyl iodide has looked good controlling pathogens in tests, but its cost to growers is still unknown, Riedel said. In 1995, the United Nations Methyl Bromide Technical Options Committee concluded that alternatives exist or are at an advanced state of development for more that 90 percent of methyl bromide use.

The 1998 Fruit and Vegetable Growers Congress is being held Feb. 4 to Feb. 6 at the Toledo SeaGate Centre in conjunction with the Roadside Marketing Conference and, for the first time, with the Ohio Grape-Wine Short Course.

For registration or additional information about the Congress or Roadside Marketing Conference, those interested should contact the Ohio Fruit and Vegetable Growers Association at (614) 249-2424. USDA Fruit Researcher Featured

GLASSBORO, N.J. — Dr. Steve Miller, fruit researcher at the USDA Appalachian Fruit Research Station in Kearneysville, W. Va., will discuss management practices that improve fruit tree efficiency at the southern New Jersey fruit meeting on Feb. 18.

Miller, who will also discuss tree fruit research activities at the station and how they can help New Jersey tree fruit growers, will be one of 15 speakers at the one-day program at Masso's Crystal Manor in Glassboro, N.J., accordiong to Jerome L. Frecon, chair of the program.

"Researchers for Rutgers Cooperative Extension of the New Jersey Agricultural Experiment Station will focus on integrated pest management," Frecon said. "Dean Polk will review key tree fruit pest issues with his colleagues and discuss the cost of damage by pests and control practices. Dr. Norman Lalancette will address management strategies to control brown rot in peaches, and Dr. Peter Shearer will bring growers up to date on the status of registrations and use of organic phosphate and carbamate insecticides."

Research on ground cover management in peach orchards will also be discussed by Polk. A unique integrated pest management marketing program studied by Polk in Italy will be discussed.

Dr. Bradley Majek will bring growers up to date on weed and groundcover management in orchards while Dr. Joe Heckman will discuss the importance of orchard liming on tree fruit production.

Pesticide applicators for New Jersey will receive units in core and the categories PP-2, 1A and 3A. Dr. George Hamilton will discuss adjuvants and spreader stickers and their role in pesticide application.

Other topics of interest will be topics on chemical thinning by Dr. Robert Belding, and presentations on new and exciting peach and apple varieties by Dr. Joe Goffreda and Frecon based on research and evaluations. Progress reports will be presented on the activities of the New Jersey Promotion Council and the New Jersey Peach Council.

A registration fee will be charged for the full day program which will include a buffet luncheon and apple variety displays and other displays by commercial exhibitors. Information can be obtained by contacting the office of Rutgers Cooperative Extension, 1200 North Delsea Drive, Clayton, NJ 08312, (609) 863-0110, or the New Jersey Horticultural Society, P.O. Peach Industry One Horticulture Conference Topic

Association of Pennsylvania. The association held its meeting concurrent with the Pennsylvania Vegetable Conference and Trade Show.

Where South Carolina used to ship 100 loads of peaches to national markets in a day, last year there weren't 200 loads in any given week, noted Walker. Based on USDA statistics, California shipped 68 percent of the total fresh market peaches in 1997 compared to only 10 percent for South Carolina, nine percent from Georgia, five percent from New Jersey, and eight percent from other states.

California's peak shipping week ended July 19 when it shipped 1,023 loads. From June 14 to Aug. 9, California shipped more than 700 loads each week. During the period, California growers shipped 7,915 loads.

To compare, the "Appalachian Area," designated by USDA as Maryland, Pennsylvania, Virginia, and West Virginia, shipped 118 loads the week ending Sept. 6.

Walker spoke about the overall health of the southeastern peach industry.

"It's not healthy," he said. "Where it's going will depend on the weather."

For the past several years, growers have been hit hard by late frosts cutting into the yield and quality of peaches.

Although there were some frost-induced failures in 1997, growers still harvested a modest crop.

In 1983, South Carolina was hit by a frost and only harvested about 95 million pounds. The past season, producers harvested about 160 million pounds on 16,000 acres.

The number of acres has dropped significantly in a decade, from 40,000 acres in the mid 1980s. And the packing houses have gone out of business — 21 in the last 15 years. Today Georgia has eight packing houses and 11 remain in South Carolina.

Stores are demanding product for consumers that has more consistent color, measures a consistent 2½ inches in size, has good overall shape, with fruit that is cold hardy, has good flavor, contains no bacterial spotting, is more round, contains a small suture, and other factors.

For South Carolina, April can have some treacherous growing nights, when freezes can repeat a Growers learned about the importance of nematode control in orchards to prevent disease by Dr. John Halbrendt, Penn State.

Dr. Joseph Goffreda, associate professor and director of Rutgers Fruit Research and Extension Center at Cream Ridge, N.J., spoke about the history of white peach varieties and how they are being grown and sold today.

few times in a row, damaging crops.

Because of chilling, one grower told Walker that the "first of season" fruit market is no longer there. Now, the normal five- to six-week window stretches to 6-8 weeks and beyond. And growers aren't getting $18-$25 for the first box of fruit like they used to, Walker noted. There is no difference anymore between the first and last box.

More and more retailers are demanding that fruit be supplied in 25-pound boxes (38-pounds for the undersize or culled material). The 25-pound boxes are considered half a bushel.

Retailers are pushing hard for price look-up (PLU) stickers, which make some producers cringe because of the increased labor in applying the stickers.

The National Peach Council (NPC) works hard for the industry to lobby for issues important to growers. In 1997, NPC, accompanied by peach growers from six different states, made three trips to Washington to lobby officials. Issues debated were purchases of fresh frozen freestone peaches, changes in crop insurance for producers, peach research funding, methyl bromide and the Clean Air Act, Guest Worker Program, Mexican quarantine of U.S. peaches, and Legal Services Corporation.

"We're developing a little bit of traction and impact in Washington," Walker said.

The council numbers 426 and is seeking 1,000 members by 2002. However, it needs members from Mid-Atlantic states to continue programs vital to the industry. To become a member, contact NPC at 12 Nicklaus Lane, Suite 101, Columbia, SC 29229, (803) 788-7101.

Peach Panel

At a producer panel later that day at the state horticulture meeting, noted growers reflected some of the frustration felt by the impact of California peaches on markets in the East.

John Lott, president of Bear Mountain Orchards in Aspers, grows more than 600 acres of fruit in Adams County. He mentioned how aware growers are of the "20 million boxes of fruit" marketed by California growers.

"California will continue to exhibit a constant presence," said Lott.

However, Lott noted that it shouldn't be so.

"We're an overnight drive to 60 million people," he said.

Growers in the East, including the Mid-Atlantic states, have the population density — and the consumers — necessary to buy quality peaches.

Lott noted that a large market for his business includes specialty stores. Many want a "tree-ripened, fuzzy peach," he said, with that "homegrown, farm look." He uses ½ bushel wooden crates and 38-pound containers for undersize peaches.

Retailers want that big, 100 percent red peach, he noted. Customers don't want poor interior condition for the peaches and off-flavors.

The business, Lott said, markets peaches for 25 different local growers. Fruit is placed into ½ bushel crates and cooled quickly and properly stored.

Lott noted that the correct temperatures to keep peaches are between 31-32 degrees, not 45 degrees. "Forty-five degrees is the death of the peach," he said, causing browning and shriveling. If ripening is needed, the temperature should be 70 degrees. "It's important to maintain a cool chain throughout the distribution," said Lott.

Dr. Norm Lalancette, Rutgers Cooperative Extension fruit pathology specialist, noted that unlike brown rot, fire blight and phytopthora can kill entire trees.

At the panel, one grower noted the importance of looking for alternative packing methods because cardboard absorbs moisture and leaves a shriveled, dry peach. Plastic-coated cardboard boxes used to work well but can't be recycled.

For the peach itself, consumers prefer flavor and cream coloring, which they often consider more important than size.

Another grower, Jack Bream, Ortanna, maintains 500 acres of apples and about 150 acres of peaches and nectarines.

Bream said, "I have a rule. Never ship a warm peach."

Bream indicated that he packs peaches measuring 2½ inches and greater and the "ups" in 25-pound boxes, to get premium prices for the boxes. The culls and smaller are packed in 38-pound boxes.

A key to success for growers would be getting the commitment from the buyers early enough in the season before the season starts. Getting growers "together to plan for this will firm up the local market," said Bream.

Buyers want a large, firm, red peach. It's important to "research new varieties to pick a winner," he said.

Another grower on the panel was Doug Zee, president of Zee Orchards in Glassboro, N.J. About two-thirds of his crop is packed in 25-pound and another one-third in 38-pound containers.

Zee noted that growers should consider the right materials and have "adequate packing supplies," he said.

It's important for growers to maximize profits. "You're not there to feed the world for free," he said.

Like Bream, Zee noted that it's important to cool the peaches down quickly, so he makes use of plastic bins, which cool faster than wood.

By improving thinning methods, despite last year's drought, the orchard was able to obtain fruit sizes of 2½ inches and larger.

Zee noted he was concerned about growers who pick too early, providing peaches to consumers that look like "limes." Many of those customers will simply walk away and never buy a peach again.

According to Charles Walker, managing director of the National Peach Council, Columbia, S.C., California will ship about 750-770 million pounds of peaches this season, nearly double the amount of a decade ago. Peaches will be hauled to store shelves in the Southeast and Mid-Atlantic, where traditionally seasonal crops in the heart of summer from local growers dominate displays.

Bill Heritage, general manager of Eastern Propak in Glassboro, N.J., spoke about the company's 100,000 square foot warehouse, providing two cold storage facilities. In season, the company packages nectarine and peaches for about 10 members in south Jersey. In the winter, they package imported fruits for markets.

Moderator for the panel was Jerry Frecon, ag agent with Rutgers Cooperative Extension in Gloucester County.

Marketing Crucial

For many growers, the managing director of the National Peach Council noted that marketing is essential.

"I like big ads, big displays, and hot (low retail) prices," said Charles Walker, who also spoke Wednesday afternoon at the horticulture meeting.

"If I can have all three of these, it's ideal," he said. "If not three, then two out of three."

display ads in local newspapers, the "more you feature, the more you can sell," he said.

In-store sampling and other cooperative methods work to increase the sales of product. But stores need also to do a better job to get to the consumer right at the beginning of the season.

Walker provided a slide show of a wide array of national supermarkets that prominently displayed peaches for sale.

Peach Disease Challenges

On Wednesday at the conference, growers found out about disease challenges and how to combat them.

Dr. Norm Lalancette, Rutgers Cooperative Extension fruit pathology specialist, noted that unlike brown rot, fire blight and phytopthora can kill entire trees. As a result of research into how phytopthora operates, researchers have come up with a way to save trees from the dangerous root cankers that ultimately kill trees — by using what he calls "peach tree chemotherapy."

In essence, the roots are treated to intravenous (IV) fungicide treatments, "like chemotherapy to people," said Lalancette.

The disease can be easily identified by poor terminal growth, sparse and small leaves, undersize fruit, off-color fruit, overall tree decline, and eventual death. The disease can readily strike trees that are 3-5 years old. Trees display crown rot and overall root decay.

Factors that influence whether a tree will fall to phytopthora include the presence of the pathogen in the soil, the susceptibility of the plant, and the environmental conditions.

Also, there are 10 different species of phytopthora.

There are disease-resistant rootstocks for some peach trees.

The spores are in the soil and cool weather conditions increase plant susceptibility.

To prevent disease infestation, growers should select soil that is well-drained. By placing the trees on raised beds, the root and trunk can stay well-drained. Proper irrigation management is key.

New orchards should be soil fumigated.

Lalancette worked with three regional orchards to come up with ways to manage phytopthora: Donio Farms, Inc., Zee Orchards, Inc., and Mt. Pleasant Orchards, Inc. They looked at infections of plants last spring and looking into the use of the "IV" fungicide treatments.

The research raised questions for growers: Should the trees be left to recover? Should the IV be used to help revive the trees? Or should growers, considering the cost of the IV treatments, simply cut their losses and repopulate the orchard if phytopthora is found? More work is needed to address those and other issues.

White Peach Varieties

Also at the meetings, Dr. Joseph Goffreda, associate professor and director of Rutgers Fruit Research and Extension Center at Cream Ridge, N.J., spoke about the history of white peach varieties and how they are being grown and sold today.

Goffreda provided an overview of several varieties being grown at the center. They include:

- White Lady, a highly colored, very firm, 90 percent red over cream ground variety that is mild, with low acid flavor, very firm, and which ripens after Redhaven.
- Crimson Snow, a white freestone nectarine that ripens after Redhaven. The nectarine has 90 percent red over cream ground and is firm and fresh.
- Saturn NJF2, peen-tao type (donut-shaped), which ripens after Redhaven. The fruit has 70 percent red over cream ground with great flavor, softens fast, and is difficult to thin and pick. It has high bacterial spot resistance and tends to overcrop. It has a small blossom scar.
- Blushing Star (FA18) ripens two weeks after Redhaven, is 80 percent red over a cream ground, medium size, firm, with slight bacterial spot resistance.
- Sugar Lady, ripe a few weeks after Redhaven, is 90 percent red over cream ground. This is a fleshy, mild, "very attractive" peach, noted Goffreda.

Other varieties include Scarlet Pearl (USDA), Sugar May, ArticGlo (nectarine), Southern Pearl (USDA), Rose Princess (USDA nectarine), Sugar Giant peach, and Lady Nancy peach.

Some experimental varieties are:

- K39-1, a heterozygous SH, a few weeks before Redhaven, with 90 percent red over cream ground, short pubescence, with slight bacterial spot resistance, but good eating quality.
- D80-8, a crossbred of NJ318XH3-76, a better stony fruit, 75 percent red over cream ground, short pubescence, firm texture, exceptional fruit quality, and moderate bacterial spot resistance.
- K56-4 nectarine (B8-9-46X Eastern Glo), available one week before Redhaven, very attractive, 85 percent red over cream ground, small-to-medium size, with a moderate level of bacterial spot resistance.
- L1-37 (NJ293XJing Yu) OP, available one week before Redhaven, 80 percent red over cream ground, short pubescence, very good bacterial spot resistance, and firm.
- NJ312 (NJ 293XJing Yu), ripens with Redhaven, 70 percent red over cream ground, softens fast, good texture.
- NJ318 (NJ256XBiscoe), available three weeks after Redhaven, 60 percent red over cream ground, softens fast, large size, good bacterial spot resistance, and perhaps a peach for the roadside market.

Some additional varieties:

- LF-112 (Jefferson X7-28) OP, an SH-type, available just before Redhaven, 75 percent red over cream ground, very crunchy, very hard, slight bacterial spot resistance, stays very firm.
- L2-42 (NJ293XJing Yu), SH-type, after Redhaven, 80 percent red over cream ground, nice appearance, flavor mild to bland.
- J19-19 (RR53-272X7-28), SH-type, two weeks after Redhaven, 70 percent red on cream ground, short pubescence, with a sweet, mild flavor.

Nematode Control

Also on Wednesday, growers learned about the importance of nematode control in orchards to prevent disease by Dr. John Halbrendt, Penn State. Nematodes, which are parasitic worms, result in replant problems, loss of vigor and yield, are virus vectors, and create all sorts of problems for growers.

Nematodes, particularly the Dagger Nematodes, can upset the peach plant's normal hormonal balances. They are efficient vectors of plant viruses that can cause serious problems even in low numbers, said Halbrendt.

Growers can fumigate soil, which goes a long way to controlling the pest. There are chemical, genetic, and biorational methods to controlling the pests.

One biorational method involves the use of allelopathic plants that have naturally produced nematicides in them. They include marigolds, velvetbean, asparagus, sesame, and brassicas or rapeseed.

Experiments indicate that the use of sudangrass and sunflower in combination as a green manure produce, while decaying, enough nematicides to control the nematodes.

The green manure produces the glucosinolates necessary to poison the nematodes. He noted that, when people eat hot mustard, the "pungency" they taste is from the glucosinolate.

Someday, it may be possible to select and breed for crops with increased allelopathic activity. Green manure is showing some promise to help lower the nematode risk as well as control weeds, erosion, and promote overall tree health.

Volunteer Corn Could Pose Challenges

ANDY ANDREWS
Lancaster Farming Staff

GUTHRIESVILLE (Chester Co.) — Voluntary corn — corn seeds shed from an ear that pop up like weeds the following season, hurting good corn yields — is already a problem in Pennsylvania.

But if farmers aren't vigilant in their field management of new Roundup Ready varieties, the genetically enhanced, herbicide-resistant corn can pose additional challenges as volunteer corn when fields are rotated to soybeans.

When using the Roundup Ready varieties, "use good planning and thinking and remembering, or you're going to wind up with a real mess," said John Yocum, Penn State Southeast Extension Center Research Station manager in Landisville.

Yocum spoke to about 80 producers and agri-industry representatives Tuesday morning during the Penn State-sponsored Chester County Crops Day at the Guthriesville Fire Hall.

Roundup, a widely used all-purpose herbicide, will not kill Roundup volunteer corn, Yocum noted. The best management strategy is to keep careful records of what crop will be rotated and to use agronomically recommended products that work on the herbicide-resistant varieties of the volunteer corn that sprouts.

Several applications could end up doing the job, but it's important to use proper management. And it's important to note that some cross-pollination could occur to make non-resistant varieties resistant when the corn re-emerges as volunteer corn.

Additionally, Yocum spoke about new and updated products that are available to growers this year. He also spoke about herbicides that are pending EPA registration. Yocum noted that the herbicide "price wars" going on will benefit growers, especially for soybean products.

Prices are coming down more than half, the research station manager noted.

Yocum indicated several products new for the market this year, including Accent Gold from DuPont, an alternative to atrazine, containing Accent and Hornet for broad spectrum control of broadleaves and select grasses; Aim 40DF from FMC, a postemergence contact-type herbicide; Balance 75WDG from Rhone Poulenc, a preemergent herbicide replacement for atrazine, offering control of broadleaf weeds; FieldMaster 4.25L from Monsanto, a broad-spectrum herbicide for the 1998 season; Pinnacle 25DF from DuPont, an early postapplication herbicide for corn; and Spirit 57WG from Novartis.

Yocum also noted that Roundup Ready corn will be available in limited supplies (about 1 million acres nationwide) from Dekalb. There will only be 2-3 hybrids for this region.

He also provided some corn herbicide updates. For soybeans, there are three new products: Authority Broadleaf 56.3DF from FMC and Canopy XL 56.3 DF from DuPont, preemergent material that controls Eastern Black Nightshade; FirstRate 84 WDG from Dow AgroSciences, formerly Dow Elanco, used pre- or postapplication for broadleaf weeds; and Steel 2.59E (American Cyanamid), a premix

Amanda DeSio Is State Fair Queen, Bev Gruber Named Fair Person

HERSHEY (Dauphin Co.) - Amanda DeSio, McKean County Fair Queen, was crowned the 1998 Pennsylvania Fair Queen at the 12th state coronation last week in conjunction with the Pennsylvania State Association of County Fairs annual meeting in the Convention Center. Amanda is the seventeen year-old daughter of Gerald and Kathy DeSio of Kane.

Forty-three contestants who had been first place winners at their local fairs competed for the honor. The contestants, ranging in age from 16 to 21, were judged on an essay, a five- minute speech on "Why You Should Come to My Fair," a personal interview, and evening gown competition.

Named runner-up was Jessica Watson, Lebanon Area Fair Queen. Her parents are Jeff and Laura-Jean Watson, Kleinfeltersville.

The queen is currently a senior at Kane Area High School and plans to begin college next year to major in psychology and sociology. Some of Amanda's school activities include National Honor Society, student council, choraliers, orchestra, jazz band, marching band, and majorettes. She is the SADD president, Spanish club secretary, opinions editor of the school newspaper, and this year founded the high school's first literary magazine. She has twice won the title of Intermediate Unit 9 experienced debate champion and was chosen for an honorable delegate award at the 1997 Penn State Model United Nations. Outside school, she takes dance classes and assists in teaching dance lessons. She is a radio announcer at WLMI-FM in Kane and is working with the local family center on a new youth center. Some of the charities she has volunteered for are the Crop Walk and American Heart Association. She enjoys playing violin and piano and writing poetry.

Amanda received $1,500 in scholarships and was also named Miss Congeniality by her peers.

Jessica answered the impromptu question "How would you convince a business person of the importance of sponsoring an event or exhibit at your fair?" by saying that youth are very important. "Youth are our future, and what better thing than to invest something in our youth. I would just encourage them to help in that way, to be able to help in a young person's life.

Jessica is homeschooled and takes courses at Lancaster Bible College and F&M. Her awards include Bronze PA Discover Card Tribute, 1995 Myerstown Voice of Democracy, 1996 Lebanon County American Legion Essay Contest, WCTU Diamond Speech Medal, semi-finalist 1995 Miss PA Teen USA, listed in Who's Who American High School Students for three years, and 4th runner-up Miss PA Teen Sunburst. At the National 4-H Congress, she was on the leadership team and a soloist. She sang in sign language for the National Association of County Ag Agents.

At the 1995 & '96 PCC/PSU Summer Institutes, she won awards for talent, speech, and quizzing, and was selected to attend NICE where she served as vice-president and sales manager of the co-op. Her activities include co-directing "Joyful Noise," leading music at Youth for Christ, acting in "Martyred, the Chet Bittterman Story," a TV role on "Pete's Place," teaching dance, directing musicals, and singing.

The other finalists were Tiffany STahl, Greencastle, Franklin County Fair Queen; Cassie Croner, Berlin, Somerset County Fair Queen, and Carolyn Davis, Lititz, Elizabethtown Fair Queen.

Another highlight of the annual convention is the naming of the 1998 Fair Person of the Year. Well-known for her community efforts this year's winner is Beverly Gruber, New Tripoli.

Gruber is owner/manager of SCS Management, a multi-association firm that has clients such as the Pennsylvania Livestock Association and the Pennsylvania Campbrounds Owners Association. She is also the public relations director of several county fairs.

But maybe her best known work has been promoting the state fair association. In the early '80's Bev worked as project coordinator for Venango County Small Business Information Project in Oil City. She is a former home economist in the Venango County Agriculture Extension and a home economics teacher in the Allegheny-Clarion Valley High School.

Beverly has been involved in the Grange and the Farm Bureau. Of special interest is her work with the Allentown Fair, the Schenecksville Community Fair, the PA Fair in Philadelphia County Park, and the Venango County Fair.

For more than 30 years she has been involved in the Pennsylvania Farm Show and the Keystone International Livestock Exposition. To her credit, she has visited 106 of the 113 fairs in Pennsylvania plus 25 fairs in other states, including California, Alaska, and Florida.

In accepting the award Beverly said,"It is always gratifying to be recognized by your peers. This is especially true in an industry you have enjoyed and worked in for a lifetime. I can only thank those people who have worked with me in our efforts.

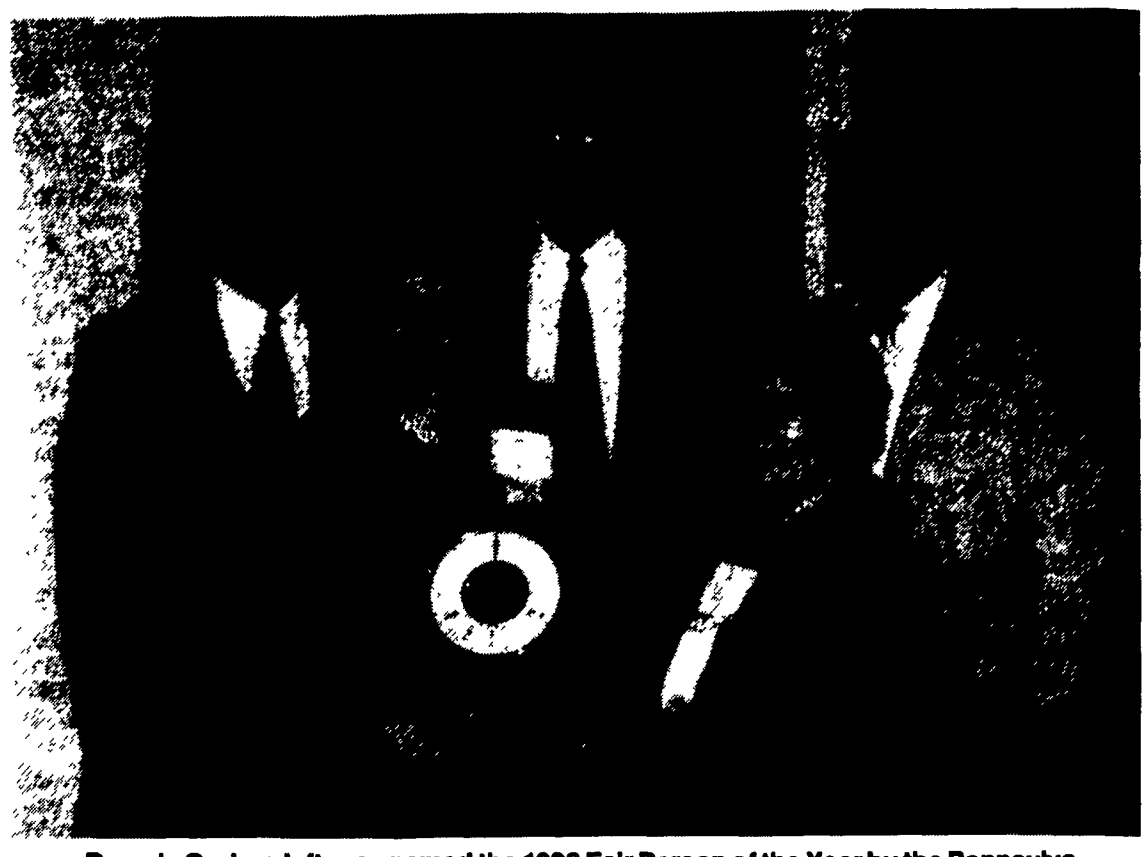
In other awards the following winners were named: Premium Tabloid, first, Hookstown Fair; second, Washington County Fair; third, Elizabethtown Fair. Also winning were Premium Book, first, a tie, Elizabethtown Fair and Greene-Dreher-Sterling Fair, second, York Fair, third, Albion, Harford Fair and West End Fair.

Other winners were Video (amateur), first, Hookstown Fair and second, Fayette County Fair. Scrapbook winners were first, Elizabethtown Fair, second, Warren County Fair and third, Spartansbug Fair. Promotional Materials winners were first, York Fair, second, Greene-Dreher-Sterling Fair and third, Hookstown Fair.

Fair Display winners were first, Denver Fair, second, Kimberton Fair and third, Centre County Fair. Best Overall was Elizabethtown Fair.

Judges for the queen pageant included Betty Dale, Bellwood; Mary Ann Keith, Huntingdon, and Edward Buss, Fogelsville. Attendance at the Fireman's Banquet Friday evening was 1020. At the coronation luncheon attendance was 650.

Amanda will represent the 112 fairs across Pennsylvania for the next year.



Beverly Gruber, left, was named the 1998 Fair Person of the Year by the Pennsylvania Association of State Fairs at the annual meeting last week. Fay Fulmer made the presentation. Bev's sons Clay and Brett Snyder and her husband Henry join in presenting the honor.

ARMPPA Presents Case

cost of production. According to Kinsman, any increase in price will be negotiated in a phased-in effort through local MAIC's with handlers or cooperatives that have the proper ratio of assets to liabilities. The agreements will be in place before a price is announced. Contracts will be negotiated for a six-month period.

The basis for the belief that this organization of farmers can succeed at this time is the belief that regardless of statistical reports there is no surplus of milk in the nation. The goal has been set to capture control of 20 percent of the milk at the farm level. ARMPPA officials believe the diversion of this milk to handlers who are in need of milk to keep their plants running, or even the threat of this diversion, will be enough to get him a higher price, maybe even without changing handlers.

To get started, Ken Boll, ARMPPA's marketing manager, was quite forthright at the meeting about what needed to be done. "If you have a contract, you need to get out of it so you can be free to move milk when we get a better price," he said. "If you are shipping to an organization that will not take your milk without a contract, sign up with an existing MAIC before you make the break so you will still have a milk market if they cut you off."

Here is where the wagon wheel hits the manure pile for many farmers. The point where action must be taken. The point where each farm family's present personal security of a milk market is weighed against the future right to bargain for and move milk to where the best price can be obtained.

Apparently many in the local Amish farm community have already weighed the alternatives and decided to join ARMPPA. In a phone call to Lancaster Farming Thursday morning, initiated by an Amish farmer in the Ronks area who had been at the meeting, this farmer said about 400 of the dairymen present at the meeting had already signed up at other meetings and were there to simply show support for the movement. According to this source, many more signed up at this meeting, and he estimated that by now, 85 percent of the farmers at the meeting were members of ARMPPA.

The movement has almost taken on an emotional, religious fervor. In the meeting's opening invocation, a reference was made to David and Goliath.

George Donnon, a Rising Sun, Maryland, farmer, who hosted the meeting along with his wife Debbie, spoke of the small percentage the farmer is getting out of the "$31 per hunderd weight the consumer is paying in the store."

Boll talked of the farmer's need to be the primary receiver rather than a "residual recipient."

Paul Prozak, a farmer from Wisconsin who spoke at the meeting for the association, said ARMPPA is strictly a pricing organization without any intention of owning milk plants. "The only objective is to narrow the layers of business between the farmer and those plants that buy the milk. Power is the milk in the bulk tank, and we have a right to set a price on it. We know the milk prices have been in the basement. But we have enough members in this room to start setting our price right now."

Kinsman said he had visited many European countries in the last 12 years. "These farmers keep telling me to keep our farm economy strong because if it fails, the whole country's economy fails," Kinsman said. "From experience they say that it takes 300 years to get the country's economy back. When the farm economy is healthy, the total economy is healthy. This is the right time to move on this because of the lack of milk supply almost everywhere."

Commodity Conference Examines Challenges Farmers Face

LOU ANN GOOD
Lancaster Farming Staff

GRANTVILLE (Dauphin Co.) — The tough challenge farmers face to lay plans to meet changing government regulations, fickle consumers, industry mergers, and participation in world markets was tackled at the Commodity Outlook Conference. Sponsored by the Pennsylvania Farm Bureau, the day-long conference was held both in Dauphin and Indiana counties this week.

Because future success is measured by two major rules: consumer demand and how farmers react to the rapid changing and totally unpredictable market, the Farm Bureau brought together a group of experts to help farmers examine the issues amd develop a positive vision.

Dr. Luther Tweeten, economic professor at Ohio State University, said that he can predict with certainy that the 1988 market will bring many changes to agriculture industry.

It is important to look at world trends because agriculture changes are determined by global happenings and not limited to what happens in the state and nation, Tweeten said. The past also plays a role.

Diagrams charting production yields for cereal, vegetable, melon, dry beans, roots and tubers for the past 25 years, show a consistent increase. At the same time, the diagrams reveal a slowing of growth. For example, in 1961, the annual percent of growth in cereals was 3.20 percent. In 1996, the growth rate had slowed to 1.51 percent despite the population increase.

Cereal, Tweeten said, is the most important crop because it provides about half the calories for all the people of the world and is a key item in food supply.

This increase in yields but slowing of percent of increase shows a consistent pattern for all commodities. He sees no basis for optimism if the trend continues.

On the demand side, the slowing down in percentage of crops is offset by the slowing down in the percentage of population.

"For centuries the population has increased, but a turn-around in that trend will have a profound impact on agriculture.

Projections from several reliable sources predict there will be zero population growth by the year 2100 and some predict it as early as 2030.

In 1961, yield increases were higher than population demand, farm prices fell, and surpluses were stockpiled.

By the year 2000, yields will probably be below the increase in demand, which is good news for farmers but not consumers since this translates into higher food prices.

The food shortage will mostly affect people in countries where the food supply is already tight.

"We do not have government playing a stabilization role as in the past. I think those days of carryover are over," Tweeten said, although he predicts the government will maintain some payments after 2002, the safety net for farmers will be more to rely on reverse insurances than on government intervention.

Tweeten doesn't see the government's lack of involvement in stabilization as having a highly negative impact.

"We are getting back to a more normal situation of earlier decades. Variability is consistent with earlier decades. While a drought may drastically reduce corn production in one area, it is balanced out by other areas."

Tweeten sees an inherit instability in the market from global warming, higher yields, and percentage of deviation.

"Instability is the number one problem of production agriculture," Tweeten said.

He was not encouraging on the outlook of small family farms.

"Family farms would disappear in a generation if not for generous mothers and fathers," Tweeten said.

He said that statistics prove there is more profit for factory-type farms. "Larger farms produce food at lower cost. The statistics on this are startling."

Sec. of Agriculture Samuel Hays Jr. vows to defend the farmer's right to farm.

Farms are considered commercial size when they produce $100,000 in sales annually. Tweeten considers these farms will profit in the future as long as they are managed well.

While there are pressures to expand farm size, Tweeten said that other forces must be taken into consideration.

In particular, he forsees the odor problem becoming more offensive to the non-farming community that will refuse to tolerate smells. While it can be expensive for small farmers to control odors, a study shows that a large hog operation could correct the odor problem in a manure lagoon for as low as ten cents a head.

"Large operations have all the advantages," he said.

The two percent decline in family farms a year will continue.

"Small farms can survive but will need off-farm income," he said. The drawback is that farmers will become weary of subsidizing a hobby farm and sell out.

During lunch time conversation, several farmers of small family farms were not discouraged by Tweeten's prediction of the family farm.

"It has worked for us in the past and it will continue to work," an Amish farmer said of the help that parents give to children beginning to farm.

Tweeten display statistics showing that livestock production is moving to the cornbelt. Tweeten expects this trend to continue because the cornbelt has open spaces and low labor costs.

As far as trade exports, Tweeten said that American can compete favorably with the world market as long as unfavorable regulations are not imposed on them.

America's food supply is the safest in the world, which makes it attractive to buy. Some countries have a problem trying to pay for all they want to buy. In some cases, extending credit to them will pay off in the long run as they a more stable economy. A case in point, he said, is Mexico, which has repaid with interest the money loaned to them during their economical upheaval.

"We want to keep a vested interest in these countries," he said.

He sees exports to the Asian market as short-run pain and is optimistic about the long term rewards.

On the other hand, he said that some countries such as Africa will probably never be a reliable source because they need to get their governing policies in order; otherwise, it's only dumping money.

In a fiery speech, Secretary of Agriculture Sam Hayes Jr. promised to work earnestly to protect farmers' opportunites to produce more than ever before. He said that in a great rush of enviromental judgement, Pennsylvania had forced steel and textile industries to relocate. He vowed to keep that from happening to agriculture.

"Agriculture must be a profitable reward for your hard work, management, and risk taking," Hayes said.

Hayes, who has traveled extensively to Poland and many countries, spoke of how he believes American farmers fit into the trade picture.

He told of visiting a 300-acre dairy farm run under the Communist regime when more than 700 employees were milking 200 cows. Since the fall of the Communist regime, Hayes visited the same farm now using 15 employees. While these countries are making strides to improve managing farms, Hayes believes it will be a long time before countries, which were formally communistic, will be able to crawl out from what he calls "a painful bomb crater—economically, socially, and politically.

Hayes said many dissimilarities exist in Asian countries. It is important to look at each country differently and concentrate on relationship building time to develop markets.

While Australia and New Zealand are serious competitors in the Asian market, Hayes said that he has been told repeatedly that countries prefer our products. Unfortunately the cost of transportation is formidable.

While farmers are in "an export mode," Hayes cautioned them to not forget home, since the state itself is the number one consumer.

During the afternoon, members broke into groups for a more in-depth look at the commodity in which they were interested. The dairy session was led by Dr. Kenneth Olson, public policy dairy specialist with AFBF. Dr. Mark Jenner, economist for AFBF, led the poultry commodity group. The livestock session was led by David Miller, commodity and program coordinator for AFBF.

Richard Prether, public relations manager for the Farm Bureau, said that the commodities conference was held to revitalize commodity groups within the organization. "Participation by farmers is the best way to get information to farmers," he said.

About 150 members attended the Dauphin County conference held on Wednesday and 100 members attended the Indiana County conference held on Thursday.

Dr. Luther Tweeten, economic professor at Ohio State University, said that he can predict with certainy that the 1988 market will bring many changes to agriculture industry.

California Jersey Produces/1,990 Pounds Fat

REYNOLDSBURG, Ohio – A new United States Jersey production record has been set for fat production, making 1997 the year that milk, fat, and protein records for Jerseys were broken.

BW Champs Lou W546, VG-84% produced 26,620 pounds Milk, 7.5 percent 1,990 pounds Fat, 4.5 percent 1,206 pounds Protein in 365-days at 4 years, 11 months of age, on 3X milking.

The new fat leader was owned by Brentwood Farms, Orland, Calif.

This record breaking cow did not receive special treatment in Brentwood herd. After completing her outstanding record, "Champs Lou" died one week after calving from complications of a hardware operation.

Said Bob Bignami, of Brentwood Farms, "She left us with a Stoneyrun Sooner Freddy and WF/L&M Duncan Booker calves. Though she was never pictured, she was sharp and clean with tremendous box capacity."

"Champs Lou" was a daughter of Champion, a son of Highland Magic Duncan, PTI + 196, and M.G. Master MC Lou, EX-95%. Champion has a PTA of +.11% Fat, and has sired a number of high-testing daughters.

Another Champion daughter, BW Champs F203, ranks third for all-time fat production with 1,951 lbs. and was the 1995 All Amercian grand champion cow.

The previous top fat record of 1,976 pounds was set in 1996 by GR J-Kay Nevada Babette.

In fall of 1997, a new United States milk production record of 365 days 3X 38,030 lbs. milk 4.6% 1,732 lbs. fat 3.5% 1,333 pounds, protein DHIR V was set by Queen-Acres Boomer Celeste owned by James L. and Sharon L. Osborn, Keymar, Md. In addition, a new protein record was set by Barbs MBSB Dayetta-ET, with a 365-day record, at 3.6, of 35,910 lbs. milk 4.0% 1,439 lbs. Protein, and 4.0% 1,451 lbs. protein, verified.

According to Bob Bignami, owner of Brentwood Farms, "Champs Lou" was just a regular cow. "She had always been a good, steady producer, but we never paid extra attention to her," Bignami, said. Bignami noted that herd consultant John Batchelder noticed her record and told him, "Here's one that might do something." That something was to test 7 percent for fat on all but one of her months in production.

The Brentwood herd average 17,291 lbs. milk, 838 lbs. fat and 650 lbs. protein on 551 lactations, 3X milking, in 1996. That ranks them fourth in the nation for protein and milk production, and fifth for milk production, in herds with 300 records and over.

Gov. Ridge Releases Funds For Penn State Projects

HARRISBURG (Dauphin Co.) – Calling Penn State University one of the gems of Pennsylvania's network of institutions of higher learning, Gov. Tom Ridge recently released nearly $3 million in state capital budget funds for projects at two Penn State University campuses.

Ridge released $1.82 million for renovations to Penn State's Animal Diagnostic Laboratory and Incinerator at the University Park campus in State College. The facility's renovations and construction will include additional laboratory space and improved bio-security features.

Ridge also released $1.14 million to replace the underground heating system at Penn State's Harrisburg campus.

The announcements are part of Gov. Ridge's $200 million capital funding commitment to Penn State over the next five years.

Ridge said the animal lab improvements "will help meet the regional demands for animal diagnostic services. Combined with the recent national accreditation of the Pennsylvania Animal Diagnostic Laboratory System, the commonwealth is becoming significantly better suited to help our state's livestock farmers to provide consumers throughout the world with high-quality, safe products."

The Pennsylvania Animal Diagnostic Laboratory System is a unique cooperative agreement between Penn State University, the University of Pennsylvania and the state Agriculture Department. This system incorporates the professional and scientific expertise of the two universities' departments of veterinary sciences with the resources of the Agriculture Department's Bureau of Animal Health and Diagnostic Services and the Animal Health and Diagnostic Commission.

Ridge said the Harrisburg campus heating system is deteriorated beyond repair and is in a state of imminent failure. The new system is designed to provide service to the existing complex, as well as accommodate future expansion.

Ridge also praised Penn State head football coach Joe Paterno and his wife, Sue, for committing $3.5 million to Penn State to endow faculty positions and scholarships and to support two building projects.

"The Paternos' pride in Penn State is know throughout the commonwealth and the United States," Ridge said. "Joe and Sue have demonstrated their support of Penn State over the years, and their remarkable pledge today speaks volumes about their commitment to Penn State's mission."

Ridge noted that last year the Paternos donated $250,000 for the Paterno wing of the Pattee Library at Penn State's main campus.

DeKalb Introduces New Corn

DEKALB, Illinois – Officials at Dekalb Genetics Corporation are excited to announce the introduction of 12 new corn hybrids.

These new conventional hybrids just released are in addition to 15 previously announced new specific-trait corn products (STPs) Dekalb will offer for the 1998 planting season.

The new STPs include five new Roundup Ready® corn hybrids, six new Dekalbt™ hybrids, three new IMI-Corn® hybrids, and a Roundup Ready®/YieldGard® stacked-trait corn hybrid.

"Our research team is doing exactly what the Dekalb mission statement calls for, providing customers with quality products and services to increase their productivity and profitability," said Ken Rickenberger, director of seed marketing. "Dekalb's unparalleled productivity of both our conventional breeding and biotechnology research programs are providing farmers with exciting new elite germplasm and more choices to combat specific pests."

Pennsylvania Junior Holstein Convention

The 1998 Pennsylvania Junior Holstein Convention will be held February 6-8, 1998 at the Holiday Inn, Uniontown PA The Junior members of the Southwest District have put together an excellent program of education and fun for Juniors of all ages

The facilities at the Holiday Inn include an indoor swimming pool and many activities in the Holidome Recreation Area Some new activities this year will include the "Holstein Feud" Contest, the all new Speech Contest plus the Dairy Bowl Contest

Educational opportunities will include workshops on heat detection and breeding cows including hands-on work with reproductive tracts and getting a "feel" for breeding cows

The tour on Saturday will include a visit to the Chrisien Klay Winery This 215 acre winery includes the vineyards and processing room The gift shop will have grape juices, cheeses, etc for purchase and sampling

We will hear the top speeches delivered on Saturday night and enjoy a dance to end an action-packed day on Saturday

At the Awards Program on Sunday we will present awards to Juniors in many contest areas including Distinguished Junior Member and Scholarship winners Kurt Angle, a 1996 Olympic Gold Medalist will speak to us about his preparation for Olympic Competition and how it helped him prepare for his future

Plan to join the Southwest Juniors and find out why "We're So Great, We Couldn't Wait" and be in Uniontown February 6-8th

An Update On Selenium

I continue to receive inquiries about selenium from cow, goat and sheep farmers, so an update seems in order. If you live in one of the following areas of the United States, you live on selenium-deficient soils; Delmarva, New England, New York, New Jersey, Delaware, Pennsylvania, Maryland, West Virginia, Florida, Ohio, Indiana, Illinois, Michigan, Wisconsin, Washington State, Oregon, and the coastal regions of Virginia, Carolinas and Georgia (see figure 1). Dairy farmers in these areas should be concerned about supplementing their animal feeds and, possibly, treating animals with selenium to prevent the symptoms that occur as the result of subclinical and clinical selenium deficiencies.

Selenium is also found in excess of the needs of healthy plants and animals in certain spotty areas of the northwestern and midwestern United States (figure 1), especially on desert soils. As rainfall increases, it produces in soils selenium deficiencies for plants and animals, although water itself is a poor source of selenium.

Human needs for selenium are supplied mainly by plant foods, but also, to some extent, by seafood and certain meats. While selenium serves some industrial use, its primary use is in the prevention of selenium deficiency in animals and people.

Selenium-deficiency symptoms in livestock (and primates) include cataracts, underdevelopment of blood and lymph systems, loss of hair, weight loss, weakness, lack of growth, liver failure, skin disorders and reproductive failures (usually in females, but also abnormal functioning in semen). In chickens, reduced egg production, less hatchability and degeneration of the pancreas also occur.

Selenium is an essential element for normal health and functioning of farm animals, and its necessity has been documented for human nutrition in 1976, including a possible role in aging, anticarcinogenic properties and blood clotting.

Crops will be low in selenium when grown in areas with low selenium contents in the soil. People living mainly on crops from such areas are at risk for low selenium intake. Research with selenium supplementation to malnourished children resulted in significant weight gains. Within the United States, low levels of selenium have been found in breast milk and in babies' blood serum selenium contents from mothers living in areas with low selenium crops and soils.

Selenium contents of cow, goat or sheep milk are hard to estimate from food content tables or textbooks, in part because of variability, depending on feed and food contents. Selenium is readily excreted in milk, thus milk contents are good indicators of the nutritional selenium status. Selenium should be part of baby formula, food and feed supplementation. In addition, vitamin E and selenium

Mt. Joy Cooperative Reports Good Year

EVERETT NEWSWANGER
Managing Editor

MOUNT JOY (Lancaster Co.) - Quoting increased milk production, increased membership, and decreased expenses, officials of the Mount Joy Farmers Cooperative Association pronounced the 1997 year excellent and successful. Figures released at the annual meeting Wednesday showed the cooperative had increased the pounds of milk shipped by 16 percent over the previous year, bringing the total to 298,510 pounds. Membership increased by 22 or 12 percent, and operating expenses declined by six cents per hunderweight or almost 10 percent.

The cooperative continues to redeem the revolving fund certificates of equity held by the patron members on a five-year rotating basis. The overall equity investment by the average patron is 11 percent less than the average four years ago.

The average milk price for the year was $13.94, down from $15.22 last year but still third high of the last five years. In the final teenth month" check was $13.14.

In 1993 operating expenses were 72 cents per hundered weight, but by this year expenses had been reduced to 61 cents per hundered weight.

Awards were presented to those members that had 12 consecutive month of quality premiums. They are George and Joe Rohrer, Strasburg; Leon Musser, Mt. Joy; Ira Heistand, Jr., Elizabethtown, and Glenn Barnhart, Palmarya.

Inspection honor roll recipients with 95 or better points for farm inspection, in addition to the premiums were: Christ Breneman, Manheim; Ken Balmer, Elizabethtown; Lawrence Good, Myerstown; Glenn Martin, Mohnton; price listing after deductions, the net farm price was $13.13, the second highest in five years. The "thir- Dave Harnish, Gap, and Leroy Hoover, Leola.

Their producers shipped over seven million pounds. They were Brubaker Farms, 9,802,656; Star Rock Farms, 7,245,367; and John L. Landis, 7,212,689.

Among those who received honor roll awards at the Mt. Joy Farmers annual meeting are from left, Ira Heistand, Jr., Glenn Barnhart, Dave Harnish, Ken Balmer, Christ Breneman, and Leon Musser.

In the election of directors, Donald Risser, Elizabethtown, and Robert Brandt, Elizabethtown, were elected for three year terms. Donald Stoner, Landisville, was elected to finish the unexpired term of Dale Hershey, who has been named to assist Earl Dehmey, with fieldman's duty.

The Mount Joy Cooperative currently markets milk for 201 dairy farms throughout South Central Pennsylvania. They market milk exclusively through Dairylea Cooperative headquartered in Syracuse, New York. The milk is shipped to the local Kemps plant in Lancaster.

York Holstein Club Reorganizes

YORK (York Co.) — A spring barn meeting and tour are among several events in planning for members of the York County Holstein Association.

The association's board of directors has reorganized and begun scheduling the year's line-up of interesting and educational activities for members of the breed organization. Officers elected during the reorganization are Leroy Bupp, Seven Valleys, president/ April Cooper, Delta, vice president; and June Boyer, York, secretary-treasurer. Frank Feeser, Hanover, is the club's state director. Other directors include Jenelle Boyer, Glen Rock; Ed Calhoun, Glen Rock; Cindy Hall, Airville; Dan Hushon, Delta; Roy Thompson, Wellsville; and Brad Walker, Thomasville.

Tentative plans include a March tour, possibly in conjunction with another county, is there is interest among the membership. An April barn meeting is under consideration, to coincide with Holstein classification in the area, at a site to be announced.

Annual county show date is tentatively July 29, in conjunction with the 4-H summer dairy roundup, at the York Fairgrounds. A summer picnic is planned for August, at a host Holstein farm in the county.

York County members sold 32 cases of Cheddar cheese prior to the holidays, generating more than $700 for work with youth, promotional and educational Holstein programs. Members of the York Holstein board elected to support youth work at the state level with a sponsorship of one of the youth show trophies at the All-American show in September.

York County Holstein members who have not yet paid their 1998 joint dues to the state and county associations are encouraged to send them as soon as possible.

Bonson's Awarded Friends of 4-H Plaque

GAIL STROCK
Mifflin Co. Correspondent

STRODES MILLS (Mifflin Co.) – Usually, organizations present awards to shakers and doers in the forefront. Usually. This time, however, the Mifflin County 4-H Junior Leaders awarded the Friends of 4-H plaque to a Mifflin County couple for their behind-the-scenes service since the 1960s! Neither Howard (Son) nor Betty Bonson has ever served directly as a 4-H club leader. But each has contributed greatly to the 4-H program.

The Bonsons accepted the Friends of 4-H Award at the Mifflin County 4-H Leaders' Recognition Banquet held at Hartman Center in Milroy in November. At their stone farmhouse in Strodes Mills near Lewistown, Son and Betty talked about 4-H and changes over the years.

"I've been involved with the youth fair since before our children were born," Son begins. Their daughter Rebecca is 34, son Mark is 31. "And I'm still with it!"

He remembers in the 1960s when fair exhibits at Kish Park near Lewistown consisted mainly of capons, clothing, pigs, potatoes and poultry. Steers and dairy projects were added later.

In 1964, when the fair outgrew the Kish Park facilities, Reed Hayes donated land in Reedsville for the Mifflin County Youth Park. Son helped build the Mifflin County Youth Park buildings that year while "the women kept us fed!" Son has also served on the Mifflin County Youth Park Board since its inception. The first fair at the Youth Park took place in 1965.

Betty has been clerking the livestock sale for 32 years. Both she and Son have served on the Mifflin County Fair Board and have watched 4-H membership grow over the years.

"The livestock sale on Friday nights has been growing tremendously," comments Betty. "This year, it went from 6 until 11 p.m. We sold 13 rabbits, 10 goats, 51 sheep, 129 pigs and 47 beef for a total of nearly $93,000. The goats and rabbits were added just recently."

While Son and Betty have been watching 4-H grow over the decades, they've been watching other changes too, most of them favorable. They agree that newer clubs such as ceramics, archery, child care, photography and cake decorating give more choices to more children.

"Years ago, only farm kids joined 4-H," Son explains. "Now town children join. It's good. It gives them something to do. Very few 4-H kids get in trouble with the law."

One explanation may be that by joining 4-H, youth agree to abide by its rules and regulations. Participants must attend a specified number of meetings, complete a project and project book, or they don't show. And because of these club requirements, one thing has never changed. 4-H still teaches responsibility.

It's good to see 4-H'ers develop into responsible citizens," Betty reflects.

The Bonsons agree that Mifflin County 4-H programs have a good group of leaders, although more are always needed.

Son and Betty began dairy farming in 1946 on a 160-acre farm purchased from her parents. Son started breeding cows part time in 1945. In 1967, he left dairying to breed cows full time. He became Mifflin County's Dog Law Enforcement Officer from 1980 until 1995. They rent the land and dairy facilities to the Lee D. and Joanne Yoder family. Together with Yoders, the Bonson farm received the Mifflin County Soil Conservation Cooperator of the Year Award in 1993 and the Goodyear Award in 1994.

Betty began clerking in the assessment office at the Mifflin County Courthouse in 1975. She helped with payroll and then became Assistant Chief Clerk in addition to her payroll responsibilities. She retired this past July. She and Son enjoy going to all of the Penn State home games and to public sales.

DAIRY MANAGEMENT COLUMN

should be considered together; supplementing the one usually helps with deficiencies of the other.

Selenium deficiencies in cattle, sheep and goats result in degeneration of muscle (especially the heart muscle), general stiffness, loss of hair, separation of hoof tissue, liver and pancreas damage, laying-down, death, mortality of newborn calves, interference with normal growth and reproduction, retained placenta, impaired immune function, slow recovery from uterine and mammary infections, and increased susceptibility to mastitis.

Research has shown that supplementation with selenium and vitamin E can reduce — even prevent — mastitis, because of their essential role in the mobilization of leukocytes against pathogenic invasions. In several studies, supplemented heifers had significantly fewer mastitis infections at calving and during lactation, with shorter duration of the infection and lower somatic cell counts than unsupplemented control heifers. Cows fed supplementary selenium at 6 milligram per day had more rapid recovery from E. coli infections.

Recommendations, therefore, have been made for dry cows to receive 3 milligrams selenium plus 1,000 units of supplementary vitamin E per day; milking cows need 6 milligrams selenium and 300 to 500 units vitamin E per day. Generally, selenium plus vitamin E treatments (injections) to dry animals — that is, pregnant animals — has been considered safe. Occasionally I hear of abortions in goats, so use caution.

Generally, forages are not good sources of vitamin E because of storage loss. Forages will also be poor sources of selenium in the northeast and mid-Atlantic regions, and in those states listed above. In addition, only about 40 percent or less of fed selenium is actually absorbed by cattle, because of the interfering influence of some digestive factors and ingredients, especially calcium and a few other minerals.

Therefore, it is necessary to supplement with trace-mineralized salt blocks or mineral self-feeders, with long-release rumen boluses, with fortified concentrate rations, or with intramuscular injections. Injections usually offer only short-term benefit. A popular practice in recent years has been the routine commercial fortification of concentrate rations at a rate of 0.14 milligram per pound (0.3 parts per million), equivalent to the normal daily needs of dairy cattle with average concentrate intake. This is a legal limit, according to the Food and Drug Administration, and it is recognized that selenium is toxic when taken in excess.

The range between safe minimum and maximum contents of other essential microelements in feeding ration dry matter is, in many cases, at least tenfold; for example, iron, manganese, copper, zinc, iodine. In the case of selenium, it is 50 times that — between 0.045 milligram and 2.27 milligram per pound.

Some years ago, the Food and Drug Administration recognized the legal supplementation limit of concentrate rations at the rate of 0.045 milligram per pound, because of the widespread selenium deficiency in U.S. soils and the demonstrated benefits in reproduction and mammary health of dairy animals. This limit was eventually raised to the present 0.14 milligram per pound level for greater (and still safe) preventative benefits.

So-called "white muscle" disease, the best known selenium disorder, can be cured by a supplementation of 0.045 milligram per pound ration dry matter (0.1 parts per million) selenium in the form of sodium selenite. For long-term treatment other than in feed or by injection, the use of forestomach heavy pellets, glass boluses, or osmotic pumps has become common for ruminants in some countries, especially Australia. In New Zealand, where the soil is selenium-deficient, fertilizer amendment to increase forage selenium levels has led to acceptable animal health. Sodium selenate rather than selenite is used, because if is more readily available for plants. Fertilizer application of selenium eliminates the individual animal treatment.

In our knowledge of animal and human nutrition, the subject of selenium is relative young, about 25 years old. We need much more research to understand better how selenium functions in the human body and in what amounts. When farm-grown feeds are tested for nutrients before formulating a suitable dairy ration, no routine analyses for selenium are included. Therefore, while we know precisely how much our dairy animals eat in protein or fiber or energy, we do not know precisely what they actually eat in terms of selenium.

Also, we do not know how much selenium usually is excreted in milk, while we know very well how much fat, protein, lactose, total minerals, or even calcium or phosphorus are in our milk. We only know that we are supplementing with a certain, presumably safe, amount of selenium based on average feed intake data. But what about those dairy animals that eat more than the average amounts of supplemental concentrates? It will be important to the income of our farmers to pay renewed attention to this subject.

Pork Expo Feb. 11

NORTH CORNWALL (Lebanon Co) – The 20th annual Keystone Pork Expo will be held Feb. 11 at the Lebanon Valley Expo Center at the Lebanon Fairgrounds.

This year's meeting will feature a trade show with more than 40 exhibits, and educational seminars for producers.

The Expo will once again sponsor a "Pork Bowl" contest and public speaking competition for competing FFA and 4-H members.

Greg Andrews, an attorney from Grimes, Iowa, will speak on nuisance complaints and law suits. Andrews represents clients and coordinates the Pork Producers Environmental Law Education Network, a project funded by the National Pork Producers Council. He will answer questions on nuisance law, zoning, and environmental regulation of the Pork Producers Environmental Law Hotline. At the Keystone Pork Expo, Andrews will address legal issues, community relations, how to avoid lawsuits, and strategies producers should develop if they are sued.

Doug Goodlander, Bureau of Plant Industry, Pennsylvania Department of Agriculture, will provide highlights of the recently implemented Nutrients Management Act. Many livestock producers had to comply with the new regulations on Oct. 1, 1997. For some farmers, there are questions that remain regarding the new law.

Lou Moore, Penn State professor of agricultural economics and continuing Pork Expo favorite, will be on hand to deliver his hog market outlook.

At 1:30 p.m., results of the seventh annual Legislative Activity Fund Auction will be announced. This year, all items will be sold by silent auction.

Keystone Pork Expo programs will be available in mid-January in most county extension offices.

U.S. Ag Secretary Responds To Call For Hearings On Price Floor

SPRINGFIELD, Mo. — Leaders of Dairy Farmers of American Inc. (DFA), today said they were extremely pleased at the announcement by Secretary of Agriculture Dan Glickman, that the USDA would honor a request by Mid-America Dairymen Inc. (one of four cooperatives that recently consolidated to form DFA) to hold emergency hearings on a proposal to floor the Basic Formual Price (BFP) for Class I and II milk at $13.50. Mid-America Dairyman Inc. (Mid-Am) made the request to Secretary Glickman in a letter dated November 26, 1997.

"Dairy farmers across the nation are suffering financially because milk prices are not sufficient to cover production costs," said DFA president and chief executive officer Gary Hanman. "We feel very strongly that the $13.50 BFP floor for Class I and II prices is needed to assure dairy farmers of a reasonable return for their labor. The $13.50 floor is a fair price for farmers and should not translate to a significant increase for consumers."

Reacting to the Secretary's announcement on reforms to the Federal Milk Marketing Order program, Hanman said the new pricing formula should make milk prices at the farm gate less volatile and reduce the huge price swings that dairy farmer have experienced in the last two years.

"DFA economists are analyzing the impact of the department's proposal to reduce the number of federal market orders from 31 to 11," he said. "We see this as a positive step, but we will be looking more closely at where they drew the lines to see how the new Federal marketing orders will impact pricing for dairy farmers."

Likewise, Hanman said DFA is analyzing the two options Secretary Glickman presented for determining Class I differentials. "We are studying the market impact on various areas of the country to see which one is best for our members in the long term," said Hanman. "Once we've completed our analysis, we will communicate our recommendations to the USDA prior to the March 31 deadline."

Dairy Farmers of America began operation on January 1 with the consolidation of four dairy marketing cooperatives: Associated Milk Producers Inc. (AMPI), Southern Region; Mid-America Dairymen Inc. (Mid-Am); Milk Marketing Inc. (MMI); and Western Dairymen Cooperative Inc. (WDCI). The new cooperative has 22,000 members in 42 states. DFA markets more than 38 billion pounds of milk, supplying bottling and manufacturing plants that produce a complete line of dairy products for consumers in the United States and around the world.

Hong Kong Avian Influenza Update

The following article was written largely from an article prepared by Dr. Charles W. Beard with the U.S. Poultry & Egg Association

Human influenza situation in Hong Kong

The death of a child in Hong Kong in May 1997 from an avian influenza virus (H5N1) was the beginning of what has become a series of highly publicized announcements and events. Since that first death, there have been 16 confirmed cases and five suspected cases of this H5N1 avian influenza infection in people with at least four deaths.

At the same time, chickens in Hong Kong were experiencing high death losses to a highly pathogenic avian influenza (H5N1).

Concern of public health experts

Public health experts are concerned that this H5 influenza virus may be the cause of the next worldwide epidemic (pandemic) of human influenza. The two previous introductions of new "H" serotypes into humans occurred in that part of the world. The "Asian flu" was caused by an H2 virus and began in 1957. In 1968, an H3 virus began the "Hong Kong flu." epidemic and variations of that H3 virus have been the major cause of human influenza since that time. When a different "H" subtype emerges as the cause of human influenza, severe disease and death losses can occur because no one has residual immunity to the new "H" (H5 in this case) from vaccination or past infections. Additionally, the high death rate of H5N1 has forced concern over the potential impact of a pandemic caused by this virus.

Reports have indicated that at least some of the infected humans had been in contact with sick poultry afflicted with avian influenza. Both the human and chicken H5N1 viruses have been shown to cause severe illness and near 100% mortality in experimentally exposed chickens (work done at the USDA Southeast Poultry Research Laboratory in Athens, Georgia).

Potential impact on poultry

If the Hong Kong H5N1 initiates a worldwide pandemic in humans, there is the real possibility that infected and virus-shedding poultry caretakers will infect their poultry flocks. At least one human isolate has experimentally been shown to be highly lethal for chickens. Based on the experiences in Hong Kong with chickens and laboratory results, the virus would likely have a more devastating effect on commercial poultry flocks. Biosecurity measures would be of very little benefit because infected caretakers would be a probably mechanism of H5N1 virus introduction into the flocks. Biosecurity could, however, reduce the secondary spread from the flocks initially infected.

Protection of genetic stock and breeders with vaccine

If the worse case scenario happens and a human pandemic results, the poultry of the world (turkeys, layers and broilers) will be in grave danger. This includes the genetic stock and breeders. If the poultry industry were to lose the majority of its genetic pool it would have a lasting effect with probable negative effects on the world's food supply.

For the reasons cited above, since biosecurity cannot be totally relied upon to protect these valuable flocks, the only recourse will be vaccines. If the flocks have been immunized against fowlpox, the fowlpox vector vaccines will likely be of no value. That leaves inactivated vaccine prepared either from virus-laden embryonating egg fluids or from the recombinant baculovirus-insect cell culture system.

It will take many months to produce and administer the vaccine needed to protect the genetic stocks (foundation stock, great-grandparents, grandparents). After this group is protected, the multiplier parent flocks for the three types of poultry should be next, followed by table egg layers, turkeys, and lastly broilers. The fowlpox vectored vaccine can be utilized for birds not previously immunized for fowlpox once the vaccine is demonstrated in the laboratory to result in adequate protection against the Hong Kong H5N1. page 4 of 6

Drug treatment of poultry flocks for avian influenza

Experiments conducted at the Southeast Poultry Lab (Beard, et al.) clearly demonstrated that the highly pathogenic H5N2 virus used to experimentally infect chickens quickly became resistant to the anti-influenza drug amantadine. For that reason, it does not appear to have any potential for use in commercial poultry. That experiment is being repeated with the H5N1 virus at the Southeast Poultry Research Laboratory to confirm the earlier finding.

Embryonating eggs for human vaccine production

If the decision is made to provide H5 vaccine for the world's human population, it will utilize a very large number of fertile eggs at the 9th or 10th day of incubation. The use of embryonating eggs to produce the vaccine is the most likely method in that the newer methods such as the baculovirus-insect cell culture probably can't meet the huge demand for vaccine.

The only source of fertile eggs beyond the supplies currently utilized for vaccine production will be eggs from broiler and layer parent flocks. I don't believe that specific pathogen free (SPF) eggs are required to produce vaccine for humans as they currently are for poultry vaccines.

The dramatic increase in demand for fertile eggs for vaccine production adds to the significance of protecting breeder flocks with vaccines.

Consumer concerns about poultry products

Reports indicate that poultry consumption has declined significantly in Hong Kong. Consumers more page 5 of 6_are apparently afraid of becoming ill with influenza from consuming chickens. Since the live bird market is a major means of poultry distribution in Hong Kong, it may be that some consumers also want to avoid contact with live poultry.

There is no indication that the highly pathogenic Hong Kong H5N1 exists in the United States. Because of the severe disease and virtual 100% mortality it causes, it is very doubtful that it could exist in poultry flocks without being readily detected by ordinary observation.

The Hong Kong authorities reportedly stated that the 1.2 million poultry in Hong Kong were destroyed because they believed they were the source of the human influenza cases.

Because of the severe signs of disease and dramatic mortality in infected poultry, it is difficult to imagine that a flock infected with H5N1 would be caught and transported for processing in the U. S. The ante and post mortem inspection of birds at the plant makes the entry of an infected flock into the food chain very unlikely. As a final safeguard, ordinary cooking readily kills influenza virus. In the first analysis, it appears highly unlikely that the consumption of chicken will have anything to do with the infection of humans in the U. S.

Destruction of chickens in Hong Kong

There was public outcry over the killing of poultry in Hong Kong. Without depopulating a live bird market, it is impossible to clean and disinfect it. Authorities wanted to remove the live bird market as a probable source of H5N1 influenza for humans. The first step in any such program is to destroy and dispose of the birds that may be infected with or exposed to the virus. Had such steps not been taken, it is likely that the birds would have eventually died of the disease.

Hopefully, they will be able to remove all virus from the live bird markets and assure that only H5N1-negative flocks contribute birds when the market reopens. Reports indicate that the Chinese are screening their flocks so that they may assure their negative H5N1 status.

Avian Influenza in Pennsylvania

The 1997 virus that initiated the General Quarantine of poultry in Lancaster County Pennsylvania was the H7N2 serotype. While the quarantine was lifted in November of 1997 recent isolates of low pathogenic H7N2 in chickens and waterfowl (December 1997) will warrant further monitoring.

Summary comments

The initial response to these recent events is to suspect there is overreaction. However, the horrendous consequences of an H5 pandemic in people with a virus that has behaved like the H5N1 in Hong Kong justifies overreaction rather than underreaction. Many of the concerns and suggestions contained in this document have been communicated to Dr. Aronoldi, administrator of veterinary services, APHIS, USDA. She has scheduled a meeting for the week of January 5, 1998, to begin discussions.

Hopefully, the H5N1 issue will pass and no significant problems will develop. If the worst-case-scenario becomes a reality, thoughtful preparation and decisive action will be our only hope.

Baralfa 54 Rated High

LOGDENSBURG, N.J. – Barenbrug USA announced that Baralfa 54 alfalfa is rated at the top of the list on the latest Penn State forage trials report.

Baralfa 54 is a synthetic variety selected for exceptional yield and excellent disease resistance. Baralfa 54 is a vigorous high yielding variety with very fast regrowth after cutting. Baralfa 54 displays above average leafiness and is very persistent. Baralfa yield 7.88 tons per acre (sum of four cuttings in Penn State trials). A complete copy of all results is available at Barenbrug.

Baralfa 32 IQ was bred specifically for increased quality, and combines excellent persistence, winterhardiness, and top-notch disease resistance (DRI of 29/30) with exceptional yields (7.52 tons per acre sum of four cuttings in Penn State trials). Adapted throughout the dairy states of northern U.S. and Canada, it is a top choice for leading dairy producers who want the most out of their feed.

Dekalb Introduces Stacked-Trait Hybrid

MYSTIC, Conn. — Dekalb Genetics Corporation announces the release of the industry's first stacked-trait corn hybrid to include both Roundup Ultra™ herbicide resistance and YieldGard® Bt protection for the 1998 growing season.

The new hybrid, DK591RR/BtY, falls withing the 109-day relative maturity group and is based on Dekalb's elite, high-producing germplasm.

"Dekalb is proud to introduce this advanced technology to the industry," said Doug Roberts, Dekalb's vice president of marketing. "Now farmers will be able to protect crops from devastating corn borer damage and gain more flexible weed control through a single, stacked-trait hybrid."

Limited introductory quantities of DK591RR/BtY will be available for 1998 spring planting. Plans also are under way to include the new product in field trials and test plots during the 1998 season.

The introduction of the Roundup Ready®/Bt stacked-trait hybrid closely follows the launch of Dekalb Brand Roundup Ready corn for the 1998 planting season, and the company's introduction of Bt corn in 1997.

"Dekalb's deep commitment to research is reaping huge benefits for growers," said Catherine Mackey, vice president of research for Dekalb. "Our accelerated research, development, and production schedules have allowed us to bring these products to market at the earliest possible dates without compromising a hybrid's yield potential or any other agronomic benefit."

To develop the new stacked-trait hybrid, Dekalb researchers employed several methods that build upon the base germplasm. "The success of these products hinges on the elite base germplasm," said Mackey. "We build upon this base with other traits that provide crop protection, crop production assistance and grain quality enhancement."

Along with the release of DK591RR/BtY, Dekalb has several other stacked-trait hybrids in the development pipeline. "We're evaluating a combination of imidazolinone resistance (IMI-Corn®) and Bt protection, and another with glufosinate (Liberty® herbicide) resistance and Bt," explained Mackey. "Another unique stack that Dekalb is considering is high oil corn with Bt protection."

Garst, American Cyanamid To Collaborate

PARSIPPANY, N.J. – Garst Seed Company and American Cyanamid Company have entered into a collaborative agreement which has the potential to dramatically increase the number of IMI-Corn® hybrids available to U.S. farmers.

Corn hybrids that have been specially bred to be tolerant to imidazolinone herbicides, discovered by Cyanamid, are called IMI-Corn.

"The agreement will enhance assess to technology that is in demand, providing farmers greater flexibility in choosing effective, broad spectrum, low rate herbicides,: said Kevin Seese, Cyanamid's business director for IMI-Corn. The newest of this line of products is Cyanamid's Lightning™ herbicide, which controls key broadleaf weeds and grasses in IMI-Corn. Lightning is unique because its early postemergence residual and contact activity allows growers the opportunity for a true one-pass weed control program, maximizing corn hybrid yield potential.

As a result of the collaboration, germplasm can be quickly converted to include the imidazolione tolerant trait, using Garst's propriety gene mapping technology. Garst is recognized in the seed industry for the ability to convert parental lines of corn quickly while maintaining the germplasm's high yield potential.

"This agreement is a big step forward for the IMI-Corn program," Seese said. "Selected seed companies will now be able to provide more hybrids with the IMI™ trait. That means more corn growers will have Lightning and the other IMI herbicides as a weed control option, regardless of the seed variety which best fits their farm."

With the introduction of IMI-Corn, Cyanamid was the first to develop and launch herbicide tolerant crops developed through biotechnology and plant breeding to select naturally occurring tolerance to imidazolinone herbicides.

Loaders Built To Handle Farm Tasks

ATLANTA, Ga. – Farmhand front end loaders offer users high visibility, increased maneuverability, and premium-strength steel construction to hold up during the daily "bump and grind" of farm chores.

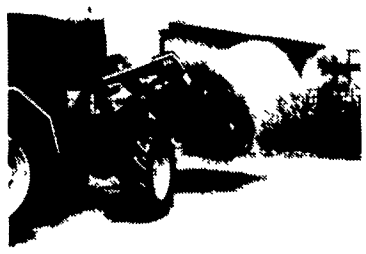
"In addition to maneuverability, rugged construction is required to match the variety of tough jobs loaders are asked to perform around the farm," said Richard Rose, marketing manager, Farmhand. "That's why all Farmhand loader arms are formed from 50,000 psi yield-strength steel.

"Premium construction also gives each loader a longer working life," he said. The 2,22, 520, 545, and 745 models feature tilt cylinders placed low on the buckets to increase efficiency during scooping and dumping operations. These low-mounted cylinders also provide maximum hydraulic efficiency. Hydraulic self-leveling cylinders also provide maximum hydraulic efficiency. Hydraulic self-leveling cylinders that improve productivity are also offered as either standard of available as optional add-ons.

Here's an overview of three mid-range models;

•GL545. The GL545 loader has a maximum lift capacity of 3,100 pounds with a lift height of 10-feet, 4-inches. It has 19 degree roll back angle and 45 degree dump angle. The breakaway force is 4,200 lbs. It has a digging depth of 4-inches, depending on front tire size. The Model GL545 works on FWA tractors up to 60 hp.

Optional two-way self-leveling cylinders that provide fast efficient leveling action during critical loading work are available.



For improved visibility and maneuverability, Farmhand introduces the GL745 loader with optional, two-way hydraulic, self leveling.

•GL745. The GL745 also has a maximum lift capacity of 3,1000 pounds and the lift height is increased to 11-feet, 10-inches. It has a 24 degree roll back angle and 40 degree dump angle. The breakaway force is 3,925 pounds. It has a digging depth of 6-inches, depending on front wheel tire size. The Model GL745 fits FWA tractors up to 90 hp. Optional two-way self-leveling cylinders are also available.

•XL945/SL945. The XL945 loader has a maximum lift capacity of 3,500 pounds with a breakaway force of 4,700 pounds and the SL945 has a maximum lift capacity of 3,600 pounds with a breakaway force of 5,000 pounds. Both units have a lift height of 13-feet, 1-inches and work on FWA tractors from 60 to 115 hp. The SL 945 features mechanical self-leveling systems to increase loading efficiency and productivity. Quick-Tach mounting and quick-change attachment coupler systems are standard for both XL945 and SL945. The Quick-Tach mounting system permits removing the loader from the tractor leaving minimal mounting brackets on the tractor.

New Python WDG Herbicide Unveiled

INDIANAPOLIS, Ind. – DowElanco has introduced a new herbicide for use in soybeans and corn for the 1998 growing season. New Python WDG herbicide offers growers effective control of a wide spectrum of broadleaf weeds at low-use rates.

Python WDG controls more than 40 tough weeds and works within various weed pressure situations across the United States. A valuable tool in southern states, growers will appreciate the fact that Python WDG is an excellent foundation for controlling cocklebur, morningglory, sicklepod, teaweed, and pigweed.

Northeast corn and soybean growers in the Chesapeake will take note of how this flumetsulam-based herbicide provides control of pigweed, velvetleaf and lambsquarters, including triazine-resistant varieties.

"In addition to controlling a broad spectrum of weeds, Python WDG gives grower flexibiltiy in application, tillage and tank-mix options at a very competitive cost per acre," said Joe Vertin, DowElanco product marketing manager. "These qualities make Phython WDG an excellent value."

The adaptability of Python WDG is evident in the way it works in all types of farming programs, whether preplant surface-applied, preplant incorporated, postplant preemergence, or spike stage in corn. And it can be used effectively in any tillage system.

Python WDG remains strong in either a conventional soybean program or in a Roundup Ready bean program. Where conventional soybeans are planted, Python WDG tank-mixed with a favored grass herbicide can provide control of a wide spectrum of broadleaf weeds and grasses.

Hereford Breeders Plan Sale

MORRISVILLE, N.Y. – The New York Hereford Breeders are making plans for their spring sale, May 9 here at the Cooperative Extension Building.

The format for the sale will be similar to last year's successful sale, with a Friday night viewing and social hour followed by the Juniors Semen Sale. The sale will be on Saturday at 12:30 p.m. with cattle being sold by Patrick Kenny.

Plans are being made to sell approximately 40 lots, consisting of cow/calves, bred heifers, yearling heifers, and bulls. These registered Herefords are being selected by the sale committee, and promises to be a great selection of the best cattle in the Northeast.

If you have some quality registered cattle you would like to consign, we still have room for a few animals. Call Bill Metch at (607) 967-3020 or Charlie Davis at (315) 662-7691 for consignor information.

Gleaner Offers More Header Choices

ATLANTA, Ga. — Corn and soybean header systems for Gleaner combines have been expanded to include more choices in harvesting crops.

Two new heads are available for harvesting: the high capacity Model 700 rigid design and the Model 800 in flex design. For corn, the Hugger corn heads feature more narrow row sizes in addition to their low-profile, 21.5-degree angle of attack that glides the unit under twisted and lodged stalks to go after every ear.

The new Model 700 is a high capacity rigid head designed to improve gathering and feeding performance and is available in 25-, 27- and 30-foot sizes. It features a 30-inch diameter conveyor auger along with 7-inch flighting and 27-inch pitch to convey material uniformly to Gleaner's Natural Flow harvesting system. Gleaner's exclusive wobble-box drive provides maximum cutting efficiently and comes as standard equipment with the Model 700.

The new Model 800 flex head, available in 15-, 16-, 18-, 20-, 22-, 25- and 30-foot widths, delivers precision cutting and uniform material handling. The new Model 800 has a lightweight pickup reel that is engineered in a tubular style to reduce wrapping when harvesting in weedy or viney conditions.

Hugger corn heads are available in 4-, 6- and 8-row "narrow" formats for 28-, 30-, and 32-inch rows and 4-, 5-, 6- and 8-row "wide" configurations to harvest 36- and 38-inch rows. Also available are 10- and 12-row sizes specially designed for narrower 20- and 22-inch rows. A large capacity 12-row unit that handles 30-inch rows is the largest corn head in the Hugger lineup.

Hugger corn heads also feature 3.5-inch removable ear deflectors, a large 16-inch diameter conveyor with an 18-inch pitch, and row units that are protected by radial pin torque limiters. New corn heads also come with standard extremity lights for better visibility during night operations.

Volunteer Corn Could Pose Challenges

for broadleaves and grassy weeds. Yocum told growers to be aware of crop rotational restrictions.

He noted some harvest aids to help with late control of weeds before harvest. They include Roundup Ultra 45 from Monsanto and Gramoxone Extra 2.5S from Seneca.

Some growers noted troubles with controlling burcucumber. For treatment, Yocum recommended using a no-till strategy with applications of Exceed and Atrazine postemergence to give season-long control.

Sludge As A Nutrient Tool

Dr. Rick Stehouwer, agronomist with Penn State, said that quality sewage sludge has more nutrient value for field crops than ordinary manure — if people can just get past their preconceived notions of what sludge really is.

In one example, sewage sludge can be applied based on an agronomic need value of 135 pounds of nitrogen per acre. The sludge has a value of 70 pounds of nitrogen per ton (seven pounds inorganic, 63 pounds organic, with 40 percent mineralization the first year).

Sludge supplies 50 pounds of phosphorous per ton and has a calcium carbonate equivalent value of 50 percent (treatment plants apply a lime slurry).

Savings can amount to about $117 per acre in combined value of all nutrients, including micronutrients, for the soil, if a producer wants to apply the material. Problem is, there are tight regulations about the official quality of the sludge, how it is applied, when it can be applied, and other restrictions.

There are three designated values to sludge: first, Exceptional Quality Sludge, which is pasteurized, non-liquid, and is treated for disease vectors (it can be "bagged and sold in K-Mart," noted Stehouwer). Second is the Non-Exceptional Quality Sludge, which is sanitized, has reduced disease vector, and has low pathogen levels. The third type is May Not Be Land Applied Sludge, which must be landfilled or incinerated.

Sludge is carefully examined at treatment sites and records are kept regularly regarding the sludge's nutrient value. It is checked for 10 trace metal and materials: arsenic, cadmium, copper, lead, mercury, molybdenum, nickel, selenium, zinc, and PCBs.

When using sludge for field applications, producers need to understand the phosphorous load in the soil, because sludge has a lot of it.

"Phosphorous will be a nutrient and environmental problem long before the trace metals will," said Stehouwer. However, it will take "400 years of annual applications at agronomic need rates to reach the cumulative loading limits," he said.

There are certain restrictions as to what kinds of crops can be grown and when after application. These were examined at the Crops Day.

Corn Types, Technologies

Also at the Crops Day, Greg Roth, corn specialist from Penn State, spoke about emerging types of corn, including Bt corn, high oil corn, herbicide-resistant varieties, brown midrib corn, and leafy corn hybrids.

Roth also spoke about the use of precision yield monitoring equipment, narrow-row corn trials, and other types of corn.

Nathan Rettig, site manager at Cargill in Marietta, spoke about the need to increase the quality of corn and keeping field matter out of the corn supplied to the elevator. He said the wave of the future is specialty grains and the grower should consider strategies necessary to grow them.

Lou Middleton, horticulture agent, spoke about field rinsing insecticide sprayers and also provided an update on the Pennsylvania Department of Agriculture survey at the Chester County Crops Day.

Avian Health Symposium Landmark Event

VERNON ACHENBACH JR.
Lancaster Farming Staff

UNION DEPOSIT (Dauphin Co.) — The first Pennsylvania avian health symposium, held Thursday at the Sheraton East Harrisburg, was hailed as a landmark event for all segments of the multi-faceted avian industry.

The entire "avian" industry was considered — not just the "poultry" industry.

Whereas the definition of poultry, and its practical use, limits it to the scope of domestic birds raised for meat or eggs, there are many other people raising and selling birds for many other reasons, and they must be included in concerns about avian health.

Almost all segments of the entire world of Pennsylvania's broad avian agriculture community were represented in some manner.

Either through a direct spokesperson, or some other form, representation at the symposium included that for the small family operation and the large production integraters raising and marketing broilers, or layers for eggs; the producers of various specific breeds and fowl for the live bird markets, and the backyard breeder of fancy fowl; as well as the small and large producers of waterfowl, game birds and exotic fowl.

After the day-long symposium, the general consensus seemed to be that the symposium has been long desired and needed, as the entire industry faces the hard fact that biosecurity and disease control must be considerations for the entire industry, not just the high production commercial segment.

Several speakers alluded to two widely held, though not necessarily accurate, perceptions within the poultry industry that have caused some polarity:

- That it's mostly non-mainstream commercial breeders and dealers, especially those who supply the live-bird markets, who are posing the greatest danger and an unacceptable risk in spreading disease, such as avian influenza.
- That the megaproduction confinement facility industry — with its particular emphases in breeding goals, and production techniques — is responsible for creating or enhancing dangerous diseases.

It was also expressed that the different types of producers have become "enemies."

By the end of the symposium, it became apparent that the entire avian industry (including those not present, such as those who deal with wildlife) must come together and become complementary, if not cohesive, forces in order to battle disease and its spread.

While there were several who expressed a desire to return to a time when it was easy to have fun with unfettered backyard poultry hobbies or sideline businesses, it also became very apparent that because of the way the Pennsylvania agribusiness and residential community has developed, that some of those niceties have had to be sacrificed, at least for now.

In broader scope, the symposium was precipitated by the fact that the human population is becoming greater and living in closer proximity to an ever-increasing population of domestic animals; that domestic poultry is generally grouped together in large numbers in confinement housing; that the locations of the poultry houses are closer together, and the overall population of domestic poultry has increased dramatically; that transportation abilities can move diseases via animals or contaminated materials much faster than government measures can detect and react to stop its spread; and that man's knowledge of diseases, especially viruses, is slight, though growing.

This has been discussed among state scientific and agricultural leaders for some time and is a major part of the reason that the state Legislature and the past two administrations recognized the importance of upgrading the state's diagnostic laboratory system to the degree of regaining accreditation.

Not only was accreditation and upgrading and modernizing facilities necessary to perform testing to help with fulfilling health requirements for selling and transporting livestock, but the tripartite Pennsylvania Animal Diagnostic Laboratory System (PADLS) was created, under the oversight of Dr. Cy Card, now retired, in order to quickly detect and respond to and control animal diseases.

The PADLS system uses the diagnostic and research capabilities of Penn State University, Univerity of Pennsylvania and the state Department of Agriculture.

This was, and is, seen as necessary to protect not just the multi-billion dollar poultry industry, but the health of all of Pennsylvania's agricultural livestock, domestic animals, wild life, and most importantly, humans.

While the symposium was held to address the wide world of avian health, it can be assumed that attendance was spurred because there were several avian influenza and poultry disease events, believed to be related, that have occured within the live bird market, as well as within the meat and egg commercial poultry industry.

There have been several outbreaks of avian influenza over the past year and more, in the south central region of the state. The outbreaks occurred in some commercial flocks as well as a dealer for the live bird market.

The avian influenza is prevalent in the New York and New Jersey live bird markets, and new regulations have been issued by the state of New York (effective Jan. 2) that have apparently created a blockade between Pennsylvania producers for the live bird market and the markets.

Further, the state Legislature approved the allocation of $5 million last year to be used by the state Department of Agriculture to help reduce the financial losses for farmers whose flock(s) had been destroyed either voluntarily or involuntarily because of positive tests for a nonpathogenic variety of the H2N7 strain of avian influenza.

The Legislature included the instruction that some research be done, and that the department report back on the situation. The proceedings of the symposium, scheduled to be prepared for the Legislature by the end of March, is to serve as that report.

Then, the findings of the symposium will be widely disseminated, according to state Deputy Secretary of Agriculture for Administration Zoann Parker, who coordinated and moderated the symposium.

Further, the state Senate adopted a resolution that called for the PDA to report back on the effectiveness of biosecurity measures, as well as to research ways to make the industry less dependent upon emergency state funds to shore it up in times of disease outbreaks.

The scope of the symposium touched upon each aspect.

However, by the end, the consensus was that several immediate actions have to be taken.

The Department of Agriculture must request that New York state relax some of its live-bird regulations, especially the requirement to have a veterinarian draw blood upon, test, inspect and certify the health of a flock of birds intended for market, within 10 days of being sent to market.

That is a virtual impossibility, not only in terms of the additional cost of having a vet do farm visits to pull blood, etc., but also because there are so few veterinarians trained adequately to treat birds, much less be able to recognize and identify the various poultry specific diseases.

All poultry producers should keep accurate records and adopt strictly followed biosecurity measures.

Some of those biosecurity measures include:

- Do not allow anyone to enter the farm, much less a poultry house, without some inspection of their vehicle and person.
- Do not allow a live-bird hauler to enter the farm lane. It was recommended that any hauler be required to park at the end of the farm lane, that the truck be inspected for dirt and manure. A suspicious vehicle or one with some manure or dirt should be sent on its way.
- Thoroughly clean and disinfect crates used to transport birds.
- Use only the farm crew, wearing "clean" (in terms of no organic residues from other sources) clothes, to load birds into crates, and then haul them to the end of the lane.
- Do one flock at a time. Do not introduce birds into a flock.

The symposium provided a great more information, for consideration by those in the poultry industry and those not directly involved, such as consumers.

For example, it was stated that, worldwide, science is still at a loss to explain from where avian influenza comes.

Science can not yet answer where and how the disease gets its start, or how it changes from a disease that causes sickness and some minor death in chickens to causing large losses, much less quickly identify and test for it.

For practical use, they did say that it appears to remain mostly active in manure, and in the birds. Maintaining control of those, and preventing contamination of fields, vehicles, and clothes, and taking precautions to not be careless in any aspect of control is urged.

Rodent control and wild bird control is also strongly urged.

There are many questions about all aspects of avian health, that leaders and officials said may never all be answered, but for the first time, the entire industry has gotten a step in the right direction to deal with the issues.

Lebanon County Plans Dairy Day Event

NORTH CORNWALL (Lebanon Co.) — Lebanon County Extension dairy and livestock agent Galen Kopp has announced some details for a Feb. 25 dairy day event scheduled to be held from 9 a.m. to 3 p.m. at the Myerstown Church of the Brethren.

The cost of the event is $5, which buys a lunch ticket. Deadline for ticket purchases is Feb. 11. Mail a check, payable to the "Extension Special Fund," to: Galen Kopp, Lebanon County Extension Office, 2120 Cornwll road, Suite 1, Lebanon PA 17042.

The lunch tickets will not be mailed, they are to be picked up at the event during registration.

The annual dairy day event is to begin with registration, coffee and donuts and time to visit commercial exhibits from 9 a.m. to 9:30 a.m.

Introductions are to be made from 9:30 a.m. to 9:45 a.m., followed by the first speaker, family counselor and motivational speaker, Jerry Shenk, who is to speak on, "Seeing through change."

From 10:30 a.m. to 11:30 a.m., Dr. James Ferguson, a researcher with the University of Pennsylvania School of Veterinary Medicine New Bolton Center, is to discuss testing for milk urea nitrogen, and its applicability as an indicator of feeding efficiency in a dairy herd, as well as potentially providing some indication of animal health, and ultimately as a tool to help farm profitability.

From 11:30 a.m. to 11:45 a.m., Jennifer Hershey, county executive director of the USDA Farm Service Agency, is to provide an update on programs and changes through the agency; while Charles Wertz, director of the Lebanon County Conservation District, is to also provide a quick update on activities, opportunities and concerns of the county district.

After lunch, from noon through 1:15 p.m., Dan McFarland, multi-county agricultural engineer with an office in York County, is to discuss heifer and dry cow management from 1:15 p.m. until 2 p.m.

From 2 p.m. to 2:20 p.m., Del Voight, county agronomy agent, is to discuss the use of 15-inch narrow corn rows.

Kopp is scheduled to talk about forage management and custom harvesting from 2:20 p.m. to 2:45 p.m., followed by a question and answer session.

For more information, contact Kopp at (717) 270-4391.

Low-Fat Means Healthful, Flavorful Meals

Eating low-fat meals doesn't mean eating bland, tasteless food. It doesn't mean giving up desserts and eating only vegetables and fruit—although fresh fruit and vegetables should certainly be a vital part of the meal.

With a little bit of know how, you can reduce your favorite calorie-loaded dessert to a healthful level and maintain the taste appeal. Low-fat substitutions of dairy products in particular are becoming tastier and easier to find in supermarkets.

When it comes to baked good, apple sauce and apple juice are excellent fat substitutes for oil and shortening. In addition, the sugar can be reduced because apple sauce and apple juice add natural sweetness and flavor to baked goods.

Some cooks substitute apple sauce for the total amount of shortening requested in a recipe; others use half shortening and half apple sauce. Experimentation works best for determining what levels of substitution is acceptable to you and your family's palette.

Of the baked goods, those that have a naturally dense texture such as coffee cakes, quick breads, muffins, spice, chocolate, and carrot cakes are the easiest to adapt. Cakes that have a light, tender texture are more difficult to modify. These cakes get their volume from the air incorporated into the batter when the butter or shortening is creamed with sugar. Eliminating fat means that the cake will become more compact. To remedy this, beat egg whites and fold them into the cake batter.

It's a good idea to substitute a whole grain flour for at least one-third to one-half of the refined flour used in the recipe. You may also use wheat bran, oat bran or oats to replace part of the flour. The fiber in these ingredients will help maintain a pleasing texture in your baked goods recipe.

Here are some more tips on how to reduce the amount of fat and cholesterol in your diet.

- Steam, boil, or bake vegetables and season them with herbs and spices, rather than serve with sauces, margarine or butter.
- Cut back on the amount of salad dressing or use low-fat salad dressings.
- Drink skim or low-fat milk instead of whole milk. Use skim or nonfat dry milk in soups, puddings, and home-baked products.
- Choose lean meat and fish.
- Trim visible fat from meat before cooking.
- Broil, bake, or boil, rather than fry meat and poultry.
- Eat poultry without the skin.
- Chill meat broth until the fat becomes hardened, then spoon fat off before using the broth.
- Eat fewer bakery items.
- Limit use of organ meats such as liver.
- Read labels. Limit foods that contain coconut or palm oil.

LOW-FAT POTATO TOPPERS

Texas Topper:

1 cup plain low-fat or non-fat yogurt
⅓ cup salsa
⅓ cup chopped stuffed green olives

Combine all ingredients in small bowl, chill until read to serve.

Salinas Valley Potato Topper:

1 tablespoon butter
½ cup chopped fresh broccoli
1 cup plain low-fat or non-fat yogurt
¼ cup shredded part-skim mozzarella cheese

Melt butter over medium heat. Add broccoli and saute until just tender. Remove from the heat, stir in other ingredients. Spoon on spud. Sprinkle with paprika.

DRY SOUP MIX

Use this instead of cream soups in casserole recipes. It has about one-third the calories.

2 cups non-fat dry milk powder
¾ cup cornstarch
¼ cup instant reduced sodium chicken or beef bouillon
½ teaspoon dried crushed thyme
½ teaspoon dried crushed basil
¼ teaspoon pepper

Combine all ingredients using blender or food processor. Store in airtight container.

To prepare as substitute for one can of condensed cream soup, stir together one-third cup dry mix and 1¼ cups water in saucepan. Cook and stir until thickened.

BAKED RAISIN FRENCH TOAST

12 slices raisin bread
1 cup skim milk
8 egg whites
¼ cup packed brown sugar
1 teaspoon vanilla

Preheat oven to 325 degrees. Spray jelly roll pan wiht non-stick cooking spray. Lay 12 slices bread on the jelly roll pan; side by side.

Beat together milk, egg whites, brown sugar, and vanilla. Pour mixture over the bread. Turn bread from side to soak up the mixture.

Bake for 27-30 minutes. Serve immediately sprinkled with confectioners' sugar or syrup.

APPLE BUTTER BUNDT CAKE

¾ whole wheat flour
1½ cups unbleached flour
2 teaspoons baking soda
2 cups apple butter
2 egg whites
½ cup dark raisins
1½ tablespoons confectioners' sugar

Combine the flours and baking soda, and stir to mix well. Add the apple butter and egg whites, and stir to mix well. Stir in the raisins.

Coat a 12-cup bundt pan with nonstick cooking spray. Spread the batter evenly in the pan, and bake at 350 degrees for 30-35 minutes, or until a wooden toothpick inserted in the center of the cake comes out clean.

Cool the cake in the pan for 20 minutes. Invert onto a wire rack and cool to room temperature. Transfer to serving plate, sift the confectioners' sugar over the top, slice and serve.

Yield: 16 servings. Calories, 146; fat, .6 g; protein, 2.9 g., cholesterol, 0 mg; sodium, 111 mg; fiber, 2 g; calcium, 12 mg; potassium, 185 mg; iron, 1.1 mg.

Secrets of Fat-Free Baking

APPLE SAUCE MAPLE MUFFINS

2 cups whole wheat flour
1 tablespoon baking powder
1¼ cups unsweetened apple sauce
½ cup maple syrup
2 egg whites
½ cup raisins or chopped walnuts

Combine the flour and baking powder, and stir to mix well. Add the apple sauce, maple syrup, and egg whites, stir just until the dry ingredients are moistened. Fold in the raisins or walnuts.

Coat muffin cups with nonstick cooking spray, and fill ¾ full with the batter. Bake at 350 degrees for 16 to 18 minutes, or just until a wooden toothpick inserted in the center of a muffin comes out clean.

Remove the muffin tin from the oven, and allow it to sit for 5 minutes before removing the muffins. Serve warm or at room temperature.

Yield 12 muffins: Calories, 130; fat .4 g; protein, 3.6 g; cholesterol, 0 mg; fiber 3.3 g; calcium, 26 mg; potassium, 188 mg; iron, 1 mg.

APPLE STUFFED PORK CHOPS

4 pork loin chops
2½ teaspoons Onion and Herb Seasoning Blend
2 teaspoons water
1½ cups peeled and thinly sliced apples
¼ cup chopped green onions
2 teaspoons Balsamic vinegar
1 tablespoon olive oil
2 teaspoons Dijon mustard
¼ cup dry bread crumbs

Cut a pocket in each chop. Sprinkle ¼ teaspoon of herb blend in each chop. Set aside and make the filling.

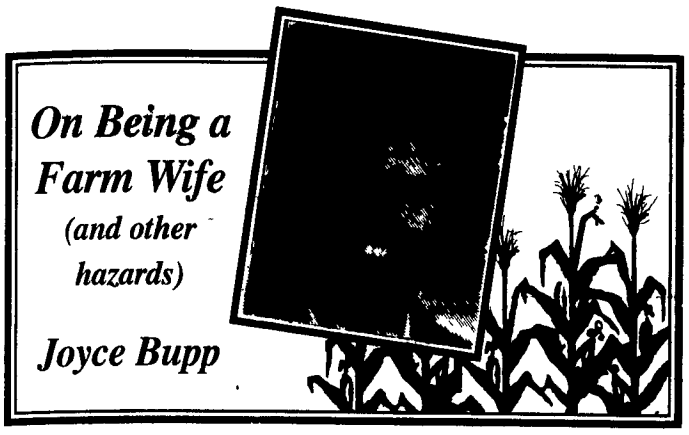
Filling: In a skillet, saute apple slices and green onions in water. Cook over medium heat until apples just start to cook and soften. Add vinegar and stir to coat. Portion into each chop and fasten meat with toothpicks.

In a separate bowl, mix together olive oil and mustard. Spread on the outside of the chops. Mix bread crumbs with herb seasong and coat the chops with the mixture. Place in shallow baking pan sprayed with nonstick cooking spray. Bake uncovered in preheated 425 degree oven for 15 minutes. Lower oven setting to 325 degrees and bake until browned and crispy, about 25 to 40 minutes, depending on chop thickness. Serves 8.

No-Fat Drizzle Sauce

3 teaspoons cornstarch
4 tablespoons low-sodium chicken broth
1 cup apple juice
2 tablespoons Balsamic vinegar

Cook in a saucepan over medium heat until thickened. Adds flavor to cooked vegetables and meats, like Apple Stuffed Pork Chops.



This column is a salute to part of the agriculture industry that we farmers probably usually take for granted.

Farm equipment dealers.

Some days, at least during the hectic planting and harvest seasons, The Farmer spends more time communicating with equipment people than he does with me. And, some days they may know what's going on more out there in the fields than I do as they help us keep our not-new equipment rolling through yet another season of heavy demand on its ever-breakable apparatus.

This time of year, the frantic fix-and-keep-working-in-the-fields pace has slowed a bit. Farmers thoughts turn toward repairing, repainting, replacing and restocking their parts inventories in anticipation of that blessed day in spring when the first seed can be plugged into the warming soil.

Equipment dealerships pose an attraction far greater than providing basic services of repairs, supplies, parts and new stuff that gives farm wives gray hairs when their farmers casually mention they've been pricing it. There's an entertainment factor well beyond picking up a half-dozen shear pins, disk blades, and hydraulic oil. It's not a costly sort of entertainment, just good ole' country conversation with other farmers. Finding out who's planting what, who bought what, who sold what, who rented what, who's trying what new, what's "in," what's "out."

When we women discuss such business of our friends and neighbors, its called gossip.

Now, equipment dealers are very savvy business people. They encourage this meeting-place mania, with stools on which to park at the parts counter, maybe a hot, full coffeepot, and an ever-impressive selection of candy bars. This time of the year, many of them go a hospitality step farther, hosting customer open-house events with early-season parts discounts, repair specials, and door prizes. Knowing that farmers love to eat, they enhance the lure with goodies ranging from chips and pretzels to bowls of hot soup and hotdogs with all the fixin's.

But the equipment dealership lure is not limited to the big boys. There are few farm kids (boys and girls) who don't jump at the chance to ride along in the pickup to fetch supplies or parts. And dream over shelves full of those toy reproductions of farm equipment for their own backyard tillage operations.

For one small boy in the giant metropolis of Portland, Oregon, the farm equipment dealership has become the ultimate childhood entertainment center. Faced with a stretch of wet, dreary weather - normal for Portland winters - his mother, in desperation, packed him and his brothers into the car one day recently and headed outside the city to the nearest farm equipment dealer. She, admittedly, was a bit homesick that particular day. At the equipment dealership, the story goes, this two-year-old "city kid" went absolutely bonkers over an entire wall filled with every kind of toy equipment imaginable.

Bottom line was that the farm-homesick mother left a considerable chunk of change at the farm equipment dealership. That purchase not only extended the small farmer's basic line of toy equipment, it also earned his mom some needed peace and quiet to pursue her home-based computer business. She figures it was a real fair return on investment.

Now she finds herself falling overall her scatter rugs which the small farmer repeatedly snags for his "fields." The very same problem I used to have with the little farmer's uncle - who carried away my rugs for the same purpose over 20 years ago.

Is this pure happenstance? Or are there genetics involved here?

Whatever the reason, we thank farm equipment dealers everywhere for their support of our farm equipment needs and for being there when we need them in the inevitable emergencies.

And for providing toys for our boys.

Big ones and little ones.

PAULA MAYEWSKI

Extension Home Economist

If Your Closet Could Talk

With the holiday season behind us and the weather too cold to begin tackling the garden and other outdoor chores, now is the best time to clean out and organize all the closets in your home. If the thought of this is too daunting, start by allowing two to three hours for one closet that needs organizing.

Let's start with the bedroom clothes closet. First remove everything from the closet. Once empty, you will want to vacuum the floor and baseboards and wipe all the shelves and clothes rods. As you replace the clothes, only replace the clothes you have worn in the last year. Remember, if you haven't worn it in the last 12 months, you probably won't wear it again. Start a pile for charity or to give to friends and neighbors. If you find a garment you are unsure about, place it in a bag or storage box and store it in another part of your house (defeats the purpose temporarily) for six months. If you didn't need it or want it in that time, get rid of it. Think about a systematic way to replace your clothes in your closet. Hang like items by color with darker colors at one end and lighter colors at the other. To really organize your tops, blouses and shirts, hang them together, first grouped by sleeve length and then by color within the sleeve length category. Hang skirts by length with the shorter styles at one end following to the longer lengths

It's best to keep your shoes protected from dust by using a shoe bag on the back of the closet door or in their original box clearly marked so they are easy to find. Clear plastic shoe boxes are nice, but expensive. Keep the same idea in mind about shoes too. If you haven't worn them or they hurt your feet, now is the time to get rid of them.

As you inventory your wardrobe, you will be able to see at a glance what your spring and summer shopping needs include. You will know if your white T-shirt or white blouse needs to be replaced. Take a look at your sandals. If they need to be replaced, put that on the list. That way when the Memorial Day picnic rolls around, you'll be ready! Keep a master list of things you really need and focus on them when shopping. Knowing what is in your closet reduces unnecessary, unplanned purchases and enables you to keep an eye out for sales.

This approach also works well for children's clothing closets. It is even more important to keep your children's clothes organized because it prevents a hassle-filled morning. If your child's closet contains appropriate clothing choices, in good repair that fit well and coordinate together, you will save literally hours every week by avoiding the morning madness and rush. It does no good to select an outfit the night before school only to put it on in the morning and find it no longer fits or is missing a button. It makes good sense, considering how fast children grow, to go through their closets at least four times per year. One a personal note, I find it helpful to label my girls shelves with index cards that say "play clothes" and "school clothes." That way there is no misunderstanding about what can be worn outside to visit the dirt pile and what can be worn for school. Wether you store the outgrown clothing for younger siblings, share with neighbors and friends, or use a consignment shop, timely quarterly cleaning will keep you organized and well planned so you know exactly what you need to buy.

One tip to keep clothes looking as neat and organized as the day you cleaned them is to always keep a plastic garbage bag in your closet. As you put on clothes that you've outgrown or simply don't "work" for you anymore, place them in the bag. The next time you need to clean the closet, you'll only have to clean the surfaces to get rid of whatever accumulated in the garbage bag.

Nest, let's tackle the linen closet. Once again it is necessary to remove all the contents and thoroughly clean the floor, vacuum the rug and wipe the baseboards. Wipe off all the shelving. It maximizes shelf space if like-size bath towels, hand towels, and washcloths are folded and stacked together alternating the fold from front to back. That way the pile is not lopsided and falling over creating a mess. Sheets are best stored together and stacked by set. That way, you can place the "hard-to-fold" fitted sheet between the flat sheet and the pillow cases.

If you need to store toiletries in your linen closet, keep like items together. A lazy-Susan purchased from a kitchen shop is a nice accessory for the linen closet to help you find things quicker. Also, if the linen closet is not in the bathroom, it might be a good place to store medicines, since it not be affected by the steam from the shower. Always remember, wherever your store medicine, it must be child proof.

Last, let's tackle the pantry closet. Just like the linen closet, it is most helpful to store like items together. If space permits, allow one shelf for canned goods, one shelf for large box items like cereal, and another shelf for snack items. It is also helpful to have an area for miscellaneous items that don't really fit into any one category. Some pantry closets are large enough to hold extra rolls of paper towels, an emergency supply of paper plates, the kid's lunch boxes, a jumbo size box of kitchen trash bags, and even a foot stool. Remember that as you add a new food purchase to your pantry closet, place the fresh item behind the item you are currently using. Remember to check the use-by dates and if something is out of date, discard it.

Organized spaces can be the key to saving time and frustration. The amount of time you devote to getting organized will pay you back with extra time every day. Even if is only a few minutes saved per day, those minutes add up giving you more time to read, go for a walk, play with your kids or visit a friend! Once organized, the trick is to stay organized. Make an effort to keep the closets neat and organized so cleaning them doesn't turn into a huge, monumental, dreaded task. With all that organizational skill under your belt, you are now ready to tackle the garden shed, garage, refrigerator, kitchen junk drawer, coupon box and on and on and on. Happy organizing!

Consuming Thoughts

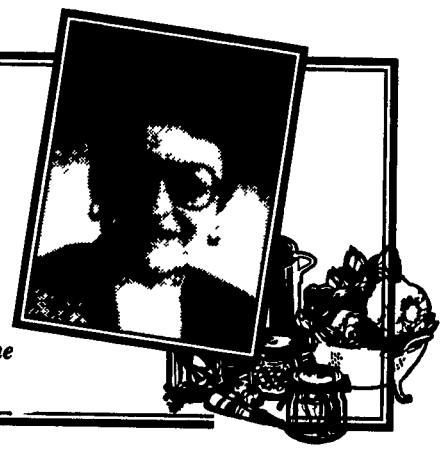
Penn State Extension Home Economist For Berks Co.



Refrigeration Isn't Always Cool

UNIVERSITY PARK (Center Co.) – In the modern American kitchen, the refrigerator is where consumers store most of their produce. But not every food item can chill, say two produce specialists in Penn State's College of Agriculture Sciences.

"Anything that ripens after it's harvested shouldn't be put in the refrigerator," says Peter Ferretti, professor of vegetable crops. "That includes tomatoes, unripe pears, and all melons except watermelon. Chilling temperatures below 55 degrees Fahrenheit retard ripening."

Ferretti says some fruits and vegetables should not be chilled at all, while other types of produce can be refrigerated with a few easy precautions.

Tomatoes: tomato will lose its aroma and flavor after just 40 minutes in the refrigerator. Store tomatoes in a warn, dry area. Vine-ripened tomatoes can be stored this way for up to two weeks. Depending on how fast you want them to ripen, store tomatoes on a counter or on top of the refrigerator, out of sunlight. The warmer temperatures on top of a refrigerator will make a tomato ripen faster.

Store tomatoes so none are touching, especially if produce has cracks or lesions. "The best place to store tomatoes is an aerated basket that allows plenty of air flow."

Cucumbers. While sensitive to cold, cucumbers must be refrigerated because they lose moisture rapidly even when they are lightly waxed. Prolonged exposure to cold, however gives cucumbers pitted, mushy spots. Eggplant is affected in similar fashion. Store them in a paper bag in the refrigerator crisper drawer.

Potatoes and sweet potatoes: When potatoes are refrigerated, their starch turns to sugar, Gerretti explains. While this condition can be reversed by removing the potatoes from the refrigerator, they will still retain some sugar, which caused them to brown when fried. Potatoes should be kept in a dark place slightly cooler than the normal temperature of the home, such as in a cool cupboard, in the basement wine cellar or storage area, or near the inside wall in a garage. In extremely cold conditions, covering the potatoes with a blanket or burlap will provide protection.

Tropical fruits: Any tropical fruit, such as bananas, mangos, papayas and others, should never be refrigerated. Only chill bananas if you don't want them to ripen anymore. The skins also will nearly turn black-the inside flesh can still be normal white. They can also be chilled or even frozen prior to cooking or for a special popsicle-like dessert.

Citrus fruits: For oranges, lemons, limes and grapefruits, refrigeration is a good way to preserve quality. Citrus fruits do not ripen further after harvest.

Winter squash or melons: winter squash should only be refrigerated after cooking, and melons should be refrigerated only after being cut open. These items maintain their best aroma and flavor at room temperature.

When storing produce, make liberal use of the crisper drawers. In most recently manufactured refrigerators, the crisper drawers can be somewhat adjusted for temperature and humidity. Store fruits and vegetables in paper or plastic bags with holes to slightly increase temperature and humidity.

"Fruits and vegetables should never be stored against the back wall of a refrigerator," Ferretti warns. "The rear wall is the coldest area of any refrigerator and chilling injury or light freezing may occur."

If produce becomes frozen, Ferretti recommends handling the produce carefully. "When a celery or cabbage is frozen the cells are particularly sensitive to touch. Damage and bruising will occur unless they are allowed to thaw slowly with very little handling," he says.

If you pick up most any magazine at the newsstand you'll see articles about the return to "American Style or Regional American Cooking." In the articles you'll probably notice that potatoes are featured and you'll find recipes for garlic mashed potatoes, herbed potatoes or even sweet potato oven fries.

America's favorite vegetable is easier than ever to prepare and enjoy when preparation time is reduced by using a microwave oven. Many of the potato recipes encourage the cook to partially prepare or microboil the potatoes in the microwave oven.

Cooking potatoes, and other vegetables, in the microwave not only saves time but valuable nutrients as well. Microwave ovens cook foods in less time, protecting heat sensitive vitamins and preserving more of the natural moisture in foods. One of the heat and moisture sensitive nutrients found in potatoes is vitamin C. Other nutrients include thiamin, folacin, vitamin B_6, potassium, iron and complex carbohydrates. One medium sized potato provides 50% of the recommended daily allowance of vitamin C, 15% of vitamin B_6, and iodine and 8% of thiamin, iron and copper–a nutritional bonanza for only 110 calories.

Try to cook potatoes with their skins on if possible. That's a good way to conserve their nutrients. If you must peel them, keep the parings as thin as possible.

Potatoes retain nutrients better if cooked whole. They may be halved, sliced or diced if shorter cooking time is required. To keep cut potatoes from turning dark, dip them in cold water to which a little lemon juice or ascorbic acid has been added. Don't soak them: soaking potatoes too long can result in unnecessary vitamin loss.

Microbaking potatoes is done at most every household but microbroiling is not very common. To microboil potatoes: Scrub and slice a 6-ounce potato 1/8 inch thick. Place in a microwave dish. Add 1 tablespoon of water and cover with plastic wrap. Microwave on high for 4-5 minutes. Let stand 2minutes. For cubed potatoes, scrub and cut a 6-ounce potato into 1-inch cubes. Place in microwave dish. Add 1 tablespoon water and cover with plastic wrap. Microwave on high for 5-7 minutes. Let stand 2 minutes. This method is quick and easy and is the base for a variety of toppings.

For low/no calorie toppers try toasted sesame seeds, salsa, dijon or spicy mustard, oil-free salad dressing, whipped butter and poppy seeds, a spoonful of stewed tomatoes and a bit of grated cheese, chive-spiked yogurt or mock sour cream (cottage cheese and lemon juice whipped in the blender.)

Here is a low-fat low-calorie recipe that features potatoes and other veggies in this "Fresh Vegetable Quilt"

Fresh Vegetable Quilt

2 tablespoons margarine
1/4 cup sliced green onion
2 cloves garlic, crushed
1/2 teaspoon salt (optional)
dash pepper
1/2 cup chicken broth
3 medium potatoes, cubes
1/4 pound mushrooms, sliced
1 quart mixed fresh vegetables (broccoli, cauliflower, sliced zuchinni) paprika

Combine margarine, onion, garlic, salt, pepper and broth in a 9"x13" microwave dish. Microwave on high for 1 1/2 minutes. Add vegetables; stir to coat. Cover with plastic wrap. Microwave on high for 12 minutes, stirring every 4 minutes to redistribute vegetables. Let stand covered for 2-3 minutes before serving. Serves 6. Calories 150, fat 3.5 g., sodium 350 mg. fiber 5 g.

Memories Warm Bollingers' Home

LOU ANN GOOD
Lancaster Farming Staff

LANCASTER (Lancaster Co.) — On many wintry, snowy days, Paul and Ethel Bollinger can be found wrapped in the warmth of their farmhouse, sorting through memories.

"This is second best," Paul said of their 113-acre farm named Milbach Spring, for the spring that bubbles up in their meadow.

As much loved as the Lebanon County farm referred to as "second best" has become, it can't compare with the splendor of the memories the Bollingers retain of the family's former century farm built circa 1700.

If they had their desires, the Bollingers would still live on the farm torn down in 1980 to make way for Project 70, a wildlife preserve. The Bollingers fought to retain the farm, but government loomed larger and the property was eventually condemned.

"They said the land was no good, but that year, we got 20 ribbons for our corn at the fair," Bollinger said as he pointed to a photograph among hundreds of others picturing the story of their lifetime.

Close to Ethel's heart also is the farm on which she grew up in Manheim. Her dad Paul Heagy was a poultry farmer. In the 1930s, the family had a burgeoning operation quite unlike today's high tech poultry houses.

The pullets were housed in hand-built rain shelters scattered across the fields, bordered by mountainous ranges.

"We had over 100 rain shelters and it was my job to open and close them everyday," Ethel said of the method used to protect the birds from ravaging wild life.

"It was considered a big operation then, but small today," she said of the need to hunt, grade, and pack 99 cases of eggs weekly.

Characteristic of many farmers his age, Bollinger has bad knees. He had an appointment for an operation—until the doctor told him he wouldn't be allowed to go to the barn for three months.

"That did it!" exclaimed Bollinger, who would rather put up with the pain and inconvenience of bad knees than be barred from feeding the steers on the farm.

The couple have three sons and a daughter. Son Don recently took over the farming operation.

Growing up, the children were deeply involved in 4-H and FFA activities, evidenced by the prolific amount of pictures and ribbons garnered over the years. Their three sons received FFA Keystone Degrees, and this year, a granddaughter Amy Bollinger, received the Degree.

The Farm Show and 4-H hold fond memories for the Bollingers. He himself had been a 4-H'er and he was determined his own children would reap the benefits of 4-H involvement. Photographs show the children received numerous ribbons for sheep, steers, and capons. Bollinger and his wife are thrilled to see their grandchildren continue the family tradition by competing at the Farm Show.

While the Pennsylvania Farm Show is massive in size compared to Bollinger's growing up year, the excitement he felt would be hard to match.

"It was real exciting. When I was about 10 years old, the whole school closed down, and we went up to see it," he said.

As is the Bollingers' practice, they visited the Farm Show this year.

"The changes are really something. Sometimes I wonder at the high-price machinery," Bollinger said.

Bollinger continues to enjoy fair competition. This past year he entered four samples of hay and received third and fifth placings.

(Turn to Page B7)

Paul And Ethel Bollinger sort through photographs, which bring a flood of memories.

The Bollingers' children display ribbons won at 4-H competitions.

When the government wanted the Bollingers' Century Farm to turn into a wildlife preserve, it condemned the land by saying it wasn't any good, but the Bollingers garnered 20 ribbons for their corn at the Farm Show that year.

This picture taken at the Pennsylvania Farm Show in the 1930s, show Ethel's dad Paul Heagy and two company representatives with the latest poultry equipment from MaKomb.

HOMESTEAD NOTES

The year before he had reserve champion overall and received the Grand Slam Award from Ephrata Fair for accumulating the highest points in grains and forages.

While his son takes care of the fieldwork, Bollinger feeds 20 head of steers, six sheep, and about 200 Muscovy ducks.

In past years, his wife often dressed the ducks to sell, but has since resigned from that work, except dressing them for their own use.

"She's a good cook. The children all like mother's cooking—especially her macaroni salad," Bollinger said.

Ethel had a pacemaker inserted 5 or 6 years ago and a hip replacement 12 years ago, but is in good health. She collects "chickens on the nest" and Longaberger baskets.

They are members of the Cocalico Church of the Brethren, where Bollinger is membership chairman. He is also a director of the Lebanon County Farm Bureau.

Although the Bollingers said that their agreement with their son is that they can live in the farmhouse as long as they like, the Bollingers will probably move in with their daughter within the next year.

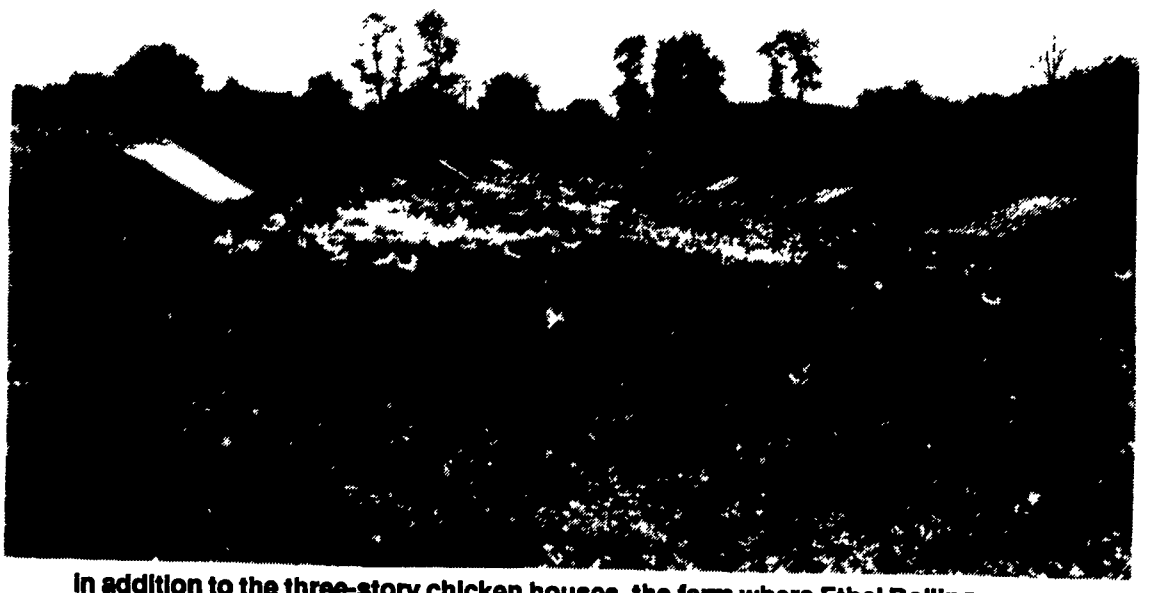
Sorting through photographs and memorabilia brings a flood of memories.

"I don't know what I'll do with all these pictures. I wonder if anyone else will enjoy looking at them as much as we do," Ethel said.

The photographs chronicle not only a story of their lives but also the history of that era. For the Bollingers, it's been a great life together.

"I remember the first time I met her," Bollinger said with a twinkle in his eye as he looked at his wife. "It was at her family's (farm) open house. You could call it love at first sight."

Since then, the farm has changed. The pictures have faded. But one thing hasn't changed, their love hasn't faded a bit in the 52 years they've been married.



In addition to the three-story chicken houses, the farm where Ethel Bollinger grew up had 100 rain shelters for pullets. It was Ethel's duty to open and close the shelters daily.

Several postcards were made up Premier Poultry Farm in Ethel's family. Then, the post cards were considered pictorial, but today they showcase farming techniques of the past.

Buttermilk Facts

Is there butter in buttermilk?

Not really. Buttermilk is what's left over after cream is churned to make butter. Usually, true buttermilk is dried and used by the baking industry, and it never sees the light of the grocery store's refrigerated section.

Buttermilk available in stores is "cultured buttermilk." It's usually made with fresh skim or low-fat milk with additional nonfat dry milk solids added. A bacterial culture is then added to produce lactic acid. The end result is a thickened, tangy product often used in baking.

Sometimes buttermilk is made from whole milk–check the label to see what you are getting. Also, some manufacturers add flecks of butter for an authentic look.

A lot of people think the worst thing about buttermilk (besides the taste–sorry buttermilk-lovers) is what to do with the leftovers after using the half-cup or whatever's called for in the recipe you're making. There are some solutions to this age-old problem. First, you can develop a taste for the beverage. Just try a little at a time! Don't worry, buttermilk can last up to 30 days in the refrigerator. Or, you can buy dried buttermilk powder, which can last for a year after opening if you refrigerate it.

Or, you can try these substitutions. For one cup of buttermilk, substitute 1 cup plain yogurt; or use 1 tablespoon vinegar or lemon juice plus enough milk to equal 1 cup–stir and let stand for 5 minutes before using; or, add 1 3/4 teaspoons cream of tartar to 1 cup milk.

A cup of buttermilk made from skim milk contains about 100 calories, 2 grams of fat, 285 milligrams of calcium and 370 milligrams of potassium–about 10 to 20 percent of what you should get of those minerals each day. It's higher in sodium than regular milk, so anyone on a low-sodium diet should take that into account.

Finally, if buttermilk is left out of refrigeration too long, it may separate. If that happens, all you have to do is stir it up and it's as good as new.

QUESTION — Lillian Auman lost her favorite recipe for tuna noodle casserole, which was originally from the "Better Homes and Gardens New Cook Book," ninth edition 1982. Can anyone help her out?

QUESTION — D. Allgyer, Ronks, would like a recipe for macadamia nut cookies.

QUESTION — Elaine Bowes, Loganton, would like a recipe for Wedding Soup.

QUESTION — Shirley Schwoerer, Wysox, is looking for a recipe to make deep fried mozzarella sticks.

QUESTION — Pam Laubach, Orangeville, is looking for a recipe for chewy sugar cookies similar to those sold at malls and a recipe for animal crackers.

QUESTION — Charles Robbins, Salmon, Idaho, wants a recipe for blood sausage. In Poland, it is called kishka made with pigs blood, rice or buckwheat.

QUESTION — Jo Marie Snyder, New Bloomfield, would like to know if there is a book about where cooking ingredients such as baking soda, baking powder, and alum come from and how they were discovered to work in cooking. What is cream of tarter or cream of wheat?

QUESTION — Ammon Gruber, Emmaus, would like a recipe for lobster bisque soup, which he had numerous times at the Pottsville Diner.

QUESTION — Violet Cassner, Newburg, would like a recipe for meat balls made with left over mashed potatoes. She recalls eating them years ago. The meatballs were simmered in sauce and tasted very moist and delicious.

QUESTION — Susan Harris, Lexington, VA, would like a recipe for fruit cake in the jar.

QUESTION — L. Burkholder, 1543 Union Grove Rd., East Earl, PA 17519, would like to purchase a used Betty Crocker Cookbook printed in the mid 1960s.

QUESTION — Valerie Harlan, Parkesburg, would like a recipe for "real red taffy apples" with taffy that pulls away not the crackle type. She remembers these from her childhood and would like to recreate this childhood memory for her grandchildren.

QUESTION — G. Halteman would like a recipe for homemade butter made out of goat's milk. (According to an answer in this column, a butter recipe using cow's milk is interchangeable with goat's milk).

QUESTION — A reader tasted a delicious cottage cheese soup at the Red Fox Inn at Snowshoe. Does anyone have a recipe for cottage cheese soup.

QUESTION — Carl Schintzel, Rockaway, N.J., remembers his mother used to make seasoned rice with cubed pieces of veal in it, which cooked all day on a wood or coal range. He doesn't remember the name or any other ingredients it might have contained, but the mixture was made in a deep gray graniteware lidded pot.

QUESTION — Mary Dengler, Middletown, Ohio, would like a recipe for 10-grain bread that tastes similar to that made by Roscoe Village Bakery in Coshocton, Ohio.

ANSWER — Annie Martin, Selingsgrove, sent in this recipe for the Somerset reader who wanted recipes for breakfast cereals.

Hot Shredded Wheat

Put shredded wheat biscuit on plate. Top with 1 teaspoon butter, 3 tablespoons hot tomato juice or sauce. Pour hot milk on top to soak up the biscuit.

CHEWY BROWNIES

1 cup all-purpose flour
1 cup powdered sugar
¼ cup plus 1½ teaspoons unsweetened cocoa
¼ teaspoon baking powder
1½ -ounces semi-sweet chocolate, chopped
3 tablespoons corn oil margarine
½ cup packed light or dark brown sugar
2 tablespoons light corn syrup
1 tablespoon water
2 teaspoons vanilla extract
2 large egg whites

Preheat oven to 350 degrees.

Line an 8x8-inch pan with foil to extend 1½ inches on the outside of pan (to help lift out of pan). Spray foil with non-stick cooking spray.

Sift flour, sugar, cocoa, and baking powder into a mixing bowl.

In a medium saucepan and over low heat, melt margarine and sweet chocolate, stir constantly. Remove from heat and add brown sugar, corn syrup, water, and vanilla. Stir until thoroughly blended. Stir in the egg whites with a wooden spoon. Stir in dry ingredients. Transfer the batter to the prepared pan, spreading evenly.

Bake on middle rack of oven for 24 to 30 minutes or until the top of middle cake is almost firm.

Place on wire rack for 15 minutes, remove from pan by lifting with excess foil. Cool completely. Cut into 12 servings.

LEMON CHEESECAKE

1 graham cracker, crushed
1 small package lemon flavor sugar-free gelatin
⅔ cup boiling water
1 cup low-fat cottage cheese
8-ounces light cream cheese
2 cups thawed lite whipped topping
1 cup lite-cherry pie filling

Spray a 9-inch pie plate with non-stick cooking spray. Sprinkle with half of the graham cracker crumbs; set aside.

Dissolve gelatin completely in boiling water in small bowl; stirring 2 minutes. Pour into blender container. Add cheeses; cover. Blend on medium speed until smooth, scraping down sides occasionally.

Pour into large bowl. Stir in whipped topping. Spread in prepared pie plate. Sprinkle remaining crumbs around outer edge leaving center plain.

Refrigerate 4 hours or until firm. Just before serving, gently spread pie filling onto center of cheese cake. Makes 8 servings. Nutrition information per serving: 160 calories, 8 gm fat, 20 mg cholesterol, 280 mg sodium, 15 g carbohydrates, 0 grams dietary fiber, 7 g protein.

ANSWER — Pam Laubach, Orangeville, wanted to know how to order a "Society of Farm Women Cookbook." For a copy of this large, beautifully illustrated cookbook, send $15 plus $3.50 for postage and handling to Naomi Bupp, Route 2, Box 157, Glen Rock, PA 17327. Make sure you include your complete address.

ANSWER — A Somerset reader wanted recipes for emu, alligator, squirrel, rabbit, ground hog, opossum, bear, moose, antelope, etc. Thanks to Kim Koehler, Bethlehem, for sending several recipes, which she said are very tasty and were in her grandmother's cookbook.

Creamed Sour Rabbit

Cut rabbit in small pieces and soak overnight in solution of 1 cup vinegar and ½ cup water. Next morning, cook rabbit in vinegar solution until done, about 2 hours. Thicken the broth in a little flour. Salt and pepper to taste and serve hot. Good with biscuits.

Coon & Opossum

Soak in salt and soda water overnight. Rinse off in the morning. Put in pot and parboil until tender. Put in bread pan. Add salt, pepper and sage to taste. Pre-cook 3-5 sweet potatoes. Cut in half and place around coon or opossum. Put in a 350 degree oven and bake for 30 minutes.

Ground Hog

When ground hog is dressed, be sure to remove kernel from under the front legs to keep from making it taste. Cut up and salt to taste. Roll in flour, put in hot fat and fry until browned. Put in inset pans in pressure cooker with a ½ -inch water in bottom. Cook for 70 minutes with 15 pounds of pressure.

Possum can be cooked the same way with good results.

Thanks to Pam Laubach, Orangeville, for writing that she has a cookbook from the "North American Hunting Club," that includes recipes for alligator, antelope, bear, boar, buffalo, caribou, dove, duck, elk, goose, grouse, mouse, pheasant, quail, rabbit, squirrel, turkey, venison, wild sheep, skeeter soup, and broiled skunk. The book includes funny sayings and pictures on the bottom of most of the papes and really makes a unique book for recipe collectors. The address to purchase the cookbook is NAHC Cookbook, editor, P.O. box 3401, Minneapolis, MN 55343.

Here is a recipe from Pam.

Baked Squirrel Pot Pie

3 squirrels, cooked, boned
Pot pie dough
1 medium carrot, chopped
1 medium onion, chopped
3-4 medium potatoes, chopped
Salt and pepper to taste
1 teaspoon sweet basil or parsley
Pie crust

In baking dish, place layers of pot pie dough, boned squirrel meat, and layer of vegetables. Continue in such layers to the top of dish. Add salt, pepper, basil, and parsley to broth; heat, then add to baking dish. Cover top with regular pie crust. Bake at 350 degrees for 1½ to 2 hours.

Lillian Auman, Waynesboro, recommends checking at the library or your local bookstore for the "L.L. Bean Game and Fish Cookbook" by Angus Cameron and Judith Jones (Random House, N.Y.). She said the book is wonderful and fun to read.

LOW-FAT VEGETABLE LASAGNA

8-ounces lasagna noodles
2 eggs
2 cups reduced-fat cream-style cottage cheese
2 cups reduced-fat ricotta cheese
1½ teaspoons dried Italian seasoning, crushed
2 cups sliced fresh mushrooms
1 small onion, chopped
1 clove garlic, minced
2 tablespoons butter
2 tablespoons all-purpose flour
½ -1 teaspoon pepper
1¼ cups milk
2 10-ounce packages frozen chopped spinach or chopped broccoli, thawed, drained
1 medium carrot, shredded
¾ cup shredded parmesan cheese
8-ounce package shredded part-skim mozzarella cheese

Cook lasagna noodles according to package directions; drain. Set aside.

In a medium mixing bowl, beat eggs slightly, stir in eggs, cottage cheese, ricotta, and Italian seasoning. Set aside.

In a large skillet, cook mushrooms, onion and garlic in hot butter until tender. Stir in flour and pepper; add milk all at once. Cook and stir until thickened and bubbly; cook and stir for one minute more. Remove from heat. Stir in spinach or broccoli, carrot and ½ cup Parmesan cheese.

To assemble, in a greased 3-quart rectangular baking dish, layer a third of the noodles, folding or cutting to fit, if necessary. Spread with a third of the cottage cheese mixture, then a third of the spinach mixture. Sprinkle with a third of the mozzarella. Repeat the layers two more times. Sprinkle with the remaining ¼ cup Parmesan cheese. Bake lasagna immediately or chill for up to 48 hours.

To bake immediately, bake, uncovered, in a 350-degree oven about 35 minutes or until heated through. Let stand 10 minutes before cutting.

To make ahead, cover lasagna with foil and chill. Bake, covered, in a 350-degree oven for 30 minutes. Uncover and bake 30-35 minutes more or until heated through. Let stand 10 minutes before cutting. Makes 12 main-dish servings.

Cook's Question

ANSWER — Thanks to Ida Keeny, New Freedom, for sending in soybean recipes for Joyce Rex of Slatington. Ida writes that they also love green soybeans. When growing soybeans, let the beans fill out, but pick them before they turn yellow. Steam 2 or 3 minutes, put in flat pan and shell into ice water to shell easily. Drain and freeze or cook about 10 minutes to eat. No further blanching is necessary.

Soybean Casserole

2 cups cooked soybeans, chopped
¼ cup diced salt pork
2 cups chopped celery
2 tablespoons chopped onion
2 tablespoon chopped green pepper
6 tablespoons flour
2 cups milk
1 tablespoon salt
1 cup buttered bread crumbs

Brown salt pork in skillet. Add celery, onion, and green pepper, saute for about 5 minutes. Add thickening made from the flour, milk, and salt. Stir until it reaches the boiling point. Stir in the cooked beans, and pour into a greased baking dish. Cover with buttered bread crumbs. Bake at 350 degrees for 30 minutes or until crumbs are browned.

Sprouted Soybeans

Soak overnight. Leave in same pan, drain water, cover closely until sprouted an inch or so. Cook or eat raw.

For dry beans, soak 1½ cups of beans in 2 cups water for 2 hours. Place in ice cube tray and freeze solid at least overnight. Remove and cook in any manner desired. Or, if the freezing process is not used, soak overnight and then the beans can be cooked in pressure cooker from 15-30 minutes.

Puree of Soybean Soup

1 cup soybean pulp
1 tablespoon finely chopped celery leaves
2 tablespoons chopped onion
1 cup meat stock
2½ cups milk
1 tablespoon flour
1 teaspoon salt
⅛ teaspoon pepper

Combine soybean pulp with celery, onion, and meat stock, and simmer slowly until vegetables are tender. Mix with dry ingredients and add to the cooked mixture. heat and serve with crackers or toast.

ANSWER — Grace Rumer, Abington, wanted a recipe for individual crumb buns with cheese pockets. Her husband ate some, which he said were delicious, on the Ocean City Boardwalk in New Jersey. Thanks to Debbie Burkholder, for sending in two recipes that she thought might be similar to what Grace is looking for.

Bohemian Kolaches

2 cups milk, scalded
¾ cup sugar
⅔ cup butter
2 teaspoons salt
2 packages dry yeast
¼ cup lukewarm water
7¾ cups sifted flour
3 egg yolks
Cottage cheese filling*

Pour scalded milk over sugar, butter, and salt in mixing bowl. Let cool to lukewarm. Sprinkle yeast over lukewarm water; stir to dissolve. Add 2 cups flour, egg yolks, and yeast mixture to milk mixture. Beat at medium speed until smooth, about 2 minutes. cover and let rise in warm place util bubbly, about 40 minutes. Gradually stir in enough remaining flour to form a soft dough. Turn dough out onto floured surface. Knead until smooth and satiny, 8-10 minutes. Place in greased bowl, turning to grease top. Cover. Let rise until doubled, about 1½ hours. Punch down dough. Divide dough into fourths. Let rest 10 minutes. Shape each fourth, into 12 balls. Place on greased baking sheets, about 2-inches apart. Make a deep depression in center of each ball, using fingers. Fill with filling. Cover and let rise in warm place until almost doubled, about 30 minutes. Bake in 375 degree oven or until golden brown. Remove from baking sheets; cool on racks. Makes 48.

*Cottage Cheese Filling:
Combine in bowl:
1½ cups large curd cottage cheese
6 tablespoons sugar
1 egg yolk
1 tablespoon quick tapioca
¾ teaspoon lemon extract
Mix until well blended. Add raisins if desired.

Cream Cheese Filled Rolls

1 cup milk, scalded
1 cup sugar
⅔ cup butter
1 teaspoon salt
2 packages dry yeast
¼ cup lukewarm water
6¼ -6½ cups sifted flour
1 teaspoon grated lemon peel
¼ teaspoon ground nutmeg
3 eggs
Cream cheese filling*
1 egg white
2 teaspoons water
½teaspoon ground cinnamon
½ cup sugar

Pour scalded milk over sugar, butter, and salt. Cool to lukewarm. Sprinkle yeast over lukewarm water; stir to dissolve. Add yeast mixture and 2 cups flour to milk mixture. Beat at medium speed until smooth. Add lemon rind, nutmeg, and eggs. Beat 2 more minutes. Gradually stir in enough remaining flour to make a soft dough. Turn dough out onto floured surface. Knead until smooth and elastic, about 8 minutes. Place dough in greased bowl, turning over once to grease top. Cover and let rise in warm place until doubled, about 1½ hours.

Punch down dough. Divide dough into thirds. Let rest 10 minutes. Roll out each third to 10½ -inch square. Cut in 9 squares. Place dough on greased baking sheets, about 3 inches apart.

Place a round teaspoonful of cream cheese filling in center of each square.

Fold one point over to form triangle. Press edges lightly to seal. Cover and let rise in warm place until doubled, about 30 minutes.

Beat together egg white and 2 tablespoons water. Brush tops of rolls with egg white mixture. Combine cinnamon and ½ cup sugar. Sprinkle over each roll.

Bake in 350 degree oven 12-15 minutes or until golden brown. Remove from baking sheets; cool on racks. Serve warm or cold. Makes 27.

Cream Cheese Filling:
8-ounces softened cream cheese
¼ cup sugar
1 egg

Combine cream cheese, sugar, and egg in mixing bowl. Beat with electric mixer at medium speed until smooth and creamy, about 2 minutes.

DAYCO SUPER II V-BELTS

Now there's a belt that beats the toughest drive problems.

Many heavy-duty industrial machines demand more than conventional wrapped v-belts can stand Their punishing drives make ordinary belts crack under pressure The result unnecessary and expensive downtime

Now there s a solution to the consistent costly problem of replacing or retensioning belts It s the revolutionary new Super II™ v-belt from Dayco The Super II belt was designed specifically for the most brutal applications And its performance blows the cover off conventional wrapped belts

In heavy torque high horsepower and extreme shock load comparisons it s not even a contest The Super II v-belt is stronger, more flexible and lasts far longer

The secret to the Super II v-belt s durability is its unique construction The central position of the polyester cords in the neoprene rubber core provides greater strength balance and longer life Multiple fabric plies top and bottom enhance flexibility And Dayco's unique raw-edged construction gives it a better grip for controlled slippage

Test the Super II v-belt on your toughest drive

The Super II v-belt was field-tested for two years on the most severe applications rock quarry shaker screens lumber mill tree debarkers, and pipe descalers In every case it outperformed conventional wrapped belts by a wide margin But the only test that really counts is the one you do on your own equipment

Try the Super II belt on your toughest drive problem You'll be so amazed by its incredible endurance that you'll want to put it on all your drives In fact, we re so sure you'll be pleased with the performance of the Super II v-belt that in the unlikely event you're not satisfied, we'll refund the original purchase price, or replace it with a conventional wrapped v-belt

Dayco s unique raw-edged belt sidewalls grip pulleys better minimizing belt slip noise and drive vibration
HI modulus polyester cord located in the belt mid-section is specially treated to maintain extreme belt loads & shock without stretching.
Multiple fabric plies relieve stress on the load-carrying center cord allow greater flexibility A belts have three plies top and bottom B belts have four and C belts have five
Special 100% neoprene rubber compound supports cord more evenly top and bottom dissipates heat more easily and provides more oil heat and ozone resistance

Protect Pets From Winter Harm

NEWARK, Del. – When winter winds bring freezing temperatures, people beat a fast retreat indoors to the warmth of their homes. Pets aren't always so lucky. Every year in the United States, many animals are left out in severe weather conditions by unthinking owners.

"Long periods of cold without shelter can result in hypothermia, which can be fatal," says Dr. Paul Meckley, animal science professor at the University of Delaware. "Thought their fur coats provide some warmth, pets, like humans, need protection from the harsh winds, freezing temperatures, sleet and snow that Old Man Winter brings."

Keep cats and dogs inside as much as possible when the temperature drops, advises Meckley. Old, very young or short-haired pets are especially susceptible. Never leave them out in cold weather.

According to Meckley, healthy pets may be left outdoors year-round only if gradually acclimated. Over time, they will develop heavier coats to help keep them warm through the winter. But pet owners must provide adequate shelter, food and water.

"Pets that spend most of their time outdoors need more calories in the winter," Meckley says. "Give them about a third more food to help them generate the warmth they need. Remember to provide them regularly with fresh water in freezing weather."

For both indoor and outdoor pets, shelter from wind and rain is essential. Wind chill is even more harmful to your pet than cold temperatures. Keep the dog house dry and draft-free, positioning its entrance away from the wind and covering the opening with burlap or an old rug. The floor will stay warmer if it is raised a few inches off the ground, and a layer of straw or pine shavings will provide extra comfort. Cedar shavings are not recommended, says Meckley, because they contain volatile oils which, when inhaled, can cause liver damage over time.

"Dogs that are used to being indoors don't grow thick coats and may shiver when taken out in the cold," Meckley says. "Pet owners should consider buying them a coat to wear on their daily walks.

"Also, salt and chemicals spread on icy sidewalks can burn the pads on your pet's feet," he warns. "When the unsuspecting animal tries to lick its feet clean, the salts irritate its mouth. After your pet has walked on the sidewalk or driveway, wipe its feet with a damp paper towel or cloth."

Warm engines in parked cars, trucks and farm equipment makes enticing and dangerous sleeping places for cats. Before starting the engine, Meckley suggests banging on your vehicle's hood to scare away furry hitchhikers.

Taking these precautions will help keep your pet safe and comfortable throughout the winter months.

At first glance for Josh Nolt, Ephrata, it was a sheep trespassing in his father's pasture or was it a goat? He couldn't quite tell. A closer look at the wild animal determined it had the head of a sheep and the body and legs of a goat. It played by no rules as it jumped puddles and ran wildly through fences when three horses and riders tried to corral the undisciplined intruder.

Goat Or Is It A Sheep On The Run

CAROL STARK
Ephrata Review

EPHRATA (Lancaster Co.) — At first glance for Josh Nolt, Ephrata, it was a sheep trespassing in his father's pasture on State Street. Or was it a goat?

He couldn't quite tell. A closer look at the wild animal determined it had the head of a sheep and the body and legs of a goat. Yet it ran like a deer.

It played by no rules as it jumped puddles and ran wildly through fences. It was on the property for a week but no one could catch the spunky animal and no one seemed to claim the wild intruder.

A call to Leroy Horst, animal catcher, Bownmansville, last Saturday brought the quick action of three horses and riders, Jay and Tom Weaver, and Horst to corral the undiciplined intruder.

The animal ran through fences again making a break up Route 322 to the Route 222 bypass. The chase was on as the funny looking animal ran like a deer down the highway, at estimated speeds of 50 to 60 miles per hour.

West Earl Township Police were summoned to the incident and as Sgt. Pierce responded the animal passed him on Route 222 going the opposite direction. "It passed me going at a high rate of speed. I couldn't believe the funny looking animal could travel so fast," stated Sgt. Pierce.

On the trail was Horst and the Weavers in hot pursuit.

After a chase of about 12 miles, the animal finally left Route 222 on the Oregon Pike exit and went into a pasture. A lariat was thrown by Horst but the animal quickly dodged it. Another quick drop from the horse, and the animal was finally caught and taken to the New Holland Sales Auction, where it was sold for a mere $39 on Monday.

The Ephrata Review learned on Tuesday that the animal probably belonged to Ephrata's Lloyd Gerhart, a well-known exotic animal owner and expert. Three months ago many of his exotic animals were released by an unknown person. Lost from the Gerhart animal farm were a mother Barberdo sheep and two young ones. These exotic animals are a wild breed of sheep from Northern Africa. They are raised in the wild and are hard to train in captivity. Still at loose is the mother Barberdos sheep. If you see a sheep that looks like a goat, runs like a deer, and doesn't like people, call Lloyd Gerhart at (717) 733-2425.

Bears don't hibernate through winter They just go into a really deep sleep.
It's easy to understand why you might think bears hibernate In fact, wildlife specialists are finding that the different kinds of winter sleep have a lot of similarities
Hibernation (say HIGH-brr-nay-shun) is a way some animals survive winter When the days get shorter and the temperature starts to drop, hibernating animals — like ground squirrels and skunks — curl up in a tight ball inside a nest, cave or burrow Then, they gradually lower their body temperature until it's almost equal to the environment They breathe only two or three times a minute, so they aren't using much energy An animal that's a true hibernator is cold and unable to do anything.
Bears aren't true hibernators because they stay relatively warm all winter Their temperatures drop a little during the long snooze, but only by a few degrees Even though they curl up to conserve energy and slow down their breathing, they can wake up during the winter and move if they need to Almost all winter sleepers, though, eat a lot of food from spring through fall to stock up on body fat. As they are sleeping through winter, their bodies get nourishment from the fatty reserves And true hibernators will wake up early and forage for food if they didn't put on enough fat
One more thing — baby bears are born during the winter They nurse from their resting Momma Bear until spring By then, they are big enough to travel with the family to search for more food — and start the process all over again

Make a New Year's resolution to control plant diseases in your garden. The tedious tasks of selectively removing spotted foliage, pruning dead branches, removing plants, sanitizing equipment and spraying a fungicide probably would not make it on the "Top 10 Joys of Gardening" list.

Fortunately, the increasing availability of disease-resistant plants offer some hope. As you pick and choose from gardening catalogs, be alert to any disease-resistance information listed. Review the past growing seasons. If you've had problems with a particular disease, find out if plants resistant to that disease are available. Some companies list specific disease information.

The terms "resistance" and "tolerance" do not mean that a variety is immune to all diseases. Resistance means a plant has the ability to avoid infection. Tolerance means a plant can withstand a moderate disease infection without a substantial loss. The degree of resistance or tolerance can vary under different environmental conditions and with different strains of the disease pathogen.

You can avoid many diseases by using resistant species and varieties. Tomato varieties are available that are resistant to Verticillium wilt (the "V" after the variety name), Fusarium wilt (F), and root knot nematode (N). Wilt fungi in invade the water conducing vessels, causing infected tomato plants to show drought stress symptoms, wilt and die. Root knot nematode infects and causes small galls on roots. Certain varieties of pepper, squash, cucumber, bean and sweet corn, and other vegetables show resistance to various diseases. Virus diseases may cause stunting, leaf distortion and reduced yields.

Using disease resistance is only one component of a disease prevention program. Protect your garden by selecting plants suited for your garden's location. Inspect plants for disease symptoms in the garden. Follow the specific cultural requirements of each plant species. Finally, scout plants often in order to spot disease problems early.

Foreign Exchange Needs Host Families

EMMAUS (Lehigh Co.) – The American Intercultural Student Exchange, a non-profit educational foundation, is seeking local host families for high school foreign exchange students for the 1998-99 school year. AISE's students come from more than 40 countries world wide, and the program is expanding operations all the time.

Every year, AISE places thousands of exchange students with loving host families throughout the United States. AISE exchange students live with American families and attend local high schools during their 10-month cultural exchange experiences. American host families provide these young ambassadors with a place to sleep, meals, and a family atmosphere in which to live.

AISE students are eager to learn about government, history, customs and language, while at the same time leaving a lasting impression of their cultures in the minds and hearts of their American host families and peers. Call AISE at 1-800-SIBLING or visit the AISE web site at www.sigling.org for more information on hosting a foreign exchange student in your home.

A poured solid concrete basement weighs about 50 lbs more per cubic foot! Far denser What's more, poured solid concrete walls are monolithic there are no joints!

This is why laboratory tests show poured, solid concrete basements have many times the flexural and compressive strength to withstand the side and down pressures caused by earth, wind, water and building loads and the material density to resist water penetration

Best of all, thanks to modern and efficient construction techniques, poured, solid concrete basements are competitively priced

Inside the mobile unit, midwife Rita Rhoads provides prenatal care for Sheila Martin while midwife Valerie Peery looks on.

Birth Care Is On The Move

LOU ANN GOOD
Lancaster Farming Staff

QUARRYVILLE (Lancaster Co.) — Birth care is a moving experience in Lancaster and Chester counties. A mobile unit on wheels travels from spot to spot to offer birth care to clients.

Launched in October by Birth Care and Family Health Services in Quarryville, the 27-foot motor home is equipped with a workstation with medical equipment, bathroom, examination room, and waiting room with a lending library.

According to Rita Rhoads, who founded the Quarryville Birth Care Center in 1978 and continues to serve as director of midwifery and nurse practitioner, the original concept of a mobile unit was to make it more convenient for Amish clientele who often live an hour's drive from medical services to receive prenatal care. Lack of transportation can result in poor or no prenatal care.

However, a surprising thing happened. In some areas such as Lititz, most clients are middle and upper-class non-Amish women, who come because they like the personal services of a midwife.

Sheila Martin fits into that category. She and her husband Cleon are expecting their first baby in February. Although the couple live in Manheim, Sheila began traveling to the Quarryville Birth Care and Family Health Services because, she said, "I prefer the personal touch rather than a doctor who sees 50 patients a day and doesn't have time to answer my questions."

But Quarryville was a long drive from her home, and Sheila was delighted to hear that the mobile unit comes to Lititz, which is only a few miles from the Martins' home.

Patients are given a choice of birthing deliveries: home, birthing center, or hospital. Rhoads said that Birth Care and Family Health Services is the only county practice offering all three options.

"There are a few other practices in the county that offer one of the three or two of the three services but not all three options," Rhoads said.

Sheila and Cleon plan to have their baby at the birthing center in Quarryville.

"Because it's our first baby, I didn't quite trust to have the birth at home," Sheila said.

Rhoads said, "Generally we believe it's better to have first-time babies at the center or at the hospital because it's a new experience and first-time parents are usually not as confident. In addition, since it is the first time, the mother is less inclined to know when birth is imminent and a midwife going to her residence might need to wait a day for the actual birth."

Rhoads has the distinction of establishing the first midwifery center in the state.

"Birthing centers are not intended to be high tech, because birthing is considered a normal process for pregnant women," Rhoads said. "The reason more birthing centers are not established is because they don't make a lot of money.

"The Birth Care Midwife Center is more cost effective than the services typically provided by an obstetition or family doctor," she said.

Most insurance plans approve of the center. Rhoads estimates that 25 percent of the patients use insurance coverage, 5-10 percent use a medical card, and the remainder are private pay patients.

It is not assumed that private pay patients cannot afford to pay full price. If it is determined that they cannot, a payment plan or a cost will be negotiated.

"We will not turn anyone away," Rhoads said.

The center holds an annual benefit auction to raise funds for patients who cannot pay.

Certified midwifes must first obtained a registered nursing degree and then complete a course in midwifery, generally a three-year course.

Follow-up care is provided. When Rhoads noticed an abnormalcy in a client, she made plans immediately to send the client to a specialist.

Rhoads said that the areas targeted for mobile services are the result of clients, who have been requesting midwife services for years in those areas.

"I assumed we would rent a place, but it's not feasible to rent in so many different locations and provide equipment for each one

The Carbon County 4-H Livestock Club held its Achievement Night in December at the Big Creek Grange, Lehighton.

Organizational Leader Diane Miller-Graver and Vice President Justin Cunfer presented achievement trophies and a 4-H key-chain to each member. They then presented special recognition trophies to the following: Justin Cunfer, outstanding member, cattle; Ashley Barry, outstanding member, gost; Kerry Shoenberger, outstanding member, poultry; Ashley Barry, outstanding member, sheep; and Miles Hearn, outstanding member, swine. Also presented awards were Miles Hearn, housekeeping Award, cattle; Sarah M. Miller, Housekeeping Award, goat; Josh Kemmerer, Housekeeping Award, poultry; Laura Mazur, Housekeeping Award, sheep; and Sara Miller, Housekeeping Award, swine.

Certificates and appreciation items were presented to Kerry Shoenberger as Carbon County 4-H Livestock Club over all outstanding member and to Justin Cunfer as top seller fundraiser.

The officers of the club then presented the leaders with gift certificates and pins as tokens of their appreciation for time and emergy given to the 4-H members. Leaders of the club are Diane Miller-Graver, Organizational Leader, Dennis and Deanna Cunfer, Robert L. Miller, Kris Simmons, Kelly Wentz, and Marie Zimmerman.

Special tokens of appreciation from Diane Miller-Graver were presented to Robert L. Miller in recognition of his years of service in chaperoning members to the Farm Show and out of area shows and to Deanna Cunfer in appreciation for the work undertaken to bring the club rules up to date and helping the club run smoothly.

Bucks County 4-H Clubs

Local youth 4-H members and adult volunteers are participating in a nationwide media campaign designed to promote youth community service and volunteerism and to raise awareness of the diverse educational opportunities offered by 4-H

4-H Youth Voices and Action joins Smokey the Bear, McGruff the Crime Dog, the Crash-Test Dummies and other successful campaigns developed by the Advertising Council, the nation's largest producer of public service advertising.

The ads use the slogan "Are You Into It?" to encourage youth and adults interested in community service to call a toll-free telephone number (888-77-YOUTH) or visit the campaign's World Wide Web site (www.areyouintoit.com). Callers then will be contacted by a youth 4-H member or adult 4-H leader in Bucks County, who will provide information on volunteer opportunities, as well as on local 4-H clubs and activities.

Bucks County 4-H'ers who are part of the Voices and Action Rapid Response Media Teams are Kelly Pike, Quakertown; James and Emma Kaminski, Bensalem; Rebekah Winder, Perkasie; Jason Smedberg, Chalfont; and Bonnie Stephenson, Huntington Valley.

Those interested in community service or 4-H can call the Bucks County office of Penn State Cooperative Extension at (215)345-3283.

The messages began running on radio and television stations and in newspapers and other publications this fall. Local television stations that were contacted include WCAU (Channel 10), WTGI (Channel 61) and Suburban Cable (Channel 9). Local radio stations include KYW-AM (1060), WFLN-FM (95.7), WTTM-AM (990), WBCB and WBUX.

"Young people who get interested in community service tend to carry that value forward into adulthood," said Pat Freiler, Bucks County 4-H coordinator. "These ads demonstrate that volunteering is a fun and worthwhile activity, especially when you do it with a group of your friends. Most 4-H clubs and programs have a community service component."

Those who respond to the ad campaign can choose to participate in a variety of volunteer activities such as caring for animals at the SPCA, community cleanup days, planting trees and flowers, visiting nursing homes, and collecting food and supplies for the needy.

"Besides helping the community, the campaign also will enable us to get the word out about what 4-H has to offer," Freiler said. In Bucks County, 5,054 4-H members between the ages of eight and 19 take part in programs such as animal science, natural resources, clothing and textiles, public speaking, seeing eye puppy and leadership development.

More than 119,000 urban and rural youth in Pennsylvania, and 5.4 million nationwide, are involved in 4-H, which is administered by Penn State and other land-grand universities.

"4-H has an image much narrower than its actual program and reach today, and this ad campaign is going to help us broaden that image," said Dick Sauer, president of the National 4-H Council. "Ultimately, the real success of this effort will come when young people are fully engaged in helping to solve the critical issues their communities face, making those communities better places to live and work."

National 4-H Congress

Tara DeAngelo of Carlisle and John Creek of Shippensburg were among more than 1,000 4-H young people who stepped closer to leadership, national style, while attending the National 4-H Congress in Memphis, Tenn.

Tara and John, along with Sylvania Negley, 4-H program assistant, attended Congress Nov. 28 through Dec. 3. The theme for this 76th congress was "Learning to Lead...Leading to Learn in a Diverse World."

The congress provided an opportunity for 4-H'ers to meet national figures such as Dave Thomas, CEO of Wendy's Inc., and Kate Shindle, Miss America. In addition, Tara, John, and Sylvania heard super seminars and leadership and motivational speakers, who encouraged all of the 4-H'ers to take steps to make a difference in their communities.

Thomas, in addressing the 4-H'ers, expressed no doubt that future megabusiness moguls were sitting in the audience. "You have a great opportunity. I'm big on 4-H. I want to congratulate you on what you are going to do."

The group also participated in a live, national broadcast of the 4-H Congress's town hall meeting called "4-H Leadership in Action." The broadcast allows the 1,000-plus youth to express their opinions on how the United States can address critical issues facing youth. The issues, voted on by the youth, are drugs, other substance abuse, teen sexual activity, and crime and violence.

On The Move

until a customer base is established," Rita said.

The idea of using a mobile unit was birthed when an on-staff nurse said, "What we need is a motor home."

Rhoads was delighted with the idea, and when the concept was presented to the board, a board member offered his motor home for that purpose.

A bed in the back bedroom serves as an exam table. The front room is used to take blood pressure, check heart rate, blood and urine levels and other checks.

Set-up equipment includes scales, equipment for checking blood and urine levels, cleaning chemicals to meet OSHA guidelines, and other necessary items.

A lending library and medical reference books are also crammed into the area.

If the mobile sites gain a large enough customer base, Rhoads plans to establish an office in the area.

In addition to Rhoads, Valerie Peery is also on the staff as a midwife. Peery has been involved in birthing for years in the Chadds Ford area and has six children. Rhoads and her husband have five children.

Rita is especially grateful for the financial support of the James S. Herr Foundation of Nottingham, for helping fund crisis pregnancies and health care for children and women.

If you are interested you knowing more about either the birthing center or mobile services, call the Quarryville office at (717) 786-4010.

HAPENINGS

4-H Sponsor Campaign To Kick Off

Another 4-H year has come to a close, and already plans are being made and clubs are organized for the new year full of projects, activities, and various hands-on learning experience.

The 4-H mission is to provide an environment in which youth and adults can develop life skills. Life skills are defined as any skill used throughout life, such as decision making, communication, interpersonal relationships, resource management, and many more.

When a child learns to plan time into his/her schedule to complete a 4-H project, he/she is learning many of these life skills–regardless of what subject the project addresses.

The 4-H program in Susquehanna County is as strong as it is because it has a tremendous amount of support from the community. Nearly 200 adult volunteers help to make it happen. Countless others lend their support through cooperative efforts and financial contributions. The entire community has a lot to gain by providing opportunities for our youth to develop the skills and cooperative attitudes that will be required of them in their adult lives.

Local businesses, friends, neighbors, and families of 4-H members will be asked once again to show their support for the 4-H program and to help if they can by donating to the Susquehanna County 4-H Development Fund. This fund is used to finance the wide array of activities and events that provide 4-H members with opportunities to develop skills they will use throughout their lives. It also makes possible the necessary training for 4-H club leaders–adults and teens. Anyone who has ever paid their way on a bus trip knows that transportation costs alone can put wonderful events out of reach for many youth in Susquehanna County. Although various money-saving options are constantly being pursued, the fact is: it costs money to provide a quality 4-H program.

In recent years, 4-H members solicited sponsors for specific project area needs. Many individuals and merchants were asked several times to give to 4-H'ers for various programs or events. In an effort to lessen the annoyance to local businesses a new method of obtaining a 4-H sponsor donations is being implemented. One general campaign will begin on Feb. 1. Sponsors will still have the option to give their donations to specific programs or they may choose to give to the general 4-H program. 4-H members will still make contact with the sponsors, and the organization hopes more people will become aware of the width and depth of the overall 4-H program.

Public Invited To Tack Swap

The annual tack swap at the Northampton County 4-H Center will be held Saturday, April 18, from 11 a.m. - 2 p.m.

The Northampton County 4-H Center is located on Bushkill Center Rd., Nazareth. The tack swap is open to anyone who wishes to come to sell or to buy various horse related items, apparel, and tack. All sellers must have a table area. No consignment items will be sold at the tack swap.

Sale areas will be offered to the public at a cost of $15 per table for the indoor area, $12 for the pole barn area, and $10 per "area" in the outdoor arena, weather permitting. Anyone wishing to sell during the tack swap must preregister for spaces in the indoor and pole barn area. Arena areas will be allocated on the day of the event.

Any item from small to large may be sold. No live animals will be allowed to be sold at this event. Persons with large equipment to sell are welcome to display it on the open grounds for the registration fee.

Food will be available during the tack swap courtesy of Backtrackers 4-H Horse and Pony Club.

Anyone wishing further information, directions, or registration for this event is encouraged to call (610)837-7294.

County 4-H Awards

Amory Bennett, Churchville and Chara Histand, Sellersville, received the I Dare You Leadership Award recently at the Bucks County 4-H Achievement Night.

This countywide award recognizes leadership qualities, academic achievement, school and community involvement, physical or athletic activities, and good character.

Bennett, daughter of Larry and Barbara Bennett, is an eighth grade student who is raising her third 4-H Seeing Eye Puppy. The puppy raising program offers family love and socialization to the dog before its fitness evaluation by the Seeing Eye Foundation.

Histand, daughter of Timothy and Kathy Histand, is an active member of Hilltown 4-H Club. Chara enjoys sewing and contributes time and talent to sewing items for community service, such as the Goschenhoppen Historic Festival. She visits a local group home to cheer the residents and gives regular service to her church. Twice she has presented the secretary workshop for 4-H club officers at the Bucks County 4-H Officer Training.

You Ask You Answer

This column is for readers who have questions but don't know who to ask for answers.

"You Ask—You Answer" is for non-cooking questions. When a reader sends in a question, it will be printed in the paper. Readers who know the answer are asked to respond by mailing the answer, which will then be printed in the paper.

Questions and Answers to this column should be addressed to You Ask—You Answer, Lancaster Farming, P.O. Box 609, Ephrata, PA 17522. Attention: Lou Ann Good.

Do not send a self-addressed, stamped envelope for a reply. If we receive the answer, we will publish it as soon as possible. Please include your phone number because we sometimes need to contact the person to clarify details. We will not publish your phone number unless you request it.

Junior Cloverleaf Awards

Nine Bucks County youth received the Junior 4-H Cloverleaf Award at the 4-H Achievement Night Program recently.

In the 12- to 13-year-old division, winners were Carl and Casey Remick, Perkasie; Gretchen Sample, Pipersville; and Lori Snyder, Upper Black Eddy. The award recognizes leadership and carrying out 4-H club responsibilities.

The Remicks are sons of Ryan and Margaret Remick, and members of the Hilltown 4-H and Shooting Sports Clubs. They are students at Pennridge South Junior High School. Their 4-H activities include rabbits, cavies and entomology as well as shooting sports.

Sample, daughter of Alan and Elaine Sample, is a member of the Bucks County 4-H Goat Club. She raises pygmy goats and is the secretary of her club. Snyder, daughter of Janet Snyder, is an eighth grader and member of Round-A-Bits 4-H Horse & Pony Club. She participates in both riding and production of 4-H horse projects.

New York State Dairy Princess Pageant Is Feb. 17

SYRACUSE, NY – The American Dairy Association and Dairy Council, Inc. (ADADC), announced the Annual New York State Dairy Princess Pageant to be held on Tuesday, February 17, at Four Points Hotel by Sheraton, Liverpool, NY, and it's annual meeting to be held on Wednesday, February 18.

Festivities begin on Tuesday with milk punch at 5:30 p.m. During the banquet at 6.00 p.m., 29 county dairy princesses will be honored as they compete to be the 1998-99 New York State Dairy Princess (currently Alison Littlefield of Jefferson County). An ADADC 1997 Program Presentation will highlight the "got milk?" advertising campaign and the promotional contributions of the consumer promotions, nutrition education and communications work groups. On Wednesday, ADADC's Annual Meeting will begin at 8:00 a.m. The agenda includes financial, advertising, and program updates

The pageant culminates two days of judging for the contestants. The judges will be looking for young women who most effectively promote milk and dairy products, based on a personal interview, impromptu and prepared adult speeches, and informal interaction with others. Though only on state princess and two alternates will be selected as state representatives for the dairy industry, promotion is a team effort, and all county dairy princesses and their courts are important in increasing milk and dairy product consumption.

In addition to the three state representatives who will receive awards of $1,200, $700 and $600 respectively, awards will also be presented to three girls in each of the following categories. adult speeches, written communications, and product knowledge. In addition, three girls will receive a public relations award designed to recognize special events efforts at the local county level. "Miss Congeniality" will be selected from the contestants and recognized as the dairy princess who demonstrates the most friendliness and cooperative spirit of competition.

Two college students will receive the ADADC Memorial Scholarship and Leo Briggs Memorial Scholarship. Both $500 scholarships are based on grade point average, extracurricular activities, future plans, and a 400-word essay discussing the applicant's commitment to a career in the dairy industry.

The Robert S. Turner Promoter of the Year Award will be presented to the county that has done an outstanding job promoting milk and dairy products. Selection is based on the number and types of promotional activities conducted by the 1996-97 county dairy princesses and their courts.

A Golden Cow Award will be presented to an adult county dairy promotion committee member as recognition for outstanding service and dedication to local dairy promotion in New York state.

Banquet tickets are $20 per person and must be reserved by Friday, February 6. Make Checks payable to ADADC and mail to: Deborah Mathers, American Dairy Association and Dairy Council, Inc., 219 South West Street, Suite 100, Syracuse, NY 13202-1205.

Four Points Hotel is located directly across from exit 37 of the New York State Thruway. From Route 81 North or South, take exit 25 – Seventh North Street. Go to the end of the ramp and take a right. The hotel will be straight ahead at the "T" (one mile).

Ida's Notebook

by Ida Risser

On Sunday I traveled with our church choir to Washington National Cathedral. I'm not a singer but I went along to see this Gothic cathedral that took more than 80 years to build. There are five chapels within this large building which is one-tenth of a mile long. Although administered by the Episcopal Church, it is a house of prayer for all people.

Preceding the afternoon service, the Lancaster choir sang eight numbers. The service was quite formal starting with a procession, then the Psalms and prayers were chanted. The boy's choir sang in Latin. Their organ has 10,500 pipes. The largest is 32 feet long and the smallest one is the size of your little finger. Personally, I would much rather worship in a simple wooden church in the country.

Long ago I sold my oak desk to a college student. This I had to empty the three drawers Recently, I went through the box in which I had stored the 1960 contents of the desk.

These scraps of paper and letters are interesting to me. Some were written by little children telling me that they loved me and decorating the papers with flowers. Some are newspaper clippings which tell of their accomplishments in 4-H Clubs Some were letters from older relatives giving advice.

I even found a poem that my husband had wanted for a long time as his parents quoted it to him. He wants to repeat it to his grandchildren. After I looked through all the papers, I simply returned most of them to the box and closed the lid.

Food Adventure Tips

TUNKHANNOCK (Wyoming Co.) – Are you craving more excitement in your life? Sometimes you need look no further than the end of your fork? A world of food adventures is at your fingertips.

Here are 12 possibilities to point you on your way:

1) Add a little spice to your life – Cruise through the supermarket seasonings section. Buy a flavoring that intrigues you. Check label information for suggested uses and amounts. Spices and herbs are great ways to add flavor when you lower the salt, fat and/or sugar in a recipe.

2) Time for an oil change? Try raising the quality while lowering the quantity of fat in your diet. Make your next salad dressing with a flavorful "extra virgin" olive oil. Experiment with a few brand to find the one you enjoy most. Purchase some of the new flavored oils to drizzle (lightly!) over vegetables or pastas for added pizzaz.

3) Grab a new grain – Venture beyond bread for more of your recommended 6 to 11 daily grain servings. Try a new grain or different form of a familiar grain. How about amaranth or barley? Buckwheat and quinoa, though not true grains, also count and may offer new adventures. Check the back of food packages for quick access to new recipe ideas.

Or, test untried forms of favorite grains. Consider bulgur or couscous from the wheat family. If you've always used cornmeal for making cornbread, try cooking polenta instead.

Note: Whole grains tend to be higher in fat content than refined grains and grow rancid sooner. Buy from stores that have a fairly rapid turnover of foods. Store in the refrigerator or freezer to help maintain quality longer.

4) Say cheese! In the book, "On Food and Cooking", Harold McGee says cheese probably has been around since 2300 B.c. If your history with cheese is limited to two or three favorites, you're missing out on centuries of cheese flavors!

High in important bone-building calcium, there's a cheese for everyone: Low fat, low sodium, sharp, mellow–the options are endless. Use a new variety to liven up a favorite dish.

5) Fancy a new fruit – take home a new fruit on your next supermarket trip. Try different varieties of old favorites, such as apples. There are any number of varieties out there – which ones haven't you tried yet?

Make sure you know how to fix the fruit you fancy. Avoid the sad situation of the person who threw away the edible seed portion of a pomegranate and tried to eat the inedible spongy membrane! Check with the produce department if you have any preparation questions.

6) Vary your vegetables – Instead of a baked potato, try a sweet potato; score an "A" for adventure as well as vitamin A. Pep up color and flavor by adding green, yellow and red peppers to your meals. Turn up the heat with hot peppers. Go easy on your first adventure with the hotter peppers!

7) Go for the green – Mix up your salad with a variety of greens; continue the adventure by sampling a new salad dressing. Combine greens with different textures, colors and flavors. Use stronger-tasting tart greens in smaller amounts. For example, a romaine or Boston lettuce is milder in flavor Radicchio and escarole are tart Include fresh herb leaves, such as basil and tarragon, for added interest.

8) Encounter another culture – If you can't travel to another county, step through the door of a restaurant offering foods from a different culture. Check to see if there is a "sampler" plate so you can try a variety of foods.

9) Jump on the bean bandwagon – Black beans, red beans, garbanzo beans, adzuki beans, navy beans....Have you tried beans yet? Serve them as a main dish or serve them on the side. Mix them into salads. Mash them and add a spice for a flavorful dip. Use them straight from the can, or cook up a bag High in fiber, they make a healthy addition to your meals.

10) Pasta possibilities – Try a different shape, color or flavor of pasta to add a new look to an old dish. As a rule of thumb, match larger and bolder pasta shapes with chunkier and more robust sauces.

11) Mix up your main dishes – Are you afraid to order a food you can't pronounce? Do you always choose your main dishes from the same menu food grouping?

Venture out with some of your more adventurous friends and make it a point to order foods you've never eaten. Share the foods....and the fun!

12) Get cooking with a new cookbook – Browse through the cookbook section in your local library. Review magazines and newsletters that offer recipes. When you find a recipe that makes your taste buds tingle, give it a try. Cookbooks are your passport to adventure right in your own kitchen!

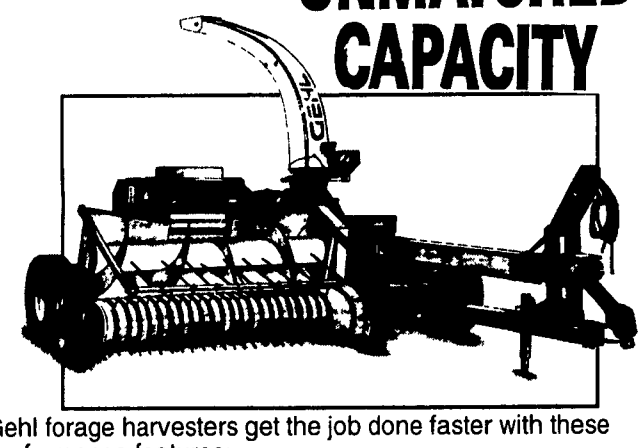
GEHL®

UNMATCHED CAPACITY



Gehl forage harvesters get the job done faster with these performance features:
- Exclusive Auto-Max Load-Sensing System - Increase capacity by up to 20%. Lets you operate at top capacity without the fear of downtime due to overloading.
- Metal-Stop Metal Detector - Prevents machine damage and hardware disease.
- In-head Hydraulic Knife Sharpener - Lets you sharpen knives in the field.
- Patented One-Sided Cutterbar Adjustment - Makes adjusting the cutterbar quick and easy.
- Three Models To Choose From
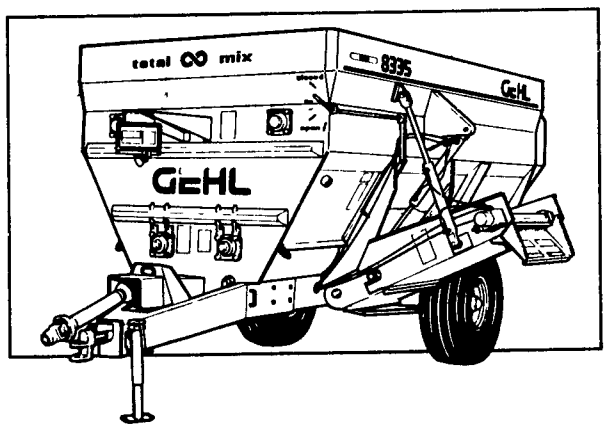
  CB865 - up to 150 HP
  CB1065 - up to 200 HP
  CB1265 - up to 300 HP

TMR "Total Mix" Mixer Feeders



"Total Mix" TMR mixer feeders let you mix more long-stemmed hay into your ration - up to 30% by weight depending on hay type and moisture content

- "Hay - slicer auger" - Incorporates knife assemblies into the two bottom augers
- Better mixing action - Four-auger design creates a double figure-8 mixing pattern for fast and complete mixing of all feed ingredients.
- Five sizes - 150 to 455 cubic feet capacities

SERVICEABILITY:

One Reason Case IH MAGNUMs are the BEST Value in 2WD Tractors

MAGNUM Tractors Makes Maintenance Manageable!

Performing proper maintenance means better productivity, longer life and eventually a better resale value for your Case IH 8900 MAGNUM tractor. There are many features that make regular maintenance easy.

- The tilt-up hood swings out of your way - no tools required!
- Gas assist cylinders make ground-level access to the engine easy.
- Remove side panels without tools and have complete access to key maintenance points.
- Open just one panel to check daily service points.
- A longer handle makes closing the hood easier.
- Dual-element air filter stays cleaner longer.
- Spin-on oil filters mount vertically to prevent leaks and spills.
- Easy-to-remove cab air filters keep the heating and cooling systems running at top performance.

HOOBER, Inc's Factory-trained Tractor Service Techs Specialize in servicing and repairing tractors. They know how to get the most from your MAGNUM tractor.

Reserve your RENTAL MAGNUM Early This Spring.

Hog Building Designs Topic Of Pork Congress

COLUMBUS, Ohio — Not all pigs are created equal, and their homes shouldn't be either, said Dale Ricker, swine associate at the Putnam County office of Ohio State University Extension.

Farrowing buildings and nurseries were baby pigs are born and housed should be kept warm, while buildings designed for finishing—where older pigs are readied for market — should be kept at around 55 degrees to 60 degrees Fahrenheit, Ricker said. That's because a mild, dry environment is better for the health and growth of finishing hogs than a warm, humid environment is better for the health and growth of finishing hogs than a warm, humid environment.

To learn more about the topic, early arrivals to the 1998 Ohio Pork Congress on Friday, Feb. 20, can participate in the Building Design and Ventilation Alternatives sessions presented by Ohio State University Extension from 8 a.m. to 10 a.m. Subjects discussed will include breeding and gestation building design, farrowing and nursery design and ventilation alternatives, wean to finish building design and management, grow/finish buildings, and hoop structures.

"Hog prices aren't too good now, but there has been some money made in pork production the past two years, so producers are able to invest in new or remodeled buildings," Ricker said. "We try to do programs that producers will be interested in, and we've been getting a lot of questions about building design in the past year."

Designs for all the stages in pork production will be covered, from breeding and gestation through finishing. Through slides and discussion, participants should get a good overview of what types of structures have been built recently Ricker said.

"This session should be good for all producers, whether they're doing something now, next year or the year after," he said.

Ventilation, especially of farrowing and nursery buildings, also will be discussed. Ventilation systems continuously remove the heat, moisture and odors crated by livestock and replenish the oxygen supply by bringing in drier, cooler outside air. Air exchange also removes gases such as ammonia, hydrogen sulfide and methane that can be harmful to both animal and operator health.

Other Ohio State University Extension presentations at Pork Congress will be composting swine mortality certification seminar, also on Feb. 20 from 8 a.m. to 10 a.m., two sessions each on swine health and the Internet, and the Swine Health and Technology Corner with veterinarians and Extension Swine Team members available throughout the Congress to answer questions.

The Swine Health sessions will take place Feb. 20 and Feb. 21 at 10 a.m. Topics discussed during Friday's session will include Segregated Early Weaning (SEW) Nursery Health Management, and Porcine Reproduction and Respiratory Syndrome (PRRS) and Swine Influenza Interactions. Saturday's topics include Emerging Diseases, and Hazard Analysis and Critical Control Points (HACCP) Impact at the Farm Level.

The Internet sessions will cover what pork information is available on the Internet, what type of computer producers will need, where to start and how to get hooked up.

"About 30 percent of farmers use computers, but we'll mostly be focusing on the 70 percent who don't and answering questions they may have," said David Meeker, director of Ohio State's Ohio Pork Industry Center.

The Internet sessions are scheduled for Feb. 20 at 2 p.m. and Feb 21 at 1 p.m.

The Ohio Pork Congress is Feb. 19 to Feb. 21 at the Dayton Convention Center. For more information regarding the Congress, call the Ohio Pork Producers Council at (614) 882-5887, or visit their website (http //www.ohiopork org) For more information about hog building designs and ventilation, contact county offices of Ohio State University Extension.

Passing On The Farm Topic Of Lancaster

LANCASTER (Lancaster Co.) – One of the most important decisions a farmer makes is how, when, and to whom the farm will be transferred.

Passing your farm business on the the next generation is an issue that requires careful planning and attention.

To help you in the process, Pennsylvania Farm Link is hosting a day-long workshop at the Farm and Home Center in Lancaster on Feb. 4. Individuals who want to learn ways to successfully transfer their farm to family members or those wanting to locate interested beginning farmers are urged to attend.

Beginning farmers, or people who are new to farming, are also urged to attend to discuss beginning farmer issues and ways to gradually develop a farm business.

According to Farm Link Director Marion Bowlan, "forty-five percent of Pennsylvania's farm operators are age 55 or older. There are two times as many operators over the age of 65 as under the age of 35. In the next 10 years, nearly, one quarter of the state's 44,800 farms will change hands. How we address this problem will affect agriculture in Pennsylvania for generations to come."

Working to assist in the successful transfer of family farms and to help retain agricultural lands in production, Pennsylvania Farm Link is sponsoring regional beginning and retiring farmer workshops. This year the organization is focusing part of its resources on southeastern Pennsylvania. The workshop, scheduled from 9 a.m. to 3:45 p.m., will address passing on the farm issues, including business planning, farm loan resources, legal aspects of a transfer, marketing ideas, start-up strategies, goal setting, farm management, communication skills, and farmland preservation programs.

Participating agencies and individuals include Pennsylvania Farm Link, Penn State Cooperative Extension, Farm Credit, Farm Service Agency, Lancaster County Agricultural Land Preservation Board, American Express Financial Advisors, an attorney, and a panel of local farmers.

Preregistration for this free workshop is required by calling Farm Link at (717) 558-7726 by Feb. 2. Lunch is on your own.

Graves Sets NCFC Standard For New Millenium

ORLANDO, Fla. — "We intend to be the most member-responsive organization on earth!" said David Graves, president of the National Council of Farmer Cooperatives (NCFC), during his report to members at the association's annual meeting recently.

Graves told representatives from the Council's more than 100 farmer owned cooperatives that NCFC is always searching for creative and innovative ways to enhance its value.

Emphasizing this year's meeting theme, "Strengthening Cooperatives . . . Make it Your Business," Graves told members about a number of initiatives NCFC undertook in 1997 to provide the maximum value for their investment.

He reported on a reorganization of NCFC staff that established seven centers of excellence. "The staff now concentrates on specific core competencies that increase the efficiency and effectiveness of all staff activities," he said.

In addition, Graves told the audience that NCFC's 21st Century Committee is developing a futuristic governance structure to carry NCFC into the next millenium. "This new governance structure will help assure consensus when considering policy positions and program activities," he said.

Thanks to you, our customers and friends, our business has grown As many of you have already seen, our business has taken on a new look this year We've completely renovated our building which was constructed in 1951. We now have a facility to meet our needs into the next century We have more than doubled our square footage, and modernized every aspect of our business

We also have developed a new company logo Why the change? We're looking to the future and wanted a new symbol to remind you of our commitment to the equipment business This new logo follows a business heritage that began in 1890, started by Abraham Lincoln Herr and his brother Clinton S Herr This past year also completes our 65th year as a CASE/CASE IH dealer As we begin our 108th year we can truly say that we have much, much more to offer our customers.

Herbert Hoover Farney says, "I didn't think they could mix it."

Steve, Dale, and Herbert Hoover Farney
Silvery Falls Farms - Lowville, NY

Mr. Farney is talking about mixing 11 5% long stem dry hay by ration weight in the Knight Reel Auggie 3450, which he and his sons decided to purchase in September of 1994.

Herbert was born the day Herbert Hoover was elected president

The Farneys previously owned a three-auger Oswalt stationary unit They state that the "old mixer tended to ball material up, especially in wetter forages, while the Reel Auggie 3450 'fluffs' the ration."

The Farney's herd average is up about 1,000 lbs , and they have a higher protein test as well They milk 160 Holsteins, and feed a total of 260 head They like the low power requirement — the 390 cubic foot machine is powered by a John Deere 2030 tractor

3000 Reel Auggie TMR Mixers

- 2 to 12 Rows
- 3 pt hitch on pull-type
- Liquid or dry fertilizer
- No till or conservation till

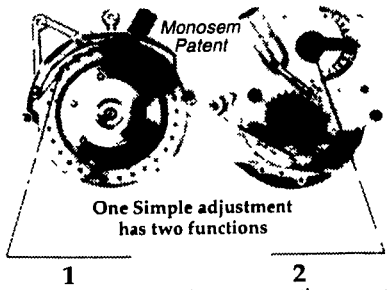
* Heavy-duty frame with 7"x7" heavy wall steel tubing
* Spring-loaded contact drive wheels eliminate mechanical clutches.
* Ideal for regular field crops PLUS specialty crops.

NG PLUS SERIES METERING SYSTEM

Patented Metering Box



Monosem Patent
One Simple adjustment has two functions
To set the height of the seed scraper
To proportion the air-suction to the weight of the seed

It's easy to change from crop to crop. The correct seed disc is selected based on the size and weight of the seed A bean seed disc, for example, can plant a variety of bean seeds. When planting different crops, you need only adjust the metering box vacuum and change seed discs

NG+ 2-row, variable width rowspacing, with dry fertilizer and Microsem granular applicator Shown planting sweet corn in Ohio

Affordable high technology available for the farmer with smaller acreage or multiple crops, but who is still concerned with seed costs, seed spacing, seed singulation, depth control and uniform germination

TOUGHER THAN THE REST

The New Holland Model Lx565 Super Boom™ skid-steer loader is tougher, more durable and more reliable than ever.

The "Lx565" offers a 40 horsepower diesel engine with an SAE load rating of a powerful 1,500 pounds.

The Pick Up 'n Go™ universal attachment system makes it compatible with New Holland and competitive attachments. The strong boom design and massive loader pins make it more reliable.

See what makes the Super Boom so tough.

NEW HOLLAND

Get precise application control

New Holland side-delivery spreaders provide the most material control. Whether you're light top dressing, laying down a heavy layer, or anything in between, the Model 3110 puts the right amount of material right where you need it.

- Handles a wide variety of material – slurry, gutter material, cow manure, even poultry litter
- V-tank design delivers material to the auger fast
- Heavy -duty round-core auger produces less drag
- Double-acting hydraulic cylinder moves auger up and down to keep material flowing
- Hydraulic gate and specially designed expeller give precise application control
- Backed by a 10-year warranty against tank rust-through

Combining simplicity and strength the McHale Bale Splitter cuts bales of silage, hay or straw, quickly, neatly and efficiently

Powered by one double acting hydraulic cylinder and a uniquely designed knife, the Bale Splitter will securely transport bales from the stacking site to the feeding location The operator simply splits the bale as desired in the feeding area or into a Feeder wagon

The Bale Splitter is supplied in a standard configuration as a three point linkage machine It can also be fitted to a tractor loader or industrial handler

Like all McHale products the Bale Splitter incorporates common sense design, quality components and precision engineering to make Bale Splitting more efficient

CLAAS - The Dependable One

This year's corn silage harvest is over and once again Claas harvesters proved their value. Of the 24 Claas harvesters we've sold, the longest down time any of them had this year was 1/2 day!

That 1/2 day problem happened to a custom operator who ran over a hidden well casing while opening a field. The Claas harvester can chop right through wood - but a well casing will stop it. If you have an obstruction in your field, mark it with a flag.

Hog Building Designs Topic Of Pork Congress

COLUMBUS, Ohio — Not all pigs are created equal, and their homes shouldn't be either, said Dale Ricker, swine associate at the Putnam County office of Ohio State University Extension.

Farrowing buildings and nurseries were baby pigs are born and housed should be kept warm, while buildings designed for finishing—where older pigs are readied for market — should be kept at around 55 degrees to 60 degrees Fahrenheit, Ricker said. That's because a mild, dry environment is better for the health and growth of finishing hogs than a warm, humid environment is better for the health and growth of finishing hogs than a warm, humid environment.

To learn more about the topic, early arrivals to the 1998 Ohio Pork Congress on Friday, Feb. 20, can participate in the Building Design and Ventilation Alternatives sessions presented by Ohio State University Extension from 8 a.m. to 10 a.m. Subjects discussed will include breeding and gestation building design, farrowing and nursery design and ventilation alternatives, wean to finish building design and management, grow/finish buildings, and hoop structures.

"Hog prices aren't too good now, but there has been some money made in pork production the past two years, so producers are able to invest in new or remodeled buildings," Ricker said. "We try to do programs that producers will be interested in, and we've been getting a lot of questions about building design in the past year."

Designs for all the stages in pork production will be covered, from breeding and gestation through finishing. Through slides and discussion, participants should get a good overview of what types of structures have been built recently. Ricker said.

"This session should be good for all producers, whether they're doing something now, next year or the year after," he said.

Ventilation, especially of farrowing and nursery buildings, also will be discussed. Ventilation systems continuously remove the heat, moisture and odors crated by livestock and replenish the oxygen supply by bringing in drier, cooler outside air. Air exchange also removes gases such as ammonia, hydrogen sulfide and methane that can be harmful to both animal and operator health.

Other Ohio State University Extension presentations at Pork Congress will be composting swine mortality certification seminar, also on Feb. 20 from 8 a.m. to 10 a.m., two sessions each on swine health and the Internet, and the Swine Health and Technology Corner with veterinarians and Extension Swine Team members available throughout the Congress to answer questions.

The Swine Health sessions will take place Feb. 20 and Feb. 21 at 10 a.m. Topics discussed during Friday's session will include Segregated Early Weaning (SEW) Nursery Health Management, and Porcine Reproduction and Respiratory Syndrome (PRRS) and Swine Influenza Interactions. Saturday's topics include Emerging Diseases, and Hazard Analysis and Critical Control Points (HACCP) Impact at the Farm Level.

The Internet sessions will cover what pork information is available on the Internet, what type of computer producers will need, where to start and how to get hooked up.

"About 30 percent of farmers use computers, but we'll mostly be focusing on the 70 percent who don't and answering questions they may have," said David Meeker, director of Ohio State's Ohio Pork Industry Center.

The Internet sessions are scheduled for Feb. 20 at 2 p.m. and Feb. 21 at 1 p.m.

The Ohio Pork Congress is Feb. 19 to Feb. 21 at the Dayton Convention Center. For more information regarding the Congress, call the Ohio Pork Producers Council at (614) 882-5887, or visit their website (http://www.ohiopork.org). For more information about hog building designs and ventilation, contact county offices of Ohio State University Extension.

Ag Land Preservation Board Holds Elections

SUNBURY (Northumberland Co.) – The Northumberland County Agricultural Land Preservation Board elected officers for 1998 during a recent meeting. David L. Unger, Rush Township, was re-elected chairman of the board and William Geise, Point Township, was re-elected as vice chairman. Carolyn Badman, Sunbury, was elected as secretary-treasurer.

Other members of the Preservation Board includes Donald Cotner, Rush Township, Clifford Levan, Turbot Township, Thomas E. Boop, Sunbury, and R. Craig Rhoades, Shamokin. The board officially welcomed Richard Daniels, Lower Mahanoy Township, who was recently appointed by the county commissioners.

The Northumberland County Agricultural Land Preservation Board is responsible for administering the farmland preservation program in Northumberland County. The board receives applications from farmers who want to sell easements on their farms to insure their land remains in agriculture for perpetuity. Applications are then ranked according to state and county program guidelines.

Program guidelines include an evaluation of the soils and an assessment of the farm's site. Fifty percent of the soils must be available for agricultural production, according to capability classes defined by the USDA, Natural Resources Conservation Service. The site assessment portion consists of factors that consider development potential, farmland potential, and clustering potential. The farm must be located in an agricultural security area, with consideration given to the likelihood the farm will be converted to a nonagricultural use. Other criteria states the tract must be at least 50 acres in size, contain 50 percent harvested cropland or pastureland, and receive consideration for the farm's proximity to other farms with an agricultural conservation easement. In addition, the applicant must be a good steward of the land.

All applications are ranked on an annual basis. Prior to the board meeting, 10 active applications were scored according to program guidelines, and their rankings were determined. The board officially approved the priority ranking for the 10 applications.

One easement has been purchased in Delaware/Turbot townships. The board is optimistic another easement will soon be completed in Delaware Township, and they have begun the process to purchase a third one.

Seminar To Discuss Ways To Build With Nature

WEST PITTSTON (Luzerne Co.) – Today's home buyer is looking for a house surrounded by the beauty of nature.

In response to this demand, developers and homebuilders can create beautiful, healthy communities by building with nature.

Building with nature involves planning for and properly incorporating and conserving natural resources during development. Many developers have already recognized that commercial and residential construction can be more profitable when natural features are designed into the project and protected.

Without a clear understanding of the impacts construction activities can have on trees and natural resources, the features that attracted home buyers can quickly be destroyed. Today's home buyer's are better educated about the environment and natural resource issues and take an interest in the land on which they are building.

On Feb. 26, a seminar titled "Building with Nature - Protecting Trees and Natural Resources During Construction" will be held at Luzerne County Community College for the building industry and community planners.

Preregistration and a $20 fee that covers written material, lunch, and breaks are required. For more information, contact Penn State Cooperative Extension at (717) 602-0600 or (717) 825-1701.

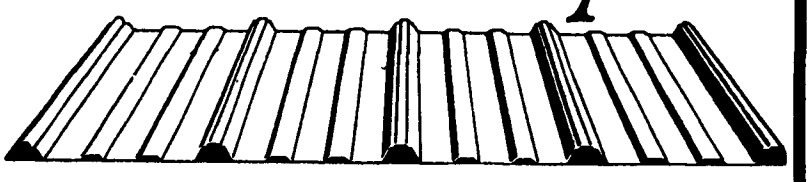
Rural Economy



Cost-efficient Centurydrain® roofing and siding is on some of the best looking buildings in the country.

Build with Centurydrain roofing and siding and you've built a money-wise structure. Full-hard, high tensile galvanized steel, and an exclusive drain channel for a dry interior give you a building that'll handle years of hard duty and hard weather. Good looking, too. Crisp lines and plenty of bright, long-lasting colors make Wheeling Centurydrain as handsome as it is economical.

Cut stall clean-out time by 50% with a Millcreek Compact Spreader.

EARL SINKS - Brock, Texas

Say "Good-Bye" to back-breaking manure handling and cut stall clean-out time in half. Hook an affordable Millcreek Compact Spreader to your 10 hp garden tractor, take it right to the stall for easy loading. No more wheelbarrow.

Millcreek Spreaders last and last

Since spreaders are our specialty, we put more into each one. For example our 20-year guaranteed floor will never rust or rot. Positive chain drive provides excellent spreading action. And tough steel construction holds up to rugged farm use. Seven sizes, for 1-horse barns to 50-horse stables. PTO and ground drive models available.

GIVE'EM HELP WITH PRO-LIX

PRO-LIX LIQUID FEED

They'll give it right back to you, with interest, in:
- Healthier Calves
- More Economical Production
- Better Reproduction Performance

PRO-LIX delivers the protein, vitamins and minerals your cattle need-when they need it and in the amounts they need. It increases cattle weight, fosters healthier calves and often helps to produce more calves. PRO-LIX is an extremely smart investment in the beef or milk that produces your profits-all year long.

SWEETCAKE 16NU

FEED SUPPLEMENT BLOCKS FOR THE LIVESTOCK INDUSTRY

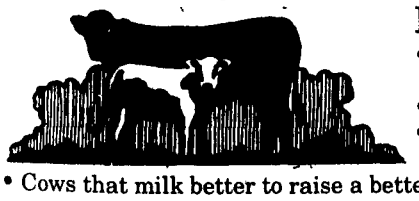
• High Natural Protein • No Urea • Fat Enhanced
• Balanced Supplementation • Safe For All Livestock Classes

Sweetcake Advantages

- Aids in making the best use of your available forage
- Promotes a more even herd consumption, with 24-hour availability to all cattle
- Reduces labor to save you money and give you more time to make important management decisions
- Supplies much-needed vitamins and minerals that forage lacks to help your cattle perform to their genetic potential
- Supplies fat in most formulations to enhance energy intake

For Dairy

- Replacement heifers that grow out soundly and economically
- Body condition on dry cows so they can return to lactation, producing at the maximum potential
- Healthier herds, with essential trace minerals that help prevent metritis, retained placenta and other health problems
- Prompt re-breeding, thanks to essential nutrients



For Beef

- Stronger, healthier calves at birth
- Heavier Calves at weaning
- Cows that cycle better for improved conception rates
- Cows that milk better to raise a better calf

- AVAILABLE IN 200 LB. SIZE -

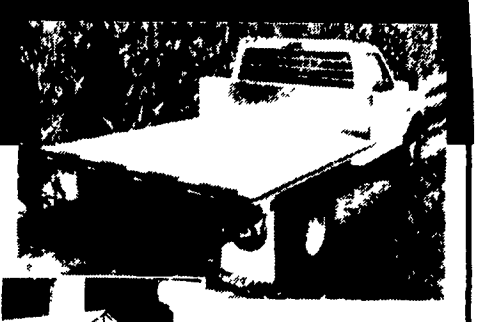
EBY BUILDS IT



M.H. Eby custom-builds aluminum truck bodies for the agri-transportation market Nobody offers more sizes and options in:

- FLATBED BODIES - Lengths to 32', choice of 5 widths
- GRAIN BODIES - Lengths to 24', landscape and general purpose dumps to 12'.
- LANDSCAPE BODIES - Lengths to 12', We'll build to your specs!

Let EBY custom build one for you.

For greater payload capacity, Eby's aluminum design is equal in strength to steel and up to 40% lighter. Our corrosion-resistant components never need painting. That means minimum maintenance, improved appearance and higher resale value.

Eby products have superior standard features. And we offer customer options for virtually any application Agriculture is your business - building bodies to haul it is ours.

The Professionals In Farm Real Estate Service

ALL PREGNANT IN PREGNANCY CHECK.
FORMULA-M MAKES THE DIFFERENCE.

When I first started testing Formula-M for dairy cows (about 1994) I bought some cows that the Dairymen had been trying to get pregnant for over a year. I gave samples of Formula-M to Dairymen who had cows they had been trying to get pregnant for 1 to 2 years. One cow that I bought was a VG 89 with EXC. Mammary, eight years old with milk records of 29,000; 31,000 and 32,000. At eight years old she was still classified VG with EXC Mammary. I bet the Dairyman was very sorry to lose that one. I fed Formula-M and bred A.I. and she got pregnant. (I sold her to a local Dairyman and she had a bull calf. The Dairyman kept the calf for a herd sire). Another one that we tested on was a Holstein, Jersey cross with a 29,000 m record. She was Jersey color and I believe 3/4 Jersey. I remember that she was the best cow that Dairyman had ever had. We fed those cows Formula-M and they got pregnant. Also, that Dairyman had two mares he had been trying to get pregnant for a couple of years and they both got pregnant after feeding Formula-M. I picked the toughest cases I could find for testing (about 20 cows in all). All but one got pregnant. (One cow had a broken leg and the Dairyman sold her. She may have been pregnant also). After that, I started selling some Formula-M to some of the local Dairymen and have been getting reports back for a couple of years now. One Dairyman said "I had a pregnancy check on nine cows and all nine were pregnant". Another checked eleven and all were pregnant; another checked twenty-three and all were pregnant. Another Dairyman had fourteen cows pregnancy checked and all were pregnant. That is about the way it has been going ever since.

Feed Formula-M to all your cows every day and soon you will be reporting that all your cows were pregnant when you had a pregnancy check. With Formula-M your cows will also have better appetites, & higher energy level. They will digest their feed better, have higher milk production and lower somatic cell count.

Formula-M is in powder form and comes in a five gallon bucket which cost only $92.00 (8¢ per day, per cow) and will last about one month for 40 cows.

Put Formula-M in the grain mix; or TMR; or top dress it.

You can have Formula-M tomorrow if you call now. You will start noticing the difference within a week. Made by the same people that make VITAMIX.

Formula M, it's what causes babies.
